PAWN OFFICES PLY LAWLESS TRADE IN CITY

Business Is Carried On Behind Second-Hand Clothing Front.

NO TICKETS GIVEN TO SAFEGUARD PATRON

Clients Have Difficulty in Regaining Articles Left as Security.

300 PER CENT RATE OF INTEREST ASKED

Dealers Accept Anything but Artificial Limbs and False Teeth.

By DANIEL B. MAHER.

Legally there are no pawnbrokers in the District of Columbia; but actually there are nerly 100 of them, who unblushingly extract money from their indigent patrons in a way that would make even Al Capone weep in shame.

Under the guise of second-hand stores these merchants carry on a business which is exactly that of a pawn shop. The only difference in their transactions is that no pawn tickets are given in return for articles offered as security for a loan. The patrons are evidently not to be trusted with a written record of their business transactions.

In contrast with these dealers, the loan sharks, who ask a mere pittance of 933 per cent interest for their money, are placed in a somewhat less unfavorable light. While patronizing the pawn shops you may be charged only 300 per cent interest for the loan you receive on your pledge, that is, if you happen to be unusually lucky.

May Get Articles Back.

Then, if you are blessed with exceptional good fortune, you may even be permitted to redeem your own watch, diamond ring, glass eye, or whatever the case may be; providing, however, that some one else hasn't offered a more attractive price to the dealer.

If some one comes along and offers the dealer something in excess of your redemption price, he will sell. In that case you are just out of luck. You will be told that the dealer did not pawn your watch or diamond; he bought it from you and sold it at his own price. There is supposed to be no legal recourse for the victim. This aspect of the case remains to be seen.

Should you have the luck to locate your watch or diamond when you attempt to redeem it you will find that its value has soared tremendously. You may have to pay something approximating the original purchase price before you may regain possession of it.

Memories Become Hazy.

If you object to this procedure and explain that you meant the trinket to be merely a security for a loan, you will be emphatically told that the arrangement was entirely different. They bought the watch, they will say, and had every legal right to sell it if they so desired. If you remind them of an agreement of theirs to retain the articles until the redemption date, their memories become very hazy.

These business houses, if one may dignify them by the name, are spread throughout the city. But most of them are clustered on Seventh, Ninth and Eleventh streets, between Pennsylvania avenue and F street, and on D and E streets, between Seventh and Eleventh streets.

Some time you may be walking down one of these thoroughfares, near this particular business mart. Rows of suits are strung in front of the store and leather goods clutter the sidewalk.

Will Take Anything.

Then, if you feel as though an arm is being yanked from its socket and you pass through a mental convulsion in which dollars and cents and the great value you are receiving seem predominant, and finally you find yourself back on the sidewalk outfitted in an ill-fitting suit, you will know that you have been in a Capital pawn shop.

These dealers will offer to take from the prospective patron anything that an individual may use or wear, with the possible exceptions of false teeth and artificial limbs.

The shops are generally brilliantly lighted and gorged with household appliances, musical instruments, dice, jewelry, guns, scientific instruments, clothes, old coins, roulette wheels, &c.

Golf Courses Missing.

The only utility which the observer failed to find was a second-hand miniature golf course, and these have not yet fallen into disuse. Although they may be expected to be found in due time.

On the windows are generally found the three gold balls which denote a pawn shop. Merchandise is boldly

Calvin Coolidge

Says: It is no new thing to have temporary periods of economic readjustment to a new basis of production costs. While they are in progress business actively declines. When they have been completed, we have always started out from new foundations toward an era of greater prosperity.

In the past 25 years our population increased about 50 per cent and the wealth, income and productive capacity of the country increased about fourfold. The deposits in commercial and savings banks rose from about 10 billions to about 57 billions. Railroad business went from about two billions to about seven billions. Manufacturing started at about 15 billions and reached about 70 billions. During this era we had several years of depression and the great war, but the country kept moving forward.

There are projects of nation-wide organization and development in transportation, communication, waterways, highways and electric lines waiting for a little more confidence and stability. They will furnish employment for a large amount of our surplus labor and capital. A country that has been able to make such progress ought to look at temporary readjustment without undue discouragement. The permanent factors of future advance appear secure.

FIDAC PAYS TRIBUTE TO WILSON MEMORY

Tomb of World War President Decorated and Works Are Lauded.

SERVICE ENDS SESSIONS

Honor to the memory of Woodrow Wilson was paid here yesterday in both concluding events on the program of the Federation Interalliee des Anciens Combattants before the departure of its more than 200 delegates from ten nations after the eleventh annual congress.

In the name of the 9,000,000 members, Lieut. Col. Fred W. Abbot, of Great Britain, as president of Fidac, placed a wreath on the tomb of the wartime President yesterday morning in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral in the presence of a delegation representing the United States, France, Italy, Great Britain, Poland, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Portugal and Jugoslavia.

Princess Alexandrine Cantacuzene, of Roumania, as international president of Fidac Auxiliary, likewise placed on the tomb a wreath in the name of that organization.

Special services conducted by the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of Washington Cathedral, followed in the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea there. In lauding the peace activities of Woodrow Wilson, Canon Stokes eulogized the work of Fidac to maintain an everlasting spirit of brotherhood in seeking means other than conflict to settle misunderstandings.

Both Woodrow Wilson and President Hoover won the praise of Maj. J. Ludyga-Laskowspi, head of the Polish delegation of Fidac, as principal speaker at a luncheon at the Carlton Hotel, where the delegates celebrated Poland Day at the final gathering of their sojourn here.

"In the heart of every Pole a journey to America is always regarded as a pilgrimage to a national shrine," he declared. "For here lived and here died the heroes of struggles for independence of both America and Poland. And it is with a feeling of justified pride that we behold here in the Capital of the United States the statues of our heroes Kosciuszko and Pulaski, who 150 years ago fought side by side with your great liberators.

"A century and a half later, it was from these shores that Polish volunteers, forming a part of a Polish national army, departed for France to fight there for the sacred rights of

CUBS BEAT BRAVES TO GAIN ON CARDS

LEADERS IDLE FORDAY

(Associated Press.)

Only the Chicago Cubs were able to take advantage of the idleness of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals yesterday in the race for the National League pennant. The Cubs, defeating the Boston Braves, 4-2, by virtue of Gabby Hartnett's ninth-inning homer, gained a half game and took undisputed possession of second place, two and a half games behind the leaders.

Brooklyn's Robins went down to third place as Pittsburgh handed them their fifth straight defeat, 7 to 6. They now are three and one-half games behind first place and a game back of the second place Cubs, an almost hopeless post with only five games left on their schedule.

The New York Giants lost all but a mathematical chance of tying St. Louis as they split a doube-header with Cincinnati, losing the second game, 7-6, after winning the first, 6-4. They remained 4½ games behind the lead, but gained a half game on Brooklyn. The Giants must win all of their remaining three games to attain the mark of 87 victories St. Louis already has reached.

Standing of the leaders:

St. Louis	87	61	.588	...	6

Mail Pilot Saves Life As Plane Falls in Ohio

Warren, Ohio, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A. M. Banks, 29, of Lakewood, Ohio, air mail pilot, flying between Cleveland and New York, miraculously escaped death or serious injury early today when his plane crashed on the outskirts of Warren.

The ship and several sacks of mail were destroyed by fire. Banks climbed out of the cockpit just in time to save his life. He suffered burns on the legs and severe bruises.

BISHOP CANNON LEAVES BRAZIL FOR NEW YORK

Methodists Make Strict Secret of Sailing of Accused Man.

ACTION REPRESENTS CHANGE IN HIS PLANS

If Trial Is Decided Upon, Suspension Follows Until 1934.

AINSWORTH DENIES RECEIVING CHARGES

Macon Man Reveals Dallas Convention Knew of Stock Letters.

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, sailed with his wife for New York last Tuesday from the port of Santos. His departure had apparently been kept a strict secret.

In Rio de Janeiro it had been generally thought the bishop was somewhere in the interior of Brazil on a trip of study and exploration. He was reported at Sao Paulo last week to have left for the interior with an indefinite destination.

No mention was made of his departure by members of the Methodist Church in Brazil. Church leaders today were unwilling to confirm where the bishop had gone, merely stating "he is on the high seas."

Not Campaign Factor.

Bishop Cannon, when interviewed by the Associated Press correspondent on August 10, declared his intention of remaining in Brazil until late in October in connection with church organization work.

He expected to return to the United States only about the middle of November and said his work in Brazil would prevent him from taking part in the autumn political campaign at home.

He said he would not be a factor in the preelection campaign.

In August he presided over the first of three conferences for working out a scheme for separation of the Brazilian Methodists from the parent body in the United States and constructing an autonomous Methodist Church of Brazil.

Was on Honeymoon.

Then he went to Sao Paulo, where he presided over a second conference. He planned to do the same at a third conference in southern Brazil and then at a general conference here late in October.

He came to Brazil on his honeymoon, having married his former secretary, Mrs. Helen McCallum, in London in July.

The couple sailed from Santos aboard the liner American Legion. Church authorities kept the closest silence about the reasons for the bishop's changing his plans and hurriedly leaving Brazil.

Would Be Suspended.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., who emerged unscathed by the fire of an official church investigation last May in Dallas, must face a second inquiry at the hands of a committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The complaint against Bishop Cannon filed with Bishop William N. Ainsworth, of Birmingham, Ala., chairman of the College of Bishops, by four traveling elders under church rules makes an investigation mandatory.

Should a committee of twelve, which church rules require Bishop Ainsworth to call for the purpose of investigating the new charges, decide Bishop Cannon must stand trial he would be suspended until the 1934 conference when the trial would be held.

The Baltimore Sun said today the new charges comprise complaints against Bishop Cannon's personal conduct, complaints based on his par-

FURTHER QUIZ IN REDS' SALES OF WHEAT SEEN

News Trading Went On for Months Leads to Hyde Statement.

7,500,000 BUSHELS SOLD SHORT, CLAIM

Previous Figures Based on Two Weeks Are Increased.

SOVIET BREADLINES STUDY IN CONTRASTS

Chicago Board of Trade to Meet Today and Look Into Situation.

(Associated Press.)

A more extended investigation of short selling of wheat by Russia in the Chicago pit was said yesterday by Secretary Hyde to have become necessary through information from the president of the All-Russian Textile Syndicate, which placed the orders, that operations had continued for several months.

As action was awaited from the Chicago Grain Exchange on the opportunity it was extended "to clear the deck by its own voluntary action," Mr. Hyde expressed indebtedness to E. V. Belitzky, the syndicate official, for his statement Saturday night that the operations "were carried on over a period of several months."

Hitherto, he added, the department's investigation had covered only the last two weeks.

First Estimate Wrong.

In a formal statement the Cabinet member quoted Belitzky as saying, "Mr. Hyde's estimate of 5,000,000 bushels as the amount of Soviet Russia's short sales is a little exaggerated."

"That estimate was obtained from Mr. Belitzky's own company," Hyde continued. "It has proved to be, as he says, incorrect. Our investigations already show that, on four days, short sales by the Soviet government, through three brokers, amounted to over 7,500,000 bushels of wheat. Thus, actual sales already uncovered, overrun Mr. Belitzky's estimate by a little over 50 per cent.

"It is strange that the president of the all-Russian textile syndicate does not know within 2,500,000 bushels how much wheat he has actually sold."

Two Weeks Previously Claimed.

The syndicate had assured the Department previously, he added, that its sales were confined to the last two weeks and that the check-up had covered only that period. Hyde denied Belitzky's statement that the sales could not have appreciably affected the trend of prices on the Chicago market because of the turnover of from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels a day.

"The answer is found in the course of prices during the four days covered by the sales so far identified," Mr. Hyde said. "Those four days are September 8, 9, 10, 11. On September 8 May wheat opened on Chicago at 99⅛, or 1½ cents above the previous close. The price dropped during the day and closed at 96½, or on the bottom and down 2⅜ cents. During the four days the market on May wheat dropped from the opening of 99⅛ to the close on September 11 at 94½, a decline of 5 cents. Comparable declines were registered in all the other wheat futures.

"The sales by Soviet Russia were probably not responsible for all of this drop. I do say that such sales, added to the other bear factors, contributed greatly to a bear psychology which depressed the market. It is evident that something was depressing a market which was trying to rise.

Several Unusual Aspects.

"This whole matter presents several unusual aspects. Here is a foreign government selling wheat short in a

GRAND JURY'S ATTACK ON AGENTS IN NORRIS CASE LAID TO TUTTLE

Coast Dry Officials Freed in Bribe Trial

Lyle and Aids Acquitted; Vindication of Jones Seen in Verdict.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Less than six hours and a half of jury deliberation on six weeks' testimony has resulted in acquittal for Roy C. Lyle, suspended prohibition administrator, and three former assistants, all charged with conspiracy and accepting bribes.

The Federal jury reached its verdict late last night. It was read to a courtroom nearly filled with friends of the defendants, Lyle, William Whitney, his assistant; Earl Corwin, and R. L. Fryant, former dry agents.

They were charged with accepting bribes from rumrunners in a conspiracy to permit wholesale importations of liquor into western Washington. There were no demonstrations when the verdict was read, but the defendants and their wives were quickly surrounded by men and women who wept unabashed as they tendered congratulations.

Another indictment is still outstanding against Whitney, charging him with perjury in another liquor trial. It was considered possible this case might be dismissed.

The trial was the longest ever held in Federal court here. It culminated

ACCUSED MAN FIRST TO GIVE TESTIMONY

PUBLIC INDIGNATION STIRRED BY DIPLOMAT

Proceedings, Finally Removed to Philadelphia, Won on Technicality.

Fifteenth of a series of articles by the former prohibition administrator of the Eastern New York district.

By MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.

The Alfred E. Norris case attained nation-wide attention because it was carried to the United States Supreme Court, which upheld the $200 fine imposed in Philadelphia against Mr. Norris, a New York broker, for conspiring to transport liquor which was shipped to him by Joel Kerper, Philadelphia society bootlegger, who was sent to Atlanta for eighteen months.

This case was made by my men, but was taken to Philadelphia for trial because of the attitude of United States Attorney Tuttle and especially of his assistant in charge of prohibition cases, Robert B. Watts, who permitted Mr. Norris to go before the grand jury and get in his word first, so that the investigators came near being indicted instead of the defendant. And the agents had no knowledge that such a job was being put up on them.

Norris Accused Agents.

For Mr. Norris charged that the agents had been drunk and discourteous which my investigations quite disproved; but through the newspapers Mr. Norris had built up such a strong public sentiment against the case that the politicians in the United States attorney's office quite naturally did not support the Government.

My position, on the contrary, was unpopular in a wet community, since it involved the arrest of a man who bought liquor for his own use. The Supreme Court upheld Norris' fine on a technicality, because he had pleaded nolo contendere, on the same day that it held that the actual purchase of liquor was not illegal. It did not rule on the law involved. I still maintain that if it is not conspiracy to transport liquor, when one orders a case sent by express, it is not conspiracy to order a thousand cases.

Liquor in Package.

At any rate, in January, 1928, my express shipment section reported that a number of express packages were being sent from Philadelphia to A. E. Norris, 55 East Seventy-second street, New York City. On February 3, in cooperation with agents of the American Railway Express Co., these investigators intercepted a package from the Penn Supply Co., 136 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, addressed to Norris. The package was opened and found to contain six bottles of grenadine. Again, in cooperation with agents of the express company, my agents arranged to assist in the

100-MILE WINDS RAGING

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Equinoctial gales, reaching at some points a velocity of 80 to 100 miles an hour, tonight continued to sweep the French Atlantic seaboard and channel coast.

The winds, which had been blowing furiously for 72 hours, showed no signs of abating. They drove before them to refuge in ports nearly 40 ships and took the lives of at least nine sailors and of a woman and a baby.

Seventeen ships had taken refuge this evening in Cherbourg Roads, twelve were sheltered at Brest and seven more at Lorient, on the south coast of Brittany.

Many of these craft had lost their rigging or other bridges, swept away by wind and heavy seas.

The Greek steamer Theodorus Bulgaris, 2,767 tons, which sailed from Istanbul on August 11, was abandoned and left drifting in latitude 46.45 north, longitude 6.40 west, straight in the path of ships plying between channel ports and Gibraltar and South Africa.

Two of her crew were drowned before the steamer British Advocate succeeded in taking off those on board. The French liner Rochambeau spent eleven hours standing by to be of assistance.

When the Rochambeau reached Havre today, the captain reported one of the worst storms he had encountered in his 30 years of sailing the seas.

While the Theodorus Bulgaris was left drifting in the Bay of Biscay, another freighter, the Uvivaldi, of 2,762 tons, was towed into the port

WALSH SEES CRISIS IMMINENT IN CUBA

U. S. Is Only Influence That Can Prevent Trouble, Senator Asserts.

QUICK ACTION IS URGED

(Associated Press.)

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, said in a statement last night that "what has happened recently in other South American republics would seem to be inevitable in Cuba unless the influence of our Government is exerted immediately to avert trouble."

Returning to Washington from a visit to Cuba, the Massachusetts Democrat added that the political and economic situation there is "most alarming" and that "anything is likely to happen that may bring to a climax the present uncertainty."

"Something should be done at once," he asserted, "to prevent the economic collapse and the political disturbances that seem to be inevitable unless an immediate, direct and absolute policy of action is undertaken by the present Cuban administration, by our Government or by the joint action of both."

Senator Walsh said one of the causes of the "impending crisis" is the present unstable economic condition throughout the world, but that in his opinion the "state of mind of the Cuban people is the most disturbing factor."

"The present economic tension is increased tremendously," he added, "by what appears to be widespread political unrest. Poverty and unemployment are feeding the flames of political revolt. It seems clear that we can not avoid the responsibility of assuring the Cuban people the right to exercise their basic privilege to declare who shall govern them.

"Any other course," he asserted, "places us in partnership with those Cubans who hold the people of Cuba

Hudson Bridge Dare-Devil Killed in 213-Foot Plunge

Thousands See Man, 24, Hurtle From Incomplete Span and Strike Water on Back, Breaking Spine; Manager Held on Homicide Charge.

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A stunt leap from the uncompleted Hudson River Bridge to the water 213 feet below today cost the life of Norman J. Terry, 24-year-old professional high diver and parachute jumper of Kittanning, Pa.

Thousands of motorists and pedestrians on the New York and New Jersey shores saw Terry hurtle from the dizzy height and strike the water flat on his back. He died immediately of a broken spine. Police arrested James J. Murray, 26, whom they described as Terry's manager. A technical charge of homicide was placed against him.

At first police announced the jump was conducted under the sponsorship of the New York Daily News and an unidentified motion picture concern, but the News issued a statement saying it had nothing to do with planning the jump and merely had accepted an invitation from Terry to take pictures of it.

Terry, in some unexplained way, gained entrance to the approach to the bridge, which has been closely guarded. He walked along a narrow catwalk and remained poised for a short time on a cable. Then he jumped. For perhaps 200 feet he remained in a vertical position, then his body twisted and struck the surface of the Hudson with tremendous force. A speedboat containing Murray and some friends picked him up.

The 213-foot jump was a far longer one than the famous leap by Steve Brodie from Brooklyn Bridge. Brodie fell only 135 feet before hitting the water.

Puncture Delays Hoover, Seeing Son Off to College

Flat Tire, Caused by Large Steel Staple, Is First President Has Experienced Since Start of Visits to Rapidan Camp Last Summer.

(Associated Press.)

President and Mrs. Hoover interrupted their week-end at the presidential lodge in Virginia to return to the Capital last night and put their son Allan on the train for Harvard University, where he is a graduate student in the School of Business Administration.

For the first time since the Chief Executive began his trips to the Rapidan River early last summer, a punctured tire halted him on the road. A short distance outside of Culpeper, Va., about 70 miles from Washington, his right front tire picked up a large steel staple while he was traveling about 45 miles an hour, but Francis H Robinson, the veteran chauffeur of Presidents since Taft's administration, brought the car to a stop safely.

Declining to change into the car of Lawrence Richey, his secretary, the President sat in the hot sun while the tire was changed.

He was accompanied on the return trip by Ambassador Hugh Gibson, American Envoy to Belgium, Mrs. Hoover and Allan.

They left behind Herbert Hoover, jr., who was somewhat improved after a week of relaxation. Regular hours and long periods spent in the sunshine were said to have benefited his health and he had acquired a coat of sunburn. He is recuperating at the camp from a minor illness.

Ambassador Gibson is to remain as a White House guest until today, when he will continue his trip to the West, where his mother died recently. White House attaches refused to comment on the subject of Mr. Gibson's visit with the President.

delivery, and one of my investigators, impersonating an express agent, delivered a package to the address specified. The package was received and signed for by the maid, Molly Argus, who told the investigator to put it in the dining room.

Daughter Told of Seizure.

The investigator then asked the maid if Mr. Norris were at home, and she said he was not, but his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Alevra, Roumanian citizens, were residing there. The investigator asked to see Mrs. Alevra, and when she entered the dining room he informed her that he had seized the shipment of liquor sent to her father. A few minutes later Alevra entered the room and told the investigators, now two in number, that Mr. Norris would be up from his office in 20 minutes.

In due course Mr. Norris arrived, accompanied by Edward S. More, his associate in the brokerage firm of Parrish & Co., 25 Broadway. Mr. Norris admitted he had ordered this case of liquor, was informed that it had been seized, and was requested to come to the prohibition office at 1 Park avenue for further investigation.

The investigators, Marsini and Jones, then took the maid, Molly Argus, and the case of liquor in a Government car to 1 Park avenue. Norris, Alevra and More followed in another car. All went before Investigator Rayme W. Finch, who was in charge of this express shipments section. In this interview it developed that Alvera was in the United States on a Roumanian diplomatic passport, being on six months' leave, during which he was conducting a tourists' agency for Roumanian subjects.

During this interview Mr. Norris indicated that he might be willing to disclose the name and address of the shipper of the case of liquor. Following this, Norris, Alevra and the maid were released.

Says Norris Refused to Aid.

Three days later, pursuant to arrangements made, Investigators Marsini and Jones went to the office of Parrish & Co. and there saw Mr. Norris and Mr. More for the purpose of obtaining the name of the shipper. The investigators were informed that Norris would not divulge the information until he had interviewed a personal friend and lawyer, A. Bruce Bielaski, whom he said he was retaining for legal advice. (Bielaski will be remembered as the prohibition investigator who ran that Government speakeasy, the Bridge Whist Club.) The investigators further reported that Norris finally refused absolutely to give the Government any assistance and told the agents to get the hell out of his office and stay out, and that if he were a younger man he would throw them out.

This case attained wide publicity, for immediately thereafter Norris and Alevra charged Investigators Marsini and Jones with being intoxicated and discourteous, and brutally treating both the maid, Molly Argus, and Mrs. Alevra. It was said Mrs. Alevra was made ill. (She went to the opera the following night.) Since Alevra had claimed to be in the Roumanian diplomatic service, I made an appointment and went to see Dr. Cretziano, the Roumanian Minister, who happened to be at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. The newspapers reported that I apologized for the actions of my agents. Actually I expressed regret for any inconvenience the minister might have incurred, and further regret that any citizen of Roumania had been inconvenienced, if such should prove the fact. His excellency told me he had sent an affidavit to the State Department, but that the affidavit contained no allegation that the agents were intoxicated, displayed revolvers, or were in any way discourteous.

Public Sentiment Against Agents.

My own investigators disclosed that Marsini and Jones were not intoxicated, a fact vouched for by those they came in contact with immediately afterward. It was also proved that they did not have revolvers in their possession at the time, and they maintained that they were not at any time discourteous and made no search of the premises.

The public sentiment was built up against them anyway. For under this prohibition law, which public sentiment resents, you have a strange situation in which the public is ready and anxious to believe anything derogatory about the agents its taxes pay to enforce the law. What I will now tell did not get into the newspapers at all.

On Tuesday, February 14, I telephoned Assistant United States Attorney Watts, and he offered to prosecute the case in any way I saw fit. It was arranged that the case should be presented to the grand jury February 20.

On the afternoon of February 20 my chief investigator, James J. Donovan, returned from the Federal Building with the amazing news that Norris had been called into the grand jury room by Watts before my investigators had been heard and that Watts had then come out of the grand jury room, leaving Norris there alone with the jurors. Mrs. Alvera was also taken into the grand jury room before my investigators were allowed to testify.

Telephoned to Watts.

And all this time my investigators thought they had been called upon to testify before the grand jury in order that an indictment might be secured against Norris.

I got Watts on the telephone and he told me the grand jury was investigating this case. He said the grand jury had ordered him to produce Norris on subpena and then had ordered him out of the room. He said he had been fighting the grand jury all day and was trying to get an appointment with Judge Knox to lay the matter before him.

Donovan further informed me that when he went into Mr. Watts' office before the grand jury investigation he found Watts in conference with Bielaski.

The whole situation looked very fishy to me, especially because my investigators had not been informed that this was a grand jury investigation of themselves and not an indictment of Norris. I could not understand why Watts had permitted Norris to go into the grand jury room first, nor could I understand why he had permitted himself to be ordered out, when the United States attorney is supposed to have control of the presentation of any case.

ACTS CRITICIZED

ROBERT B. WATTS,
Assistant United States district attorney in New York.

Confers With Judge Knox.

Tuttle made an appointment for us with Judge Knox, and before this conference the next morning Watts told me that the grand jury was on a rampage, repeated what he had said the night before, and added that even the stenographers had been excluded from the grand jury room when Norris and Mrs. Alevra had been examined. I told him frankly that an injustice had been done my men in not informing them that they were being investigated. Watts told me later in Tuttle's office that the grand jury had just informed him that it did not respect his interpretation of the law and wisdom and had requested that Bielaski, the attorney for Norris, be allowed to instruct them with regard to the right of search.

Judge Knox took especial interest when told that the jury had insisted on seeing Norris first and had ordered Watts from the room. Tuttle told him the grand jury would probably make a presentment, and after some discussion Judge Knox said our best course was to let the witnesses go before the grand jury. If any attempt was made to order Watts from the room again, he said to let him know. Further, he said that if the grand jury attempted to make a presentment it must come before the court, and if necessary, he would suppress it. Judge Knox said the grand jury must understand it had no right to present an arraignment of the prohibition law or to discredit an administrative official. Watts was instructed to tell the grand jury this.

Refused to Indict Norris.

Later Watts reported that he was holding a firm hand and had got the grand jury pretty well under control, and that he had asked for an indictment of Norris. I said that even if Norris were not indicted we could get a John Doe indictment against the party in Philadelphia; but Watts said that would be no good unless we could find the shipper.

On Thursday, February 23, at about 12:30 p. m., Watts telephoned me that the grand jury had refused to return a true bill against Norris and further that they had tried to indict the two agents for perjury and then for misconduct, both of which he said he told them they could not do. He said they then wanted to make a presentment and he told them Judge Knox would not consider that. Finally the grand jury had decided they would like to tell me about this matter. I consented to come.

I informed Washington about the situation and later in the afternoon conferred with Tuttle and Watts. They proposed that we give immunity to Norris by calling him to testify before the grand jury so that we might get the shipper in Philadelphia. I was very angry and told them that if that was their attitude, I was through and I would not consent to having immunity given to Norris. I told them I was still working on the case, with men in Philadelphia, and hoped to make out a consipracy. Tuttle said that the mere sale of liquor from one individual to another was not a conspiracy, but I told them there was much more to this case than that.

Expressmen Not Called.

I emphasized that the expressmen who were with the agent when the delivery was made had not been called before the grand jury and that they could have supported the agents' testimony as to their conduct.

The following day I went before the grand jury. The foreman stated that Investigators Jones and Marsini in the "raid" on the Norris apartment had acted in a reprehensible manner and that in his opinion they should be disciplined. I asked for specific charges, but he did not care to go into details. I thanked the grand jury for their interest, stated that my investigation had not revealed anything reprehensible on the part of the agents, and that I felt the grand jurors had been imposed upon in the evidence presented to them.

In a conference with Tuttle and Watts later, Tuttle agreed to present the matter to the next grand jury and ask for an indictment of Norris. But Mrs. Willebrandt suggested taking the case over to Philadelphia, which was surely agreeable to me.

In cooperation with Administrator Wynne in Philadelphia, and under my direction, Investigators Finch and Pettite did some remarkable detective work, traced more than a dozen shipments of liquor from Kerper to Norris and obtained convictions.

Affidavit on Jury's Action.

I have an affidavit executed by Finch regarding a conversation he had with the foreman of the New York grand jury which heard this case, Frederick Gehrung, 31 Hamilton Terrace, New York City. Mr. Finch swears that in Philadelphia on December 18, 1928, Mr. Gehrung stated to him:

"1. That the hearing of witnesses, including Norris, in February, 1928, by the Federal grand jury in New York grew out of instructions received from the United States Attorney's office in New York City to inquire into the whole matter with a view to indicting the prohibition agents associated in the Norris case.

"2. That Norris was not sworn before making his statement to the grand jury.

"3. That Norris did not sign any waiver of immunity before testifying before the grand jury.

"4. That the grand jurors for the most part were strongly in favor of indicting the prohibition agent who was associated in the Norris case, although he—Mr. Gehrung—knew the jury had no right to do so, and that it was only after the jury had balloted four or five times that the jury cooled off and decided to call Mr. Campbell down and tell him what the jury thought of his agents and their actions."

POLICE HUNT BRIBER IN AGENT'S SLAYING

GANG QUARTERS FOUND

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 21 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—A tip to Prosecutor Abe David that Michael Duffy, said to be a well-known Philadelphia underworld character, was the beer runner who tried to bribe John Finello, prohibition agent, with $10,000 recenty, made Duffy today the chief object of police search for the slayers of Finiello.

The prohibition agent was killed last Friday when a gang of gunmen attacked him and six other Federal agents who were raiding the Rising Sun brewery in Elizabeth. It was then disclosed that Finiello had pretended to accept a $10,000 bribe last May to keep away from a brewery at Egg Harbor.

He had then taken the money to his superior, the then Administrator Samuel O. Wynne, at Philadelphia, and the Egg Harbor brewery was raided almost immediately afterward.

Innkeeper Held Gunman.

Prosecutor David today revealed that Duffy was connected with the Egg Harbor brewing concern. He also wants to question Duffy about a man known only as "Mike," who used Agent Gaston's body as a shield for himself while the gunmen were firing on the agents last Friday. It was "Mike" also, county authorities claim, who said, "That's Finiello. Give it to him," just before the gangsters turned their guns on the agent.

Police were also searching today for William (Blondy) Wallace, Philadelphia and Camden gangster, known as a South Jersey beer runner, and for Vincent Liotta, president of the newy formed corporation which was operating the Rising Sun Brewery. In the meantime, Nicholas Delmore, proprietor of the Maple Grove Inn, wanted from the start for questioning, but still at large, has been positively identified as one of the gunmen, Prosecutor David charged.

Several of the agents attacked claim that Delmore was the leader of the gangsters, the prosecutor said.

Several Women In Gang.

Liotta is thought to have had no part in the murder, according to the prosecutor, but he headed the Oneida Co., which leased the Rising Sun Brewery last March from the Rising Sun Brewery Co., which had formerly operated it. The articles of incorporation of the new concern showed that it was to manufacture food products from grain.

Search of the watch tower for the brewery, found in a five-room apartment directly across the street, brought to light today a copy of the articles of incorporation and the fact that two of the three telephones installed in the apartment were direct lines to the brewery.

The apartment at 61 Seventh street was rented some time ago to a man and woman. The $35 monthly rental had been promptly paid, the superintendent said, and no complaint had been received about the inmates. Police say the members of the gang not only used the apartment to which the brewery, of which it commanded a perfect view, but also used it as sleeping quarters. It contained two bedrooms fully furnished. The authorities also say there were several women members of the gang. The actual gunmen in the brewery attack are now thought to have been but three in number, instead of the twelve first reported.

DRY AGENT SLAIN IN BREWERY

PACIFIC COAST DRY OFFICIALS ARE ACQUITTED IN BRIBE TRIAL

four years of investigation of the prohibition office by Department of Justice agents. Much of the Government testimony against the defendants was given by convicted bootleggers and rumrunners.

Judge Frank Norcross, visiting jurist from Nevada, yesterday charged the jury to disregard "any evidence the defendants were too zealous" in the performance of their duties.

The judge also instructed the jury that testimony of many Government witnesses should "be viewed with suspicion," because of possible animus on the part of the witnesses who were sent to prison by the defendants on bootlegging charges.

$100,000 Bribe Claimed.

The Government based its case largely upon testimony of Alfred M. Hubbard, who operated in a dual role of rumrunner and undercover dry agent. He testified he collected more than $100,000 from Roy Olmsted, former Northwest liquor baron, and other rumrunners, which, he said he turned over to the prohibition agents to obtain protection for liquor dealers.

Olmstead, now serving a term in McNeil Island Penitentiary for liquor running, was one of several convicted bootleggers and former Federal agents who testified for the Government.

The defendants denied all the allegations of prosecution witnesses and testified they had seemingly allowed rumrunners to operate because they were waiting to trap the larger operators in western Washington.

Former Attorney Dismissed.

Clifford T. McKinney, former assistant United States attorney, who conducted the prosecution of Olmstead and other liquor law violators, was indicted with other defendants but dismissed under a directed verdict at the close of the Government's case.

Immediate reinstatement of Lyle, Whitney and Corwin was urged today by the Rev. Dr. J. Ralph Magee, State superintendent of the Antisaloon League. Fryant resigned several months before the charges were filed. Lyle said possibly the most important result of the trial was a complete vindication of Senator Wesley L. Jones.

Lyle was an appointee of Jones and the senator's name was frequently brought into the trial. Jones finally appeared as a defense witness to deny charges bootleggers had contributed to his campaign fund in 1926, as several prosecution witnesses had testified.

Incendiary Sought As School Blazes

Rockefeller Estate Guarded After Flames Threaten Tarrytown Homes.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Extra details of police and firemen patroled the streets tonight in an effort to apprehend an incendiary who kindled fires in the Highland Manor Girls' School, two residences and a garages early today.

Additional guards were posted at the estate of John D. Rockefeller, jr., on the outskirts of the town. Many citizens kept vigils over their homes.

The first fire was discovered at 2:40 a. m. in the home of Vincent Ceccolini, a real estate dealer. The occupants barely escaped. Then minutes later the school building was found to be ablaze, but there were no pupils in the dormitory at the time. At 4 o'clock the porch of the second residence caught fire, and twenty minutes afterward the garage was in flames.

MRS. CRATER FACES QUESTIONING TODAY

Wife of Missing Justice to Be Grilled in Maine by County Attorney.

NEW STORY IS RUMORED

New York, Sept. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—For the first time since the disappearance of her husband, Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater, who dropped out of sight in such startling fashion on August 6, Mrs. Stella Crater, the justice's wife, will be questioned tomorrow by a State official.

Acting on the request of District Attorney Crain, who charged her with "impeding justice" when she refused to come here for the grand jury investigation, which will be resumed tomorrow morning, County Attorney Frank E. Southard, of Kennebec County, Me., announced he would interrogate Mrs. Crater tomorrow.

The examination, which is expected to throw light on the unexplored angles of the case, will be conducted either at Mrs. Crater's camp in Belgrade Lakes, or, if she prefers, in the nearby capital, Augusta, Me.

With New York police without a clew and little likelihood of any being furnished by the grand jury inquiry which at tomorrow's session is expected to include Senator Robert F. Wagner as a witness, a strange story emanated from Belgrade Lakes today—a story which, besides increasing this mystery, would have Crater very much alive within recent weeks.

The story, which is being investigated by State highway police of Kennebec County, and may result in two persons being questioned tomorrow by the Maine authorities, has it that Justice Crater was "found" late in August, after a frantic search by the jurist's wife which is alleged to have begun about August 17.

If Ms. Crater consents to the scheduled interview, the Maine county attorney is expected to ask her to name the "intimate social friends" of the justice—a question which she failed to answer and left blank in the questionnaire recentlyl mailed her by the New York district attorney.

Friends of Justice and Mrs. Crater explained today the wife merely wished to spare her acquaintances the embarrassment which publication of their identities would necessarily entail. She does not subscribe to the police theory that there is any "other woman" in the case and is said to believe firmly in her husband's loyalty.

Edison Sees Autogiro Fly; Hails It as Great Advance

"That's the Answer," Inventor Cries, as Aero Lands Vertically for Him as He Visits Field to Study "Windmill Plane."

Newark, N. J., Sept. 21 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—It begins to look as if Thomas A. Edison is turning into a real aviation fan.

Today, for the second time in four days, he paid a visit to the Newark Airport—this time to see an autogiro, or "windmill plane," perform. He was amazed at the ability of the weird-looking machine to rise and descend in almost vertical flight and inspected it with enthusiasm, firing questions at the pilot with a rapidity that nearly gave that individual writer's cramp jotting down answers for the deaf wizard of East Orange, N. J.

"By gosh!" he exclaimed, after James G. Ray, of the Pitcairn-Cierva Autogiro Co., had brought the "windmill plane" down to landing in which his wheels did not so much as turn over once. "You have them now so that they'll do anything except chew tobacco!"

Mr. Edison couldn't believe his eyes or thought that the landing he had witnessed must have been a lucky fluke. He asked Ray, who had brought the autogiro here from Philadelphia because the aged inventor had expressed a desire to see it in action, whether he would mind taking it up again. Ray grinned, took off and repeated his amazing vertical descent from a height of 500 feet above the field.

"That's the answer, that's the answer!" Mr. Edison exclaimed. "That's the kind of planes we've got to have."

While Ray was in the air the white-haired inventor plied Don Rice, of the Pitcairn-Cierva organization with questions about the theory of the autogiro.

When Ray landed, Mr. Edison made a detailed inspection of the machine with him, popping question after question, snatching the scribbled answers eagerly and nodding his head as his quick mind absorbed Ray's explanations.

"Ah!" he said, taking hold of the tip of one of the four fanlike blades of the autogiro, "Flexible! That's the trick. That's the only way to avoid gyroscopic action."

This phase of the autogiro's performance had seemed to puzzle him while it was in flight with the vanes rotating like a windmill in a horizontal position above the body of the machine. But when he discovered the revolving blades not only were flexible but hinged at their base so that centrifugal force alone prevents their folding up like an umbrella turned inside out by a gale and dropping the autogiro, he realized how it was possible for the "windmill plane" to maneuver without the slightest interference from gyroscopic forces.

He was greatly surprised to learn that 95 per cent of the load carried by the autogiro is borne by these revolving vanes and only 5 per cent by the narrow monoplane wing that carries the ailerons and acts mainly as a stabilizing device. He was equally astonished to learn that Ray's ship has a high speed of 125 miles an hour.

"A tremendous advance, it seems to me," Mr. Edison replied.

FIRE IN ALEXANDRIA CAUSES $700 LOSS

Four Fighters Overcome by Fumes of Ammonia in Creamery Blaze.

BREAKFAST IS PLANNED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A fire at the U. S. Creamery, on North St. Asaph street, yesterday caused damage estimated at $700, and four firemen were overcome by ammonia fumes.

The creamery was recently purchased by W. E. Bowman, who also conducts an acetylene welding business nearby. Mr. Bowman yesterday afternoon was on the roof of the creamery building doing some welding, when sparks from the apparatus he was using set fire to some grass, and before he noticed the fire it had spread to the one-story frame building. No. 4 engine company responded to the alarm, and a second alarm brought out the rest of the fire department.

The rescue squad of Engine Co. No. 2, Potomac, also responded, and found work for them when four firefighters were overcome by ammonia fumes. The four men were Henry Metzger, Paul Posey and James Deeton, of No. 4 company, and Raymond Haynes, a volunteer not attached to any company. They were all treated on the ground and were able to go to their homes.

The rescue squad, which has been well trained, has on several occasions demonstrated its value and efficiency, and is now considered an important adjunct to the local fire department.

Miss Rietta Butler, emblem chairman for the local Business and Professional Women's Club, will have charge of the program next Sunday morning, September 28, when the annual emblem breakfast, a part of the federation program outlined, will be held at the George Mason Hotel, promptly at 8 o'clock, to avoid any conflict with Sunday school hours.

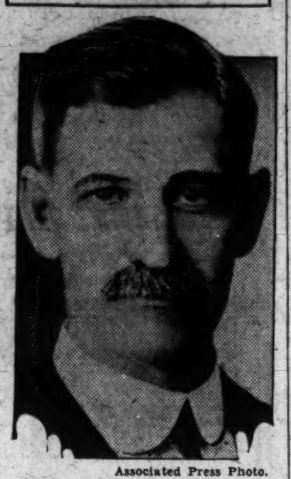

Miss Elizabeth Foster, of Norfolk, past president of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, who held that office at the time the State convention was entertained by the Alexandria club, will be the speaker for the event. Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president of the local club, will preside.

The funeral of George Washington Nicholson, 71, who died Saturday in the Alexandria Hospital, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow at his home, 912 Prince street. It will be conducted by the Rev. E. R. Spencer, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Members of Samarian Rebekah Lodge, Odd Fellows, who will make the trip to Clarendon this evening to attend the seventy-ninth annual Rebekah assembly, will meet at the home of Mrs. Emma Fearston at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Roland Goode will reopen her kindergarten classes this morning at her home at North Braddock, after a visit to New York in the interest of improved kindergarten methods.

liberty and justice as brothers-in-arms of their French comrades and of the valiant doughboys of your great Gen. Pershing.

"And what Pole does not recall the tales of heroism of American aviators of the Kosciuszko Squadron who fought in the defense of Lwow, an ancient Polish city, against barbarian onslaught?

"Thus we see that our brotherhood-in-arms did not begin yesterday. It has lasted for 150 years. And after the ordeals of war the friendship sealed by the lives of our heroes on the battlefields has survived. Your illustrious President Wilson made the restoration of independent Poland, with a free outlet to the sea, a condition of peace.

"And when on the heels of battle came the ravages of famine and misery, another son of your country came as the great Samaritan to give food to the hungry, to tender aid to the widows and children of those who had gone never to return. That man whose name is engraved deep in the heart of every Polish man, woman and child, also won for himself the highest honor in his own country, whose destiny he is now guiding as President."

Short talks also were made at the luncheon by Maj. Julius I. Peyser, head of American Fidac, who acted as chairman, and Mme. Julie Mazaraki, of the Polish Fidac Auxiliary.

Departing early in the afternoon, the delegates proceeded by special train to Annapolis, where they viewed the Naval Academy and proceeded to Baltimore for a ten-minute layover before continuing their journey to Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind., en route to Culver, Ind., where on Tuesday they will elect officers and select the 1931 meeting place.

MAN KILLED IN LEAP OFF HUDSON BRIDGE

Leaping from high places was only one of many stunts in Terry's repertoire. He had disported himself on the wings of airplanes high in the air, hopped from one plane to another, and walked a tight rope from one skyscraper to another.

One of his most recent thrillers took place in Chicago a few months ago when he landed without a parachute from an airplane going at a high speed. Terry hung by his hands from the plane's undercarriage and allowed it to swoop within 10 feet of the ground, while he dropped off and successfully landed in base-sliding fashion. In Chicago a few weeks ago he also walked a slack wire 500 feet in the air from the Carbon & Carbide Building to the Mather Tower.

Petitions requesting the circuit court to call an election on the question, to be held at the regular November election, are already widely circulated throughout the county and it is anticipated that they will be presented to Judge Walter T. McCarthy within the next few days.

After several months of study, committees of the Arlington County Civic Federation, the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington County Bar Association were unanimous in recommending that the county manager form should be adopted and that the five members of the governing board should be elected at large. Fields will have his men at each of the buildings during the opening and closing hours and motorists are warned that all speed laws must be recognized.

Consideration of a plan whereby the county board of supervisors can finance extension of mains to provide water for sections where wells have gone dry as result of the continued drought will be the principal business to come before the board at its special meeting today at 10 o'clock.

According to Engineer C. L. Kinnier, it is possible the board will award the contract for surfacing of Wilson boulevard to theh center of Clarendon, nad resurfacing of North and South Clarendon avenue, Garrison road and Washington avenue for a distance of one block. The Bible study class of the Presbyterian Church at Herndon will meet this evening in the church. Mrs. William Eads Miller will act as leader.

If they fail in this the association plans to assess the member companies a pro rata share of the premium of such insurance. The premium for a blanket policy covering 25 men would be approximately $300.

The association also plans to inquire of Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr if it would be possible to appoint a special officer in each of the five member companies to handle traffic and right of way matters at fire alarms. Such a provision is at present included in the State code, but this must be approved by the local board of supervisors before it would be effective in the county. Such officers would wear the regulation police badges.

10 PERISH AS GALES LASH FRENCH COAST of Brest, waterlogged. It was salvaged by the ocean-going tug Iroise.

The British steamer Illingsworth reached Havre Roads today with her flag at half-mast. Her third engineer had been swept off the deck by a wave in the Bay of Biscay Saturday.

The trawler Notre Dame docked at Boulogne with two survivors of the Dutch schooner Fouxhod, which sank in the channel yesterday. The master of the Fouxhod, his wife and their 2-year-old baby perished.

A cabin boy whose name was given as Urvoy was killed aboard the American freighter Oregon when a steel cable snapped while the ship was drifting away from the breakwater at Havre.

London, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A gale that had whipped the channel and the southwestern coasts of England for 24 hours largely blew itself out during the night and today. Reports of damage to shipping, however, continued to reach London.

The steamer Chesham, 4,295 tons, from the River Plate with a cargo of maize, asked for assistance off the Western Coast of Ireland. She was lying helpless with her steering gear smashed.

The steamer Umberleigh, 2,919 tons, which went ashore on the rocks near Plymouth, has been refloated but is badly damaged.

The liner Montcalm, bound from southampton to Quebec, Canada, felt the full force of the channel gale, but halted for several hours to play her searchlights on the Umberleigh until another ship came up to the rescue.

The Montcalm reached Cobh, Irish Free State, fifteen hours behind schedule.

The Italian Steamer Tuscania, 4,425 tons, whose wireless calls for help off the French coast Friday night caused great excitement in shipping circles, was safely towed into the port of Falmouth by a German tug.

Soviet's Fiscal Year Will Start January 1

Moscow, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The central executive committee today decreed that the Soviet fiscal year shal begin on January 1, instead of October 1, the date of the revolution. Since the Soviet obtained control all dates have been based on the revolutionary day—this, for example, is the thirteenth year of Lenin. The change apparently was ordered to bring conformity in the Soviet's international fiscal relations.

The third year of the five-year industralization plan and the adoption of the new state budget have accordingly been shifted to January 1.

What Interest Is.

Interest is the universal time-price, linking impending and remote satisfactions, or efforts, or both. It is literally the previously missing link necessary for a complete comparison of efforts and satisfactions at all points of time.

FOUR SMITH CO. MEN TO FACE JURY OCT. 8

Charged With Embezzling $5,000,000 and Burning Firm's Records.

NEW SUIT IS STARTED

Trial of four of the officials of the F. H. Smith Co. will be opened in the District of Columbia Supreme Court October 8 by the Department of Justice. They are charged with having embezzled $5,000,000 from the company and with concealing and burning records of the company in an effort to hide the alleged thefts.

The defendants are G. Bryan Pitts, Samuel J. Henry, C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr.

Representative Alan Goldsborough, of Maryland, and J. J. Morris, of the firm of Hastings, Stockley & Morris, of Wilmington, Del., have also filed a new suit on behalf of stockholders for receivership, it was learned yesterday. Sensational charges will be brought to light through this new action, it is claimed.

In asking for the appointment of a receiver the petition states that the Smith Co. paid the firm of Donovan & Raichle $250,000 and that this fee was out of proportion to the services rendered.

Donovan, who is a former Assistant Attorney General, represented Pitts, and the plaintiffs have complained that Pitts' interests are diametrically opposed to those of the Smith Co.

The petition alleges that the money was paid the firm in January, shortly after Pitts and several other officials of the company had been indicted in Washington on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The early date set for the hearing came as a surprise to most persons connected with the case, but it was stated that the Department of Justice is ready to proceed at this time and that attaches of the United States marshal's office have already started serving subpenas on the various witnesses.

The activities of the Smith Co., which, the Department of Justice charges, have resulted in the loss of millions of dollars to investors in this country and abroad, came first to public attention when Senator Brookhart attacked the company several years ago in a speech on the Senate floor.

In May, 1929, Pitts was indicted for perjury in the Hamilton Hotel bankruptcy case. Then the Department of Justice began an investigation of the company which has led to the later indictments and court proceedings.

Nugent Dodds, special assistant to the Attorney General, who has been instrumental in securing the three indictments against the Smith Co. officials, will probably represent the Department of Justice in the prosecution, assisted by Neil Burkinshaw, Assistant United States Attorney.

PERSONAL FINANCE MEN WILL CONVENE

Expansion Without Exposing Borrowers to Loan Sharks Is Goal.

SAGE PLAN CONSIDERED

To study ways and means for the expansion of the personal finance branch of banking without exposing borrowers to the baneful influence of loan sharks charging usurious interest rates, prominent financiers from many sections of the country are to assemble here tomorrow for the sixteenth annual convention of the American Association of Personal Finance Companies.

The convention will be held in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, where a four-day program will bring business experts, economists, sociologists and others interested in the comparatively new branch of finance, together in an effort to make borrowing easier for the man in the street.

Delegates from 25 States in which 3,500 loan companies are licensed to transact business under a plan worked out and sponsored by the Russell Sage Foundation, will discuss the operation of this form of credit. These companies last year reported business aggregating half a billion dollars.

More Territory Planned.

Measures now pending in legislatures would make the plan operative in several additional States and in the District of Columbia.

Loans made under the Sage Foundation plan are limited to $300, and the success of its operation is said to be evident from the fact that no legislation authorizing the use of the system has ever been repealed. There are, however, instances in which the law was amended.

On Wednesday morning, Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, will officially welcome the delegates. His address will be followed by that of Chester Leasure, of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Howard T. Mattingly will make the responses at this session, which will be presided over by Albert T. Snite.

To See Mount Vernon.

After a trip to Mount Vernon on Wednesday afternoon delegates will be called to order for an evening session. Edward F. Filene, well-known Boston, Mass., business man, will speak on "The Discovery of This Vast Industry" at the Thursday morning session. W. Frank Persons, executive vice president of the association, will speak on "Looking Ahead."

The convention's annual banquet will be held Thursday night at the Mayflower Hotel. The address upon that occasion will be made by Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, and DeWolf Hopper, famous comedian, will be present.

PAWN BROKERS PLY TRADE IN DISTRICT

marked "unredeemed pledges." These articles, so marked, are supposed to be jewelry which has been bought from legitimate pawnbrokers beyond the District line.

Out of sheer benevolence, you may be told, this merchandise was purchased from some pawn dealer who was hard pressed for cash. Or they may become so mercenary as to tell you that it was bought at a bargain and intend to sell it in the District for a profit. If doubt is registered, they will point to the three gold balls on the window, surmounted by the sign, "Pawnbrokers' Exchange."

The persons who man these places are invariably of the type which compels one to look around for all the exits. When the client timorously approaches the dealer and asks for money on his pawn, the dealer immediately tries to put the customer at ease.

The impression is conveyed that he wants to be of great assistance to the penurious client. They will do right by you, they will say. Sure, they will hold the article as long as you want. Don't worry, we'll "do you good." And usually the credulous pawner discovers that he has been done well. Done to the extent of a valuable piece of jewelry and perhaps some interest for good measure.

In tomorrow's installment of this series it will be shown how these dealers circumvent the District law, how pawn shops were legislated out of the District and how authorities are handicapped in the recovery of stolen goods as a consequence.

Washington Has 25,000 Persons Employed in Domestic Service

Greatest Number Are Between Ages of 25 and 44 Years.

In the merry-go-round of hiring and firing, job getting and job leaving among domestic workers in the National Capital, which threatens the security, comfort and happiness of homes here, the employment agency plays a tremendous part. While exact figures are hard to obtain, it is estimated that at least 25,000 persons, male and female, colored and white, are in domestic service in Washington. Counting the transient workers the number may be even greater than 25,000 persons.

The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor has issued interesting tables showing that upward of 3,000,000 women are engaged in domestic labor of some kind in the United States. The surveys made by the bureau show that many of these domestic workers, like other working women, have dependents, who rely on their generally scanty earnings for support and upkeep. The highest point in this service is in the groups between the ages of 25 and 44 years. From 16 to 24 women appear to go reluctantly into domestic service, while the decline is very marked after the forty-fifth year. What is true in other cities and States applies in Washington, for the most part.

Generally speaking, the married woman does not go into domestic service to the extent which she enters other occupations for gain. In the last census out of a total of more than 2,000,000 domestic workers about 600,000 were married women, while more than 1,500,00 women in domestic and personal service were either single, widowed or divorced.

Must Be Licensed.

The task of keeping such an army of workers as 25,000 in jobs is shared by numerous employment agencies in this city. In common with other public services, some of them are good, some are bad and some indifferent. The private agencies are required to have licenses and their activities are subject to official supervision, in a sense.

A round of these agencies will leave one wiser—and perhaps sadder—about the domestic situation in Washington. One thing is certain, persons with inferiority complexes should avoid many of the employment agencies in the city, whether in search of a servant or a job. For the superior persons who sit behind the desks in many of these offices often dole out scant information, comfort and information, as the case may be.

Last week a Post reporter edged her way through a rather large bloc of the unemployed at one of the higher class agencies, where mistresses and maids talk of dinner party service, afternoon tea, separate rooms, servants' baths, hairdressing and dressmaking ability, as well as a willingness to teach the children French or German between household tasks.

A half hour in the pleasant room, furnished much on the idea of a home living room, supplied much illuminating information on "agency interviews."

Imperious Official Hostess.

There was the official hostess just returned for the summer who must have servants at once, and good ones, at that, and must simply know about it "by six." While she talked to the slightly unbending goddess at the desk many applicants for the position, neat-looking maids, efficient German girls, a German man or two, a vivacious French maid and several Scandinavian workers and a venerable and capable colored cook awaited their turn to be interviewed.

Next came a flustered little bride embarked on the great quest of finding servants for the first time, and behind her pressed an experienced housewife who knew what she wanted. Their wants were similar—neatness, willingness, punctuality and no habits of absence at critical moments, and, of course, good temper, in their potential servants.

The household workers had ideals of their own to express to the employment agency emissary as well; fair and just employers, clean and decent places to sleep in or to work in if they go home at nights, proper amount of food, fair wages and good hours. All were equally anxious to know just what their duties were to be and how many there were in the family of those seeking their services.

A visit to an agency of another type revealed the fact that the housewife of average means seeking servants voices much the same requirements as the chatelaine with wealth at her disposal. When the busy Washington homemaker invokes the service of an employment agency, as a rule she wants a maid of all work, who can cook simply, knows how to clean a house, is respectful and respectable and will "show up" every day.

Same Privileges Asked.

Domestic workers answering such calls ask for practically the same privileges and rights as those who register at the higher price agencies. A real place to sleep, good food, treatment, definite hours of service, fair wages promptly paid and exact knowledge of what is expected of them. In this type of agency the seeker for work pays the fee. This same fee often covers the securing of other places if the servant is not satisfied with the first placing or the mistress quickly finds her unsatisfactory. Most of these agencies make one fee of approximately $2 cover a period of 30 days.

All agencies claim to, and many doubtless do, investigate the references of the workers they place. Some agencies refuse to place names of workers on their lists of available help if they do not possess references.

One of the busiest of the servant marts in Washington is the office of the United States Employment Service, which operates under the Department of Labor. It is at Four-and-a-Half street northwest, and thither many Washington housewives go for their maids, cooks and cleaning women. Many of these workers are colored. There is a special department devoted entirely to this class of houseworkers. Most of the white domestic workers applying to this service wish to be placed in hotels or cafes as waitresses, chambermaids and sometimes as cooks.

Many of the 61,000 applicants for positions at the United States Employment Service last year were for houseworkers, although, of course, this figure also includes those who wish hotel and similar work and clerical employment of all kinds. Of these 61,000 applicants, the service managed to place 31,000 of them in positions, many of them in households of the National Capital.

U. S. Bureau Has Fixed Scale.

While the wage scale at some of the private agencies may be a trifle higher because they claim to furnish a more specialized type of help, the United States Employment Service and the ordinary agencies have a wage scale for cooks and houseworkers ranging from $40 to $85 a month, depending on their experience and whether or not they wish to live at home. The average general houseworker makes between $40 and $50 a month, those receiving a higher scale being almost exclusively for homes where there is constant entertaining.

Quarters and food, according to employment experts, is not given much consideration in making up the wage scales. That is to say, a maid living out of the home in which she works is allowed under the prevailing system no larger wage than those who live where they work and thus save the price of sleeping quarters. Nor does this system allow for a lower scale of wages because the maid, cook, nurse or houseworker gets free sleeping quarters.

One of the interesting developments of the unemployment situation is in the willingness of houseworkers to yield to the demands of homemakers formerly willing to pay $40 or $50 a month for their servants who now want to secure them for $30 or $35 a month.

The neighboring City of Baltimore has solved part of its servant problem in what is called the Domestic Efficiency Association. Its work has attracted wide attention in this field and the Women's Bureau has published a bulletin dealing with its operations. The association was organized in 1921 for the purpose of putting domestic service on a better and more standardized basis. It is not a money-making enterprise.

Its rules, by which its members promise to abide when they join the association, are as follows:

1. Annual fee, $5.
2. Not to engage a servant who has left her former place without giving a week's notice, from any agency or any source whatever, unless under very exceptional emergency circumstances.
3. Not to tempt servants by offering higher wages to leave positions where they are already employed, unless the arrangement is made with full knowledge of present employer.
4. To give a conscientious report of a servant leaving a member's employ.
5. To endeavor not to pay exorbitant wages for incompetent service.
6. To require a full reference of every servant engaged.
7. To make a business contract with every employe according to the rules of the bureau, under which the employer will sign an agreement to give a week's notice or full pay, and the employe will also sign an agreement as to giving a week's notice, or forfeit a week's pay.
8. To do all in one's power toward consideration and fairness for employes.

A similar organization in Washington would do much to solve the employment situation here.

Task of Keeping All in Work Is That of Numerous Agencies.

(The concluding article in this series, which began yesterday, will be published tomorrow.)

Ecuadorean Army Revolt Held Near

College Students Threaten Strike; Colombia Is Told of Unrest.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—The students of Colegio Nacion today informed the government authorities they would refuse to return to their classes until the rector was dismissed. Quiet prevails in the city.

Bogota, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A high official of the Colombian government tonight asserted that a revolution engineered by the army was feared in Ecuador, neighbor republic to Peru, which underwent a revolution last month.

He said the Equadorean government's income of $9,000,000,000 was insufficient to met a budget of $12,000,000, and President Ayora had sought to reduce xpenses by cutting army apropriations. He had heard that widespread revolutionary plans were rumored throughout the army.

As Colombia and Equador broke off diplomatic relations a year ago in a dispute over the teritory of Oriente, official confirmation or denial of these reports was unavailable here. Newspaper offices were without press reports from Quito, but had heard no rumors of trouble.

Monument Honors Benedict Arnold

New York State Memorial Probably Only One for Traitor in U. S.

Haverstraw, N. Y., Sept. 20 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Probably the only monument in America celebrating treason and perpetuating the memory of America's archtraitor, Benedict Arnold, was unveiled here today.

Three boulders surmounted by a Revolutionary war cannon and bearing a tablet now mark the spot on which Arnold, then a major general in the Continental Army, met Maj. John Andre, the British spy, and arranged to sell out the American Army and turn West Point over to the English. The monument was erected by the Rockland County historical society.

Members of the society held exercises in the First Presbyterian Church here and then went to the monument, where Frank E. Stripe, New York lawyer, delivered the unveiling oration. Mr. Stripe said a mistaken impression prevails that Andre was still buried in Tappan, where he was hanged after his capture. The body, he explained, was exhumed 50 years after the Revolution and reinterred in London.

Good Foods' Largest Market

The miracle wrought by low prices

"Chain stores are of real benefit not only to the consumer, but also to the grower of foodstuffs . . . The chain store is raising the standard of food products at lower costs to the consumer."

No friend of chain stores said this. It was addressed by Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy at Cornell University, to a recent meeting of the Farmers' Marketing Conference in the University of Maryland.

Dr. Boyle, like everyone else who has studied the subject without prejudice, puts his finger on the point of vital importance to customers of A&P. They enjoy the highest standards of eating at lowest cost to themselves.

They raise the standard of food products by their steady buying of the best. So, too, their buying encourages ample supplies of the high graded food they demand and can afford to pay for in A&P stores.

That is why A&P stores are the largest market in the world for food only the few could buy if A&P did not cut the cost to the bone.

IT'S AS EASY and natural to enjoy the fragrant mildness of a Camel Cigarette as it is to admire beauty when you see it.

Camels are made, and always have been made, for discriminating smokers — the people whose keen judgment unerringly selects the best. But that doesn't mean you have to be an expert to enjoy Camels! The delicate, mellow fragrance of those choice sun-ripened tobaccos is something that anybody can appreciate. Camels are naturally smooth and mild—never parched nor insipid.

Why is there such a swing to Camels? Because more and more smokers are learning the difference between true mildness and mere flatness. Give yourself the luxury of a cigarette that's always pleasant smoking.

He was 82 years old.

Bishop Leonard, nationally noted for his devotional and philanthropic works, has been ill for more than a year. Death was caused by infirmities of old age.

Hope for his recovery was abandoned Friday night when he suffered a sinking spell. His courageous fight for life did not end however, for he regained consciousness several times before he died and seemed to be a bit brighter.

Served First in Brooklyn.

Bishop Leonard retired last spring. Previously he had presided over the Ohio diocese for more than forty years.

At dwan today it was apparent the bishop's death was only a matter of hours. He was unconscious when the end came shortly after 5 p. m. With him were his niece, Mrs. Florence Sullivan, of New York, and his lifelong friend, Canon Orville Watson, professor at Bexley Theological Seminary here.

Bishop Leonard's wife died fifteen years ago. They had no children.

Funeral arrangements were not announced tonight.

Oldest in Country.

Bishop Leonard was the oldest Episcopal Church bishop in the country, but because of advancing age and ill health declined to become permanent titular head of the church.

When Bishop John Gardner Murray died while presiding over the house of bishops at Atlantic City more than a year ago, Bishop Leonard became temporary head of the church. Bishop Boyd Vincent, of Southern Ohio, who had been consecrated bishop nine months before him, had retired the day before.

Bishop Charles F. Anderson, of Chicago, was elected presiding bishop last November 13, but died January 30, and again Bishop Leonard became the church head. He served until Bishop De Wolf Peery, of Rhode Island, was elected to the post, in March.

The bishop's first church work was as curate of Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, to which he was appointed upon his ordination as deacon. The next year, with his ordination to the priesthood, he became rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Brooklyn, which he served until 1880. In the latter year he was called to the rectorship of St. John's Church, Washington, where he remained until he went to Ohio as bishop in 1889.

Adviser of President.

During his years in Brooklyn Bishop Leonard's work extended beyond the confines of church activities. He founded the Brooklyn Free Library and was chaplain of the Homeopathic Hospital as well as of a regiment of the New York National Guard. His ten years in Washington were characterized by a vigorous administration, which attracted attention to him in church circles throughout the country. Tenders of the Episcopal office came to him from several dioceses, but they were successively declined until he accepted the call to Ohio after five unsuccessful attempts to fill the place.

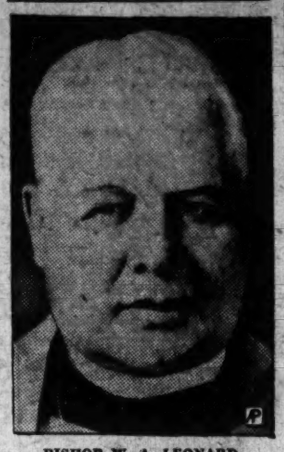

In the National Capital, Bishop Leonard was a close friend and adviser of President Chester A. Arthur. He frankly admitted that he did not want to go to Ohio, but, realizing that he had been selected as a compromise candidate, he said that in the circumstances he could see no alternative.

ticipation in buying and selling stocks for speculative purposes, and complaints based on the bishop's political activities and his participation in the handling of money for political campaign purposes.

Although Bishop Cannon was before the Dallas conference for investigation last May on two counts, based on stock speculation evidence and political activities, in neither of these inquiries was any question raised concerning the churchman's morals.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 21 (A.P.). Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, to whom complaints against Bishop James Cannon, jr., have been addressed by pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, said today he knew nothing of any complaint against Bishop Cannon except what he had read in the newspapers.

"I will have absolutely nothing to say in regard to the matter tonight," Bishop Ainsworth said, when reached by telephone at Opelika.

Complaints against Bishop Cannon have been forwarded to Bishop Ainsworth as chairman of the College of Bishops of the church.

Macon, Ga., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—George S. Jones, Macon attorney and one of the leaders in the fight against Bishop James Cannon, jr., at the general conference in Dallas, Tex., last spring, announced today for the first time he had been advised at the Dallas meeting that "certain letters existed which would reveal the Cannon stock transactions in a more definite light."

The letters at that time, Mr. Jones said he was told, were in the hands of government prosecutors in connection with a case against brokers with whom the bishop admitted "investment" transactions.

Mr. Jones said that he knew nothing as to the nature of the new charges, but that information regarding the letters was given him prior to the acquittal of Bishop Cannon by the committee, and that there was no apparent effort to get the letters from the district attorney.

SOUP COMPANY HEAD DIES AT AGE OF 57

President of Campbell Firm Succumbs at Residence in New Jersey.

FOUNDER OF BUSINESS

Camden, N. J., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. John Thompson Dorrance, president and founder of the Campbell Soup Co., and described as the originator of condensed canned soup, died of a heart ailment today at his home, Pomona Farm, Cinnaminson, N. J. He was 57.

Dr. Dorrance's life was the traditional story of American success. From a $7.50-a-week employe in his uncle's fruit and preserve factory, he rose to the head of a world-wide business organization. He was the sole owner of the Campbell Co.

He was born in Bristol, Pa., and was a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He won his Ph. D. at the University of Gottingen in 1897.

While in Germany, his associates said, he conceived the idea of making condensed, canned soup available in America. He returned to this country, joined the Campbell Fruit & Preserve Co., his uncle's firm, and in 1899 put out the first batch of canned soup. From that time the company grew rapidly in 1915, becoming the Campbell Soup Co.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ethel Mallinkrodt Dorrance, formerly of Baltimore, whom he married in 1906, five daughters, one son, two brothers and two sisters. One of the sisters is Mrs. Roy Dudley, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at Christ Church, Riverton, N. J., Wednesday morning.

One of Dr. Dorrance's sisters, Mrs. Roy Dudley, resides here at 3711 Idaho avenue northwest. She is the wife of Lieut. Comdr. Roy Dudley, U. S. N. She said that she would leave Washington, possibly today or early tomorrow, to attend the funeral services to be held Wednesday.

HYDE PLANS DEEPER INQUIRY INTO REDS' SELLING OF WHEAT

market to which it can never, under any possibility, make delivery. Freight and tariff absolutely forbid delivery.

"This, their representatives say, is a legitimate hedging operation, but they do not seem to know by 50 per cent how many bushels they are hedging.

"Not the least striking factor of these unique operations is the fact that, so far from having wheat to sell, and thus to hedge, the Russian government is rationing its people, and doling out food on food cards.

"No white bread is available to Russians except to children under 10 years of age. Industrial workers may have from one-half to three-fourths pound of rye bread per day, their children only one-fourth pound each per day. No butter is available except to children, and only one-eighth of a pound per week to them.

Policy Is Reds' Own Affair.

"It is not my province to pass judgment upon policies of foreign governments. If they elect to sell wheat abroad at a time when they find it necessary to ration their own people, and to shoot men for forging food cards, that is their business. Nor, is it within my power to discern their motives in bearing American markets.

"But it is my province and my duty to expose such transactions and to insist that American institutions be so regulated as to make such transactions impossible. I hope the futures exchange of this country, on their own initiative, will have sufficient foresight and public spirit to make such changes in their rules as may be necessary."

The Secretary may confer with officials of the Chicago Board of Trade some time this week. He left Washington yesterday afternoon for Ann Arbor, Mich., wit this daughter, Caroline, who will matriculate at the University of Michigan. He was considering making his return trip through Chicago.

Board of Trade to Sit Today for Wheat Quiz

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Joseph W. Badenoch, chairman of the business conduct committee of the Chicago Board of Trade, announced tonight that the board will sit at 3 p. m. tomorrow for a "thorough and careful" investigation of Russian wheat operations in the Chicago pit.

Badenoch, who returned today from a vacation in Wisconsin, said that his committee has had the situation under consideration for a week or more. He withheld comment until after the meeting.

Interest in Russian trading here was stirred Friday by the publication of a telegram from Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to John A. Bunge, president of the board, in which the secretary said an inquiry established beyond all question of doubt that the Soviet government had been a heavy short seller of wheat in Chicago. Russian operations, the secretary said, had had the effect of manipulating the price downward against every farmer who has sold his wheat since the short sales were executed.

Members of the Board of Trade said that the grain markets are open to the world and that the Government should not place the responsibility on the exchange for setting prices or manipulating them. It is for the Government to determine the Soviet's status, these various members believed.

The business conduct committee consists, in addition to Badenoch, of H. H. Lobdell, Lester E. Perrin, A. W. Mansfield and Joseph Jackson.

The victim was 39 years old. Several years ago he was an amateur baseball player. Orebaugh is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clifford Godsey Orebaugh, four young children, his mother, Mrs. Sallie I. Orebaugh, and a brother, Paul Z. Orebaugh.

SIR ERIC TO DIRECT FEDERATION DEBATE

Briand's Plan for European Union Is Placed Under League Secretary.

GROUP SITS TOMORROW

Geneva, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The special committee of representatives of European states who plan to meet Tuesday to arrange procedure for the study of Aristide Briand's scheme for a European federation will appoint the league's secretary general, Sir Eric Drummond, as secretary general for their activities, according to arrangements made today.

Mr. Briand and some of his colleagues have taken the initiative in getting the committee to work as the league assembly ordered. It is recalled that the assembly's resolution suggested the European committee should work in cooperation with the league secretariat.

By choosing Drummond to direct the committee's bureau it is felt the committee will avoid criticisms which might have resulted from choosing a member from another section of the secretariat, for instance, the economic section or political section.

Some of the European leaders wish to emphasize the political aspect of the project, while others are as eager to deal with it as primarily an economic plan.

By choosing the league's chief secretary, the committee will also comply with the sentiment of the assembly, which favors development of European collaboration within the framework of the league.

TO BLOCK ENFORCEMENT?

The New York Times remarks: "No man in public life appears to be able to come out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment pure and simple. Everybody hastens to add certain qualifications or superfluities." There is, of course, an explanation for this. Those who are firmly convinced that the public is dissatisfied with prohibition are equally cognizant of the fact that a return to the old order would not be tolerated; so they seek, with their "qualifications or superfluities," to outline a program for a new order that will meet with general approval The curious feature of the many statements advocating a new deal is not that they are qualified, but that men prominent in public affairs should advocate programs that manifestly are impossible of attainment.

Even cursory consideration of the dry strength in Congress leads to the conclusion that only a cataclysmic political upheaval can develop a wet bloc to the strength necessary to propose repeal of the eighteenth amendment. A two-thirds vote of both houses is required to set in motion the machinery for amending the Constitution. The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals claims that the drys have a three-fourths majority in the House and that the Senate is dry by three to one. The wets would have to gain 182 House seats and 42 Senate seats before they could adopt a resolution looking to the repeal or modification of the amendment. There is no reason to believe that the wets can make gains of this nature at any time in the immediate future.

Whether or not anything will come as a result of a totally different procedure advocated by certain wets, who prefer to work in the background rather than in the glare of publicity, is another matter. Their plan is the essence of simplicity. If a working wet majority can be returned to Congress, the wet bloc would be in a position to shut off the appropriations for enforcement. Money is the heart blood of enforcement. Without funds the Prohibition Bureau would be powerless. It has been estimated that the wet bloc in the House, including the group that would turn wet with any definite public swing away from prohibition, is as large as 165. If this figure is correct, a shift of 53 votes from the dry to the wet column in the House and a similar shift of 24 Senate votes would result in a working wet majority. The Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment is claiming 37 wet victories in the House in the forthcoming elections, with eight Senate seats at stake on this issue. Patently, if these wet gains are actually made and if similar gains should be made in 1932, the threat of destroying prohibition by withholding appropriations will be serious.

An attempt to hold up enforcement funds might have most serious consequences, legislative and practical. The dry bloc might retaliate by holding up all appropriations unless the enforcement appropriation were allowed. They would be in a strategically superior position to pursue such a course. If the wet plan went through, all Federal regulation of the liquor traffic would end. States that have elected to let the Government assume the full burden of enforcing the dry laws would have a taste of their own medicine. Possibly the chaos that would surely result from nullifying the eighteenth amendment by cutting off enforcement funds might encourage the repeal movement—and possibly the result might be enforcement of the eighteenth amendment with a vengeance.

ROUTING THE LOAN SHARKS.

The Post has exposed the loan sharks' racket in Washington, and will turn over the information it has gathered to Corporation Counsel Bride to be used as the basis of prosecutions in the courts. The extortion of interest at rates as high as 1,000 per cent per year from low-salaried workmen and Government clerks is nothing short of scandalous. Widespread resentment has been aroused. Some loan sharks have already taken to their heels, but many others are waiting for the storm of public sentiment to subside so that they may resume their usurious business.

These parasites that prey upon citizens in distress ought to be behind prison bars, but that would not change conditions which make their racket possible. The demand for small loans will continue, and unless it can be supplied by legitimate interests, other sharks of the same ilk will risk the penalties of the law in their efforts to get rich quick. Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, estimates that more than 80 per cent of the people in the United States have occasion regularly to use some form of small loan credit. The demand for short-term credit on a small scale will probably increase in the future. It is imperative that some legal method be worked out to meet this demand. Loan sharks would be put out of business if legitimate facilities for credit to wage earners were adequate.

The American Association of Personal Finance Companies, which operates under what is known as the uniform small loan law, will meet in annual convention in Washington on Tuesday. This organization is contemplating a study of consumer credit in cooperation with the Department of Commerce. At present companies operating under the small loan statute in 24 States offer a credit at rates that make it difficult for loan sharks to function. Nevertheless, there is a feeling that any interest charge amounting to 42 per cent is more than people in distress are able to pay. There is a growing public demand for small loans at more reasonable interest, and if that demand were fully satisfied the business would doubtless grow to an extent where the lower rates would prove profitable.

The situation demands attention from forward-looking financiers. It is also desirable that Congress give attention to the conditions existing in the District when it reassembles, and that a measure be enacted authorizing small loans at a rate of interest that will guarantee such lending institutions against loss, while at the same time protecting the public against extortion.

HUNTING FOR DISASTER.

The Republicans of New York State are taking steps to insure their defeat and humiliation at the next election. They are imitating the Democratic organization by going wet, but they are not as honest in their devotion to the wet cause, and will probably double-rivet their defeat by trying to placate the drys while appealing to the wets.

Gov. Roosevelt is a genuine wet. He stands for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the return of the liquor traffic. All voters who are against prohibition will find in him a reliable champion. There is no need of accepting a counterfeit like Charles H. Tuttle when the real thing is to be had in Gov. Roosevelt. Tuttle is an eleventh-hour convert to the liquor cause, whose conversion is accompanied by unmistakable signs that it is superinduced by itch for office.

In the fear that the New York Republican organization may not succeed in committing suicide, assurance is to make doubly sure by that peerless politician, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who lightens the burden of wet leadership by occasional delightful visits to the university over which he presides. Dr. Butler is determined that neither Charles H. Tuttle nor any other undependable person shall adulterate the Republican party's devotion to the cause of good honest liquor. He intends to supervise the party platform himself, so that it shall be a wet raft and not a half-dry lifeboat. Dr. Butler's uncanny success in striking submerged rocks in his political voyages preeminently fits him as pilot of the New York Republicans in this last search for disaster.

The idea that the wet cohorts of New York will desert a genuine wet Democratic candidate to support a Republican counterfeit who is wet for politics only is worthy of the kind of leadership that now prevails over New York Republicans. How the dry Republicans of that State will meet the situation is not yet determined, but if they are wise they will vote solidly for the genuine Democratic wet and thereby rid their party of its present leaders. Since New York is wet, anyhow, and since its declaration in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment would not change the national situation in the slightest degree, the dry Republicans of New York can at least rebuke hypocrisy by refusing to swallow the dose that is now being prepared for them.

FIXING THE PRICE OF SILVER.

Senator King's resolution requesting the President to take up with other governments the question whether the time is now propitious for calling an international conference to consider the rehabilitation of the price of silver and the establishment of a fair ratio of value between gold and silver was not passed in the last session, and the senator now announces that he will press for action in December. What Senator King seems to be interested in is the return to a bimetallic currency base. The time is approaching, he says, when the world gold stores will not be large enough to supply the demand for currency. At present the Orient and South America are using and producing a great deal of silver and anything that would increase its value would augment the purchasing power of these nations. "When you reduce the price of silver to 25 cents an ounce," says Senator King, "you cut down the purchasing power of the countries using it 66 per cent. It is important that we do something to raise it to a higher level."

World depression may tend to revive the bimetallism controversy that raged at the turn of the century. Hard times always result in demands for experiments that promise to restore prosperity. The bimetallism arguments have a plausible ring. Moreover, the silver interests have been trying for years to force Congress to do something to increase the demand for the product of their mines. Ably championed by Senator King, if they offer bimetallism as a cure for depression they may succeed in reviving the old controversy.

Bimetallism, in the sense of governmental attempts to fix a fictitious value for silver, has been found wanting. The factors that establish the relative value of gold and silver are beyond the law's control. The chief reason for silver's cheapness is that there is an overabundance of it, and although its reestablishment as a money basis might temporarily result in an increased demand and an improved price level, it would at the same time stimulate overproduction of silver to a point where prices would inevitably drop back to a low point. Then the inexorable Gresham law would begin to function. "Bad money drives good money out of circulation," said Gresham. If silver were established with gold upon a fictitious ratio as a money basis, gold would go into hiding. The inevitable result would be a debased currency and a rise in prices.

Bimetallism was rejected by America in the election of 1896, when it was made an issue by the Democratic party. The bimetallism controversy should not be revived.

MAINTAINING THE NAVY

From the National Republic.

Now that the naval treaty has been ratified by the United States Senate the excitement over this important document has died down, so to speak. It will be aroused again, however, in the next session of Congress when the appropriations necessary to put the terms of the treaty into effect come up for consideration. The country may then expect another outburst of pacifist piffle, a shouting of the little navy forces to the effect that now that we have achieved naval limitation, and in effect, parity with Great Britain, we do not want such parity. They will assert that the "moral victory" achieved by the treaty is sufficient. The average commonsense American, however, is unable to see where moral platitudes will do us a great deal of good if we are confronted by an enemy who is determined to cripple or destroy our country.

Most thinking Americans will agree with Admiral Hepburn, who declared recently that the treaty would be worse than nothing if we failed to build up to the parity which is a fundamental part of our program and of our national defense. The great danger is not in the treaty but in the chance that we will fail to live up to the treaty by building the number of warships which the treaty allows us. It has been well pointed out that some of the alleged "peace organizations" which implored the Senate to ratify the treaty would, at the earliest possible opportunity, bombard Congress with petitions to prevent the attainment of the parity which the treaty undertook to guarantee. The old argument that because the powers have made renunciation of war, there is no reason why the United States should take advantage of the treaty's terms is certain to be a strong feature of the new propaganda against naval construction by the United States; and with this, of course, there will be tied up the altogether specious plea that such construction will constitute an awful waste of money.

The assault against the terms of the treaty by the pacifists will come when the plans of our naval officers for replacement and new construction are presented to Congress for consideration. These plans call for the expenditure of approximately $200,000,000 a year for the next five years on our navy. This looks like a sizable sum, but it is to be remembered that half of it is for replacements which would have had to be made whether there had been any naval treaty or not. Therefore, the sum for new construction is only about $100,000,000 a year. This is considerably less than a dollar apiece for all Americans and naval security is certainly worth that much to each and every one of us. Besides, the expenditure of this money will bring employment to many thousands of Americans at a time when an increase in our employment is badly needed.

To those who profess to be appalled at the figures it may be answered so much needed construction is due to the fact that after the Washington naval limitations treaty we permitted our naval construction to languish because we had faith in the sincerity of our naval competitors that they wanted to cut down naval construction. As a result, during the nine years, we were spending about $48,000,000 a year on Uncle Sam's navy, but laid down or appropriated for only eleven naval craft. During the same years Japan laid down or appropriated for 125; France, 119; Italy, 82; Great Britain, 74. So much for the good and pacific intentions of our naval rivals.

Surely these figures and the results of the Washington conference of nine years ago are sufficient proof that we ought to build up to the treaty requirements this time. But there are difficulties in the way. The pacifist piffliists who supported the treaty will now want to scuttle it by failing to live up to its provisions. It is up to real Americans to see that such a shattering of our naval defense is not permitted.

EXPERIENCE.

One calmly spoke of faith and trust
And living on because we must
And rising from the blow;
And yet his words no comfort gave,
The bitter cost of being brave
I knew he didn't know.

Though kindly meant, his friendly speech
Had no assurance that could reach
My troubled, doubting mind.
His was a life from sorrow free,
The strength that was to comfort me
In him I couldn't find.

Another said: "In time the pain
Will pass and courage come again.
If faith abide with you.
Out of your grief will beauty rise."
I knew that he was sorrow-wise,
For he had suffered, too.

He was not speaking words by rote.
Sobs, just like mine, had filled his throat.
He'd lived my dark days, though,
And when he talked of that belief
Which softens every sting of grief,
He spoke as one who knew.

Soap Was the Invention of a Man Who Was Ashamed.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANKIND crucifies its critics, but throughout the whole of history the best friends of the race have been those who pointed out its faults.

The backward regions of America are the regions without honest critics.

In these regions the chief obstacles to progress are sleek and plausible men who prospect by means of flattery.

Whether writing or speaking, they harp endlessly on the same theme—that the people they address are the salt that savors America—the bravest and most righteous people, blessed with native wit more valuable than education, and favored by Providence because of their superior virtue.

It is a simple method of winning popularity, effective wherever people are ignorant and poor. It wins public office and draws trade. It makes prominent citizens. It enables the selfish few to dominate and exploit the stupid many. But it dooms a backward section to remain backward.

If you find an untraveled man living in an unpainted shack, surrounded by flea-bitten hounds and long-nosed hogs and unwashed children, and convince him that the ignorance, poverty and ugliness to which he is accustomed are blessings conferred upon him because he is too righteous and wise to follow the evil example of the wicked cities, you may win his friendship, but you rob him of all opportunity to become civilized.

He needs to be told, as tactfully as may be necessary, that he and his kind are three generations behind their times; that his poverty is shameful and unnecessary; that his ignorance is a disgrace and a curse to his children; that he and his family are cheating themselves of countless benefits civilization has to offer, and that decent pride and manhood should impel him to covet and win the better things that are commonplace in more enlightened sections.

People don't make progress until they are ashamed of their present state. Discontent is the inspiration of all advancement.

The man who feathers his nest by flattering and tricking the unschooled poor robs them of much more than he gains, for he steals the birthright of their children.

The saviors of a community are those young men, always natives, who hate the way of their fathers and employ their scorn to awaken the spirit of shame that begets ambition.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AN INTERVIEW WITH SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

Q. Sir Thomas, what comment have you to make on the outcome of the races?

A. What races?

Q. Do you feel that the defeats were due to any mistakes in handling the Shamrock V?

A. The big mistake was in bringing her over.

Q. What do you think of the Enterprise?

A. Was that the boat I raced against?

Q. Yes. Have you any doubts of it?

A. No, but I never got close enough to her to read her name? Neither did the crew.

* * * *

Q. Do you feel that it was unfair to sail the first two races in a fog?

A. No indeed. From what I saw I would have liked it better if they had all been sailed in fogs.

Q. What is your impression of Skipper Vanderbilt?

A. We found him very unapproachable.

Q. Sir Thomas, on the other side the Shamrock V won many races, did she not?

A. She did.

Q. How do you explain that?

A. It must have been all done by mirrors.

Q. What happened between the time of the Shamrock's British victories and her arrival in American waters?

A. Nothing. That's the unfortunate part of it.

Q. Do you think she might have done better under different conditions?

A. My chief consolation is that she couldn't have done any worse.

Q. Do you consider, in the light of results, that the Shamrock had adequate rigging?

A. No; that's one point we're clear about now.

Q. What did she lack?

A. Funnels and a propeller.

Q. Will you challenge again?

A. I'm afraid so. When a man acquires a habit like that it's almost impossible to break it.

Q. How many years have you been after the cup now, Sir Thomas?

A. About 30 years, boy and man.

Q. Does it seem that long?

A. My boy, it seems longer. I thought the Shamrock Fifth took almost that long negotiating the first leg of each race of Newport.

Q. Do you feel it was good sportsmanship or not for the Americans to build four yachts and hold all-summer trials to pick a defender when you had but one boat and but ten days to tune her up on this side of the ocean?

A. Yes, but after the first race they might have let me swap the Shamrock for one of the yachts they had discarded.

Q. Do you feel any major mistakes were made by Capt. Heard in handling the Shamrock?

A. Yes indeed. There was one very vital error.

Q. What was it?

A. He never should have tried to sail her without lifting the anchor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Victor Hugo Exposition Proves Returning Popularity of Great Writer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When on June 11 the Victor Hugo exposition was opened in celebration of the centenary of romanticism, M. Raymond Escholier, director of the Hugo Museum, must have hoped and believed that proper recognition would be given to the admirable collection which had been assembled in the old home of the poet at No. 6, Places des Vosges, Paris. If he did have such hopes, they have been amply fulfilled. The recording apparatus on the gate has already registered the presence of more than 12,400 visitors. The exposition is to be continued until the middle of October.

These visitors constitute a rather interesting commentary on the present-day popularity of Victor Hugo. The Sunday crowds are not composed largely of tourists, nor of scholars and students. There are French girls with their beaux, there are fathers and mothers and even children—all at three francs per person. When you remember that there are plenty of interesting places in Paris with free admission on Sundays, you wonder, about a crowd of this kind—and at this price—in a house where there is nothing to be seen but a lot of pictures, some old furniture, books and letters.

Save for exceptional and rather short periods of his life Victor Hugo enjoyed a great popularity which did not end with his death. After 1885 a certain kind of criticism was not long in falling on his reputation with the apparent intention of dwarfing the prestige of the writer and of exposing the "mediocrity of the man." The celebrity of Hugo, like that of Rousseau and of many others, has passed through a period of disparagement, if not of a kind of oblivion. But that time has passed, or is passing. Some of these same critics have become more favorable, while others after the publication of new documents and letters relating to Hugo have frankly admitted that they had been mistaken. Certainly among scholars and students Hugo has won back about all that he lost under adverse criticism. There remains, then, the general public that he loved so well—has Hugo won back the hearts of the people? The answer is that the general public has never wavered in its love and esteem for the author of "Les Miserables," "Notre Dame de Paris" and "La Legende des Siecles."

Abolish the Franking System and Postal Deficit Will Be Eliminated.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Postmaster General Brown gives notice that he will propose a charge of 2½ cents on all first-class mail matter in order to eliminate the postal deficit. The two cent rate has been in effect for many years, and it is high enough. The best way to eliminate the deficit is to abolish the franking system. Why should congressmen be allowed to send matter through the mails free of charge, making a deficit, and then ask the public to make up the deficit by paying two and a half cents for all first-class mail matter? Abolish the franking system and the deficit will be eliminated.

Thinks Cheaper Telephone Rates Should Follow Reduction in Operating Costs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dial system when thoroughly understood is the quickest and most convenient way of sending a message on a telephone.

If this improved and cheaper system has automatically reduced the number of operators, it ought to proportionately reduce the rates on telephones rented by the public.

CARVING INITIALS.

Union College at Schenectady removed a wooden panel from a window recess in the college chapel, says the Pathfinder, framed it and now displays it conspicuously with pride because a student carved his name in it. The student who committed this vandalism was Chester A. Arthur, who became President of the United States.

Thus does reprehensible conduct sometimes become glorified by fame and an eminent name. But there is always danger in making exceptions for big men. The college administration might well have hesitated over putting their seal of approval and admiration on such an action by one of the students—even though he did do it nearly 100 years ago and became President later. How can the students there now know whether or not they will become Presidents? To be on the safe side, logically, they will carve their names on some of the school property or furniture. They can not wait until they move into the White House, for it would then be too late. The moral is, Carve, boys, and carve now. The name in the wood may be framed some time in the future.

HOSPITAL LIBRARY.

It is to furnish medicine for the mind and the body that the Presbyterian Hospital maintains a library, says the Chicago News. Psychic and physical health are closely interrelated. Fretting and borrowing trouble—practices forbidden by Scripture—preoccupation with self, and loss of temper have toxic effects, and retard convalescence. Peace of mind and spirit, on the contrary, aid recovery.

Yet it is probable that those who designed the library at Thebes had other matters in mind. Such maladies as ignorance, indifference, prejudice, hardening of the conscience, atrophy of the civic sense, dullness of sympathy and of imagination may have been among the diseases which the library was intended to correct. The havoc men and women make daily of private and public affairs demonstrates that man still needs medicine for the soul. In many cases a judicious course of reading would prove therapeutic and prophylactic. The well-stocked public library is an institution of social healing.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mrs. Walker Forges Ahead In Journalism

Capital Woman Directs Destiny of Paper on Eastern Shore.

MARCHING into the front line of journalism, where women are rapidly becoming invaders as publishers and editors, Mrs. Harold Walker, of Washington, is demonstrating, as owner and director of the Maryland Independent on the Eastern Shore, that the job of turning out a newspaper each day may be successfully carried on in conjunction with that of society matron.

The first Republican newspaper founded on the Eastern Shore, the Independent boasts a circulation of 1,400 subscribers, "a meteoric increase in a Democratic community," points out Mrs. Walker, whose experience in the realm of the Fourth Estate dates back but a few short months and, at that, is recorded only as an accident. For Mrs. Walker was inducted into the publishing business because her husband, upon the invitation of the editor, declined to be bothered with the berth of director of the paper and Mrs. Walker agreeably consented to take it herself. Before very long she discovered the game an interesting one and set herself to the task of evolving the "greatest" paper on the Eastern Shore.

The newspaper was founded by Mr. William H. Valliant, of Talbot County, who established an independent political policy. Associated with him are Mr. Herbert Pomeroy Brown, New York financier, and Mrs. Walker. The feminine publisher entertains firm convictions of the rapid growth of the Eastern Shore as a summer playground for Washingtonians as well as New Yorkers.

Transportation is the crying need of the community and the Independent's chief interest is to promote the improvement of transportation facilities—even at the expense of a ferry company in which Mrs. Walker is a heavy stockholder. The paper is fighting the company, holding that its rates are too high for the good of the community.

For the last few years, when not abroad Mrs. Walker has spent most of her time on the Eastern Shore, at Webley, the pleasant estate, with a fine Georgian house, which she purchased some four years ago. The houes was then quaintly known as Mary's Delight, but Mrs. Walker restored the earlier name of Webley when she restored the house.

This winter Mrs. Walker and her daughter, Miss Evelyn Walker, expect to visit the former's sister, Baroness von Schoen, in Berlin, going later to the Riviera for the early spring. However, they will be at Webley until after Chritsmas.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman has taken the Audiffredo cottage at Newport, where she is passing September with her daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell.

Mr. Edson Bradley To Return to Newport.

They have just returned from a tour of the Orient, where Lieut. Davies, U. S. M. C., was recently on duty. Lieut. Davies is now stationed in Nicaragua.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Small have established their residence at the Hotel Martinique for the winter season. Mr. Small is with the Department of Justice.

33 Different Positions in One Night's Sleep

No one "sleeps like a log" if they are truly resting. The sleeping position is changed between twenty and forty-five times in the course of a night's sleep.

We assume, on an average, the thirty-three positions shown above. (Result of an investigation of sleep at Mellon Institute, University of Pittsburgh. A study of 150 persons' sleeping positions photographed automatically by camera whenever they moved.)

If the sleeper has an uncomfortable mattress, he changes his position often, but does not assume all of these sleeping postures.

We spend one-third of our life in bed. It is during sleep when nerves and muscles rest. Isn't it important to you to have the most comfortable mattress—one that will cushion every curve—make each night's sleep an adventure in contentment?

At a cost of only $4 to $9, we will make a charming new mattress from your old one. For $12.50 to $22.50, you can have a cushion spring mattress made from your old one. This new type is to the old-style mattresses as balloon tires are to those of solid rubber. Phone for our representative to call for your mattress and to show you samples of attractive tickings from which to make your selection.

P. S.—A shopping trip here will prove that beds can be bought for very much less. So, too, can mattresses and box springs. Come in and inspect the House of Slumber. Then decide if you prefer to buy at retail or to take advantage of our factory-to-you price.

ENVOY BROADCASTS DOMINICAN THANKS

Survivors of Gale Would Have Died but for Quick Aid, He Says.

RELIEF CAME INSTANTLY

The appreciation of the Dominican Republic for the aid extended her people during the recent hurricane which devastated its capital and adjacent regions was voiced yesterday afternoon by Persio C. Franco, charge d'affaires of the Dominican Republic, over the Columbia Broadcasting Co.'s Nation-wide network.

"The sorrows of the Dominican people have become the sorrows of the United States and all other nations of the continent," he declared, in discussing the reconstruction of Santo Domingo. "Indeed, they have become the sorrow of the entire world."

"The majority of the survivors of the catastrophe would have been lost," he declared, "had help not been received promptly from other countries. The relief which was carried on by foreigners in Santo Domingo, by foreigners who came instantly without pausing to consider the dangers they might run, was wonderful, showing how closely the nations have been brought together by modern inventions and the great service these inventions may render to man in aiding him to defend himself against the blind forces of nature."

Senor Franco, whose chief, Minister Rafael Brache, has been in Santo Domingo since the inauguration in August of President Trujillo, pointed to the Dominican executive as the "youngest president we have ever had, a man of character, progressive, one who achieved notable success in his military career," and added that he has before him now an "excellent opportunity to become great."

The speaker described his country's historical associations as the site of the first permanent European settlement in the New World, and the favorite land of Columbus, calling attention to its natural resources and physical and cultural progress.

Czarist Paintings Sold, Says Paper

Seven Famous Pictures Owned by Empress Taken to Paris.

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Seven famous paintings, acquired by the Russian Empress Catherine II, have been brought here from Leningrad, and four of them—valued at $200,000 each—sold, probably to American dealers, the Russian language daily La Renaissance reports. Confirmation of the sales or price could not be obtained.

La Renaissance says the four sold were "The Annunciation," by Van Dyck, the "Portrait of Lord Philip Wharton," by Van Dyck, Ruben's portrait of his wife, and Rembrandt's painting of his son Titus. Works of Watteau, Terbosch and Lacret were said to be yet unsold.

Empress Catherine obtained the paintings for the Leningrad Hermitage Museum.

It was the suggestion of Mrs. H. W. Mrs. Witcover was unanimously made its president and was assisted by Mrs. William Hamilton Bayly, as vice president, Mrs. George Anderson, secretary, and Miss Myrta Goodman, treasurer. The legacy can, however, be made on a business-like basis through the Trust Department of the Union Trust Company. Here your interests will be protected by many years' experience and by Capital, Surplus and Profits of over $3,200,000.00.

UNION TRUST COMPANY OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

To the Public of Greater Washington

Your gas companies, in offering gas for house heating, do it in full recognition of the place other fuels have in the modern home, and we believe that each fuel has a very distinct place, in given circumstances.

In fairness we unhesitatingly admit that coal is the cheapest fuel for most homes, but a lot of homes have expenses incidental to furnace operation which make the cost of the fuel but an item of house heating expense, and this is where automatic heating comes in, and Gas is the ideal fuel for automatic heating.

We will make a reliable estimate of What gas will cost to heat your home; and it may be less than any other fuel, but that can only be determined after a qualified engineer has surveyed your particular heating problem. Again, you may enjoy this great convenience fuel, gas, in your home with the renowned Conversion Burner "JANITROL" which will make your present heating plant a gas-fired boiler or a gas-fired hot air furnace.

"JANITROL" completely installed will cost only $175.00, or $17.50 down and $5.00 per month on your gas bill until the balance is paid.

You can't afford not to be informed about the great convenience fuel—gas for home heating.

Before making a decision on your fuel for the season at hand get an estimate from your gas company and have first-hand facts without any obligation to buy.

FISHER HOLDS NEW RESERVE HEAD AID TO STABILIZE BUSINESS

Eugene Meyer Long Student Of Banking and Finance

Well Fitted to Lead Greatest Public Service Organization in the World, Yale Economist Says; Purchase Power of Money Explained.

By IRVING FISHER
(Professor of Economics, Yale University).

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—In appointing Eugene Meyer as governor of the Federal Reserve Board, President Hoover has followed the examples of Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge in keeping this distinguished banker in public office. Long a student of banking and international finance, Mr. Meyer seems singularly fitted to head a system which has become the greatest public service organization in the world. Confirmation of his appointment by the Senate would give added assurance of the stability of the American gold dollar, the stability of the value of gold money throughout the world, and the stability of world business and industry after a period of depression.

In times past each banker pursued his private profit relentlessly, untroubled by any thought of the effect of his transactions on the purchasing power of the dollar, the price level and general business conditions. There were no "central bankers" in America in the sense in which those managing the Bank of England are central bankers—that is, bankers whose operations are for the general good of business and not merely for the private profit of the bank.

The establishment of our Federal Reserve System started this idea in America. It has created a new demand for central bankers, but there has been little supply. Mr. Meyer is of the new school of banking, and he is fully aware that every banking transaction, as it affects the volume of credit in use, tends to affect the value of gold, the general level of prices, and general business conditions.

There are two special reasons why the central bankers' point of view has grown increasingly important. One of these is the growth of bank credit; the other is the recent increase in our gold reserve.

First, as to bank credit, the contrast between present and former conditions is startling. Originally, of course, the gold dollar derives its worth as money from its worth as gold bullion, available for use in jewelry, gilding or dentistry. Every dollar of bank credit was supposed to derive its value from the fact that it was redeemable in gold.

Credit Volume Is Determinant.

In those days banking was too small a factor to affect appreciably the value of gold. Bank credit, that is, deposits and checks against them, was a small tail to a large bullion dog. The value of the gold dollar, or sovereign, was determined almost entirely by the use of gold in the arts. But today the tail is wagging the dog, because the tail is several times as big as the dog. Today, in Anglo-Saxon countries, bank credit and currency performs from 85 to 95 per cent of the money function in our commercial system, and this money function is incomparably more important than the goldsmiths market.

Today, therefore, it is the volume of credit in use that determines the value of gold bullion rather than the reverse.

We turn now to the other and more important factor, our present overgrown gold reserve, which has grown to double the minimum requirements of the law or of prudent banking. The danger of this reserve approaching or falling below these minimum requirements need hardly be considered by the Federal Reserve Banks in their granting of credit or rediscounts or in their sales or purchases of Government securities and commercial acceptances in the open market. The old guide of banking policy, the gold reserve ratio, is gone—for the present, at least. In place of it the Federal Reserve System has substituted a new criterion—"to accomodate business."

Under this new policy the Federal Reserve system considers what is going to be the effect upon business conditions rather than upon the reserve ratio of (1) its open market purchases and sales, (2) the changing of its rediscount rate, (3) of its practice as to putting gold certificates into circulation in place of Federal Reserve notes or vice versa, and (4) of its advice and moral influence with the thousands of member banks. The reserve banks have foregone the profits they might have made by encouraging rediscounts and by buying securities and acceptances to the limit. They have, in effect, kept one-half of their gold idle. All this has been done in an effort to prevent undue inflation or deflation and so to stabilize general business conditions.

Fulfills Original Function.

By the adoption of this policy the Reserve Board has largely fulfilled its original function to stop money panics. When the war broke out we undoubtedly would have suffered a disastrous panic had it not been for this wise policy. The board has been criticized severely in the past for raising or lowering the rediscount rate, and for not raising or lowering it. The board has made mistakes at times, sometimes it has been forced to act against its collective judgment, but it has performed services of inestimable value to the country and to the world.

The credit inflation immediately after the war was due to the U. S. Treasury Victory Loan policy and therefore should not be held against the board.

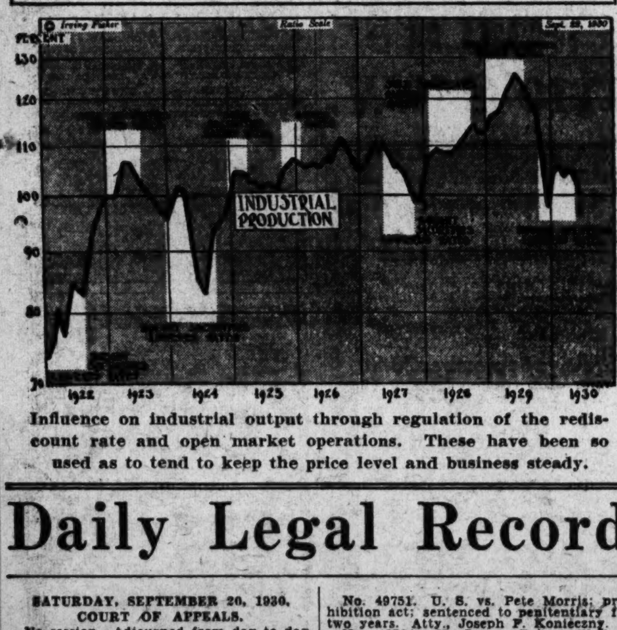

The banks lent too much at low rates. When the board put the rates up loans were frozen, prices slumped precipitously, factories closed down and unemployment became very serious. It is generally thought that if the board had applied the brakes to the credit omnibus both more promptly and more wisely, a moderate deflation might have been achieved and the disastrous crash of 1920-21 would have been largely avoided.

There is still much dispute about the effort made by the board prior to the stock market crash to produce "tight money" for the stock market and still accommodate business. It could not do both, and it failed at doing either. A sharp and indiscriminate increase in rediscount rates in 1926 and 1927 would probably have prevented the stock market crash without nearly the setback to business which has come from the current depression.

In Mr. Meyer, President Hoover has selected an enlightened leader for the Federal Reserve Board. He has studied carefully the aspects of gold inflation and deflation for many years. Under his wise direction we may expect the financial ship to be steered safely between the Scylla of inflation and the Charybdis of deflation.

NEW YORK MARKET PRICES SLUMPING

Nearly Two-Thirds of Gains of Preceding Month Wiped Out Last Week.

PARIS STOCKS ADVANCE

By E. W. DIEFENDORF
(Irving Fisher Service).

The decline in stock prices on the New York Stock Exchange which commenced after the September 10 high of 137.7, continued to last week's closing, with a total loss of 5.3 per cent. The level of all-common industrials has dropped back parallel to the August 22 level, losing in one week's slump the gains of the preceding three weeks, and 58 per cent of the total gains from August 12 to September 10.

No group was spared in last week's price slaughter, as the indexes dropped by from 8.6 per cent in the radio group to 2.4 per cent in the oils and rails groups. Outstanding gainers during the last month were the sharpest losers last week; for example, the radio and theaters group was off by 8.6 per cent; coppers, by 7.5 per cent, household products, auto accessories and electrical equipment by 6 per cent each; chemicals, farm machinery and office equipment by 5 per cent each; foods, tobaccos, steels, utilities, stores, machinery, miscellaneous and building supplies, by 4 per cent each; motors, by 3 per cent, and oils and rails by 2.4 per cent each.

Value of Trading Down.

The average daily trading of all stocks on the New York Stock Exchange dropped last week by 26 per cent to $89,800,000, with prices off and buying slow. It fell to the low since the two-year record of the week ended August 8, that showed a margin of 11 per cent above this record. Common industrial stocks suffered a like drop of 27 per cent in the value traded figure last week, with the tobaccos group alone making any gain.

The groups of building supplies, office equipment, agricultural equipment, railroad and household products held their ground last week, taking losses of less than $1,000,000 in the average daily value of trading.

The outstanding decline last week was in electrical equipment, motors and coppers, off by more than $2,000,000 each.

Foreign Stock Levels Irregular.

The levels of stock prices on the London and Berlin exchanges were irregular last week, due to a slump in buying orders, with the indexes off by 2.4 and 1.9 per cent, respectively. Last week's decline followed slight weakness during the preceding week.

The situation differed in Paris, where stock price levels advanced sharply through Wednesday, with trading increasing. In spite of the fact that profit-taking toward the week's close caused the level to drop, the index for the week advanced by 2.3 per cent, following a drop of 1.1 per cent for the preceding week.

The speculative group of stocks, off by 8 per cent last week, closed the week at 93.6, or 9 per cent below the September 9 peak of 102.9 (1926 equal 100).

The semiinvestment and investment groups of stocks suffered less acutely, closing last week off by 4.6 and 4.1 per cent, respectively, with total losses of 6 and 5 per cent from their recent highs.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings:

Money Measures Desirability.

To measure desirability in terms of money is merely to measure a cause by its effect; for all money valuations depend on desirabilities. Desirability is what indicates demand, and demand is what indicates price.

Wealth's Triple Counting.

A railway, a railway share and a railway trip are not three separate items of wealth; they are, respectively, wealth, a title to that wealth and a service of that wealth.

BOND PRICE LEVELS RISE TO NEW HIGHS

Weak Spots Shown in First and Second Grade Rails During Week.

GOVERNMENTS STRONG

(Irving Fisher Service.)

Bond price levels continued to rise last week on the New York Stock Exchange, completing the eleventh week in which their trend has been upward. The index at last week's close showed the peak for this year of 102.1, with a gain of 1.6 per cent since July 1 at 100.5, and 0.5 per cent above the March 21 high.

Daily trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange dropped off by 5 per cent from the preceding week's daily average.

Of the 70 bonds in the Irving Fisher selection, 41 per cent closed last week up, 27 per cent steady and 32 per cent off in price from the preceding week's close.

The utilities group continued its advance, closing the week high, at 103.4, with a gain of 0.15 per cent. Industrial bonds held steady, gaining by less than 1 per cent. Government issues were particularly strong last week following several weeks of sagging price levels. The turn came toward the close of the preceding week, and the foreign and United States groups advanced by 0.3 and 0.4 per cent, respectively.

Railroad bonds were the weak spot in last week's market. The index of first-grade rails, off by 0.1 per cent last week, has shown declining levels since their high on August 29. Second-grade rails reached their high since early in June on September 13, from which level prices dropped sharply through Wednesday of last week. In spite of the upward movement to last week's close, a loss of 0.3 per cent was recorded over the week.

COMMODITY PRICES CONTINUE STEADY

Condition in Wholesale Lines Considered Great Aid to End Depression.

DOLLAR IS BUYING MORE

The steadying of the wholesale commodity price level, which is considered of great aid in ending the business depression, continued last week when the commodity index (1926 equals 100) rose by 0.24 per cent to 83.6. This mark is the high point since the recent low of 82.8 for the week ended August 22. The increase in four weeks was 1 per cent.

Economists agree that, for the best effect on business conditions, the wholesale commodity price level should rise for a time to counteract partly the severity of the commodity decline since January. However, in the long run it would be necessary only for the level to hold steady.

Dollar Buys More at Wholesale.

The purchasing power of the dollar, which is the reciprocal of the wholesale commodity price level, fell last week by 0.2 per cent to 119.6. In other words, it will buy 19.6 cents worth more goods than the 1926 dollaw; that is, at wholesale, not at retail.

Week ended—	Price Index (1926 equals 100)	Index of Buying Power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents)

1924 average	98.9	101.1

Agricultural Products Up.

The significant rises in last week's commodity market were in the farm products and foodstuffs groups, their indexes rising by 0.9 and 0.7 per cent, respectively. Oats, potatoes, beef, coffee, butter, flour, lard and sugar were responsible for these gains, with cotton, wheat, corn and hams taking slight recessions in price.

The remaining groups were steady, with the fuel and lighting group up and the hides and leathers, textiles, metal products, building materials and chemicals groups off. Leather, silk, hemp, jute, burlap, copper, tin, resin, turpentine and corn crude oil were the chief offenders in these nonagricultural groups. Coal and petroleum were responsible for the gain in the fuel group.

The majority of the agricultural gains fell in the raw materials group, which rose by 0.85 per cent, having made consistent gains during the last four weeks. The semimanufactured goods group suffered the largest individual falls last week, dropping by 0.9 per cent. This group showed weakening price levels for the last three weeks. Finished goods have been comparatively stable.

EXPANSION PLANNED IN TRADE SERVICES

Commerce Department to Try to Cut Big Losses in Business Conduct.

DIRECTOR IS ANNOUNCED

(Associated Press.)

Plans for expansion of the domestic trade services of the Commerce Department in an effort to eliminate part of the estimated $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 annual loss in the conduct of American business were announced yesterday by William M. Cooper, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Dr. Frank M. Surface, assistant director of the bureau, will have supervision of the three new divisions in the bureau, Mr. Cooper announced. The reorganization plan was evolved in cooperation with manufacturers' representatives, consumers and distributors.

National associations representing all branches of trade and industry as well as consumers' organizations will be invited to name representatives to act unofficially as "executive steering committee."

The three new divisions which will replace the single one now in operation will be a merchandising research division, providing assistance to industries searching for more efficient means of counting distribution costs; a regional division, to give statistical pictures of the movement of goods in interstate commerce, and a marketing service division, with facilities through which individual manufacturers, distributers and retailers can obtain aid in their individual problems.

Under the reorganized set-up facts to guide business decisions with regard to merchandising and merchant control will be gathered and the bureau will offer advice on store arrangement, location, economical warehousing, order assembly, delivery and other functions of distribution.

Will Prevents Youth From Railroad Work

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 21.—The residue of estate of Mrs. Jennie E. Graham, of Bolivar, W. Va., after provision for a tombstone, is to pass to her grandson, William Graham Care, when he reaches the age of 21, provided he has not been employed by any railroad company up to that time.

In event he has been a railroad employe, the estate passes on to those who would otherwise have been her heirs. The provisions were disclosed in the will admitted to probate in Charles Town, W. Va., Tracey L. Jeffords, of Harpers Ferry, is named executor.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—New municipal bond issues scheduled for award this week amount to $10,692,790, compared with municipal offerings of $11,539,000 last week. Only two issues of $1,000,000 or more are scheduled this week, one of $1,447,000 for Montclair, N. J., and one of $1,000,000 for Minneapolis.

Fractional gain in August over July operations in American industry apparently has started the upward turn in general manufacturing activity, according to reports on electrical energy consumed for power purposes in 3,800 manufacturing plants scattered through the country, Electrical World says.

Directors of the National Steel Corporation have authorized Great Lakes Steel Corporation, its Detroit subsidiary, to proceed with the erection of a 10-inch merchant mill. Work will be started shortly and it is expected to be in operation by June 1 next year.

New security offerings scheduled for tomorrow include $5,279,000 Public Service Co. of New Hampshire first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, series B, due October 1, 1957, priced at 99 to yield over 4.56 per cent; $3,884,000 City of Jersey City, N. J., 4¼ per cent gold bonds maturing October 1, 1931 to 1969, inclusive, and 100,000 shares of Appalachian Gas Corporation $7 convertible preferred stock series A, under allotment certificates.

American Department Stores Corporation reports August sales of $639,171, a decline of 16.5 per cent from $765,423 for the like month last year. Sales for the first eight months this year totaled $6,130,695, a decrease of 4.7 per cent from $6,433,331 for the corresponding period of 1929.

10,000 MANCHURIANS MASSED IN TIENTSIN

Evacuation of City by North Coalition Soldiers Goes On Peacefully.

OFFICIALS ARE CHANGED

Tientsin, China, Sept. 21 (9:45 p. m.) (A.P.).—Ten thousand Manchurian soldiers this evening were concentrated at the railway station here awaiting further orders, and 10,000 more were expected to arrive later in the night.

The last of the Shansi garrison troops were evacuating Tientsin this evening. Railway traffic and other conditions at the railway station were heavily congested. The congestion forced an armored train this morning to proceed to Yangstun, on the Peiping line.

The evacuation of the city by the Northern coalition soldiers and its occupation by the Manchurians proceeded peacefully. So did administrative changes.

Party Branch Reopens.

The branch of the Kuomintang party, representing Nanking's point of view, is reopening, and the Nanking officials ousted by the Shansi troops expected shortly to take over the telegraph and telephone systems and other offices.

Notices were posted today stating that the native customs control would revert tomorrow to the Nanking commissioner and his staff.

The maritime customs staff of the Nanking government, evicted by Yen Hsi-Shan in June, assembled at the Customs Club and prepared to resume their duties.

Commissioner Is Silent.

Bertram Lenox Simpson, British author, who writes under the name of Putnam Weale, who was installed as commissioner of customs by Yen, said he was unable to make a statement about possible changes. He has received no instructions.

It was Simpson who nearly precipitated an international incident when Gen. Yen seized control of the customs from Nanking. His action was declared treasonable by C. T. Wang, nationalist minister of foreign affairs. On June 20 Wang said he would demand that the British authorities deport Simpson and discipline him.

Legation officials at Peiping, however, merely held the case under consideration for the time being.

Osterman, Chambersburg, Pa., was uninjured.

The three were brought to Lexington Hospital by tourists, who passed shortly after the accident.

James A. Aspinall and George Albert Stopps, both of Frostburg, were held in $1,000 each in the case growing out of the seizure of a still at the Old Tunnel Hotel at Frostburg. Percy T. and Harry Cooms went to jail in default of $1,000 each on sale and possession charges. The sale case against Jack Dolan, night clerk at the Hotel Hunter, Frostburg, was dismissed. Cases against John C. Lunan, Mrs. Joseph Gamble and Mrs. Charles F. Rose were dropped.

Diary of First President Shows Taste for Fishing

George Washington Was Wont to Set Out on Angling Expeditions, Sometimes Selling Catch to Combine Business With Pleasure.

President Hoover is not setting a White House precedent in finding his recreation along the shady banks of woodland streams angling for the elusive trout but is following in the footsteps of George Washington, the George Washington Bicentennial Commission declared yesterday in portraying the Father of Our Country as an ardent devotee of piscatory pastimes.

Excerpts from Washington's diary show that upon numerous occasions he set out from Mount Vernon upon fishing expeditions, combining sport with business in the sale of large catches of herring, whitefish and shad from the Potomac waters.

But it was fishing as a sport which furnished Washington with pleasure and relaxation. In his diaries we find numerous references to fishing parties. Under the date of August 29, 1768, we read: "Went into Machodack Creek fishing." Again, on September 3, 1770, he records: "Went in the evening a-fishing with my brothers, Samuel and Charles."

In September of 1784, Washington left Mount Vernon on a business trip to his lands west of the Appalachian Mountains. As it was an extremely arduous journey, only the bare necessities for the trip were taken. His fishing lines were included in the equipment.

When the Federal convention, meeting in the summer of 1787 in Philadelphia, recessed from July 26 to August 6, to give the special committee a chance to draft the Constitution as proposed in the convention, Washington made plans for a fishing trip.

Washington was president of the Federal Convention. For weeks the debates were heated and the wrangling was distressing. Washington's position as President was indeed a difficult and tiring one. Fishing would provide the necessary relaxation.

So, we find in Washington's diary of July 30, 1787: "In company with Govr. (Gouverneur) Morris and in his phaeton with my horses, went up to one Jane Moore's in the vicinity of Valley Forge to get trout."

Again, on August 3: "In company with Mr. Robert Morris and his lady, and Mr. Gouvr. Morris, I went up to Trenton on another fishing party. In the evening fished, not very successfully."

In the fall of 1789, Washington was making a presidential good-will tour of the Eastern States. On his way to view the harbor at Portsmouth, Washington was thinking of fishing, for he said in his diary:

"Having lines, we proceeded to the fishing banks a little without the harbour, and fished for cod, but it not being a proper time of tide, we only caught two, with which, about 1 o'clock, we returned to town."

Zeller Leads Tour Planes to Denver

Michigan Man Is Second; Forced Landing of One Ship Reported.

Denver, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Led by Myron Zeller, of Detroit, flying a Ford trimotor, contestants in the National Air Tour began arriving here this afternoon from Cheyenne, Wyo.

The first leg of today's flight was from Casper, Wyo., to Cheyenne.

Zeller was followed by A. J. Davis, of Lansing, Mich., in a Waco. John Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., piloting a Waco, was third. The tour contestants will spend the night in Denver, taking off tomorrow for Colorado Springs, Colo., a 75-mile hop.

One of the planes was reported to have made a forced landing at Dupont, Colo., a few miles northwest of Denver, but it was believed the pilot was uninjured.

The Ford Truck has rugged strength

THE strength and reliability of the Ford 1½-ton truck are well indicated by the excellent service it is giving in a large number of widely different businesses. Under the varying requirements the Ford truck is called upon to meet, its performance is uniformly good, and marked by a high degree of economy.

Perhaps no other service imposes greater demands on the strength, power, and endurance of a chassis than haulage of materials in dump bodies. In this, as in other fields, the Ford truck has proved its mettle.

In order, therefore, to make available trucks of this type at economical prices, the Ford Motor Company has added a series of five dump bodies to the present standard line.

These include light and heavy hydraulic, and gravity and hand-hoist dump bodies, and a body with mechanical power-hoist. This provides a wide range of selection, as to price and hoisting method. With the Ford chassis, these bodies form units of high value, embodying the reliability, economy, long life, and strength which characterize Ford products.

In addition, there is a wide variety of body-types available on both the 131½-inch and 157-inch wheelbase chassis, including the standard stake, platform, and panel bodies. Both open and closed cabs can be supplied, and dual rear wheels are available at small additional cost.

MISS MYSTERIOUS - - - By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A coed called Babe by her friends receives a letter from her guardian saying he has lost all her money and is going to commit suicide. He says that she is not Thelma Townley, as she has always believed. The shock forces Babe to a stern plan. She will earn her own way and learn her identity. This she tells to a friend, Violet Rimmel. A man, who says his name is Morgan, comes to her and proposes marriage, telling her he knows of her trouble. Babe suspects Morgan of being a crook. Pete Jones, Milwaukee, a senior, asks her to marry him. She turns him down. That night she is kidnaped by two men. Pete rescues her. They learn that the boss of the kidnapers is a man called the Duke. One is called Gus, the other "the runt." Babe sends Pete back to school, and stays in Milwaukee seeking a job. She learns that some one broke into her room at school and stole two old brooches. Weary and discouraged at her failure to get work, she is approached by a man named Mac, who offers her a mysterious job. She takes it. They go to a gambling hall, and Mac tells her to tramp a certain man. It proves to be Morgan. She goes with Morgan. He makes violent love, and Babe accidentally shoots him. Mac arrives, finds Morgan is not seriously wounded, searches his room, and finds the stolen brooches. Morgan leaves town. By comparing notes, Mac and Babe find that they are both searching for the same man—Babe to learn her identity, Mac to get revenge. They are convinced it is Forseith, who has not committed suicide, but only used that device to escape enemies. To get a line on Forseith, Babe feigns amnesia, and appeals to police. She is put in a hospital, and Forseith tries to get her out of it. Pete and Vilet, seeing Babe's picture in papers, come to rescue and get her out of hospital. Mac realizes that he is in love with Babe, and Pete and Mac know they are rivals. Babe is worried because she loves them both. She fears there may be a taint inherited from her unknown parents; but deep in her heart she is certain that her father was a brave man, and she fights to be like this ideal she holds of him. Mac goes to catch The Rank, who has been shadowing them, and says he will return in 10 minutes, but is gone for more than an hour. Babe is frantic with worry.

She rents a car and drives to the resort region on the hunch that Forseith was hiding nearby. On entering a saloon and restaurant where crooks hang out, a man accosts her and insists on buying her a meal. Babe permits him to do so, and while talking he speaks of "old striped pants." She realizes he means Forseith.

He attempts to make love, but Babe threatens him with an imaginary gangster husband. Mike drives to the hideout of the boss, and while he is inside Babe attempts to creep to the house to see if she can learn anything about Mac. She falls, and is back hiding in the car when men come out seeking an intruder.

Mike steers them away from his car, and drives away. Babe escapes Mike at the roadhouse and starts to drive to Milwaukee. Her car runs off the road. She wakes up with Pete and Violet standing beside her bed.

Babe insists on getting up and going at once to rescue Mac. Pete, who had found her unconscious in her car and taken her to his summer home, protests, angry words follow, and Babe walks out of the home.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"There goes the only girl I ever loved," Pete moaned. To keep from choking and acting like a child before Violet he began to laugh. It was a high and unnatural laugh.

"Go on and stop her, Pete," Violet urged. "If you let her go now it may be for keeps."

"She can walk east till her hat floats for all of me," Pete shrugged and lighted a cigarette in the most approved nonchalant manner, except that his hands shook and he had difficulty in getting the lighter to work and in getting the cigarette to draw.

"Babe doesn't want to go like that," Violet insisted.

"No. Well, she said she did. How am I to know?"

"You know well enough. You are both acting like a couple of babies."

"Well, why the devil should she get so sore just because I wanted to take care of her?"

"Don't you know?"

"No. I don't."

"It's so simple, Pete. In fact I am a little mad myself. I'm scared to death that what Babe says is true. I am certain that Forseith and that gangster are insane. They may shoot Mac full of holes just for the sport of it, if they get to feeling that way."

"Well, what if they do. What's he to you?"

"That's it. Babe was right. You are jealous of him and would be glad to have him killed. It would put him out of the way for you," Violet's voice was getting higher and higher. It was almost hysterical as she finished.

Pete looked at her in amazement. Of all the girls he had ever known he thought Violet was the sanest, most level headed and time and time again he had marveled that she should be so lovely and so adored by the whole campus when she had none of the giddy, flighty attributes that usually win the hasty favor of the undergraduates. Now he was completely dumbfounded to find Violet almost wild with emotion. And he was more amazed that she could think he was letting jealousy keep him from attempting something dangerous. He had not thought of it in that light before.

"My God, Violet. You don't think that, do you?"

"What else am I to think? Maybe it is only because you are afraid to face those insane gangsters or maybe it is because you hate Mac, I don't know which, but in either case you look mighty small to me. And imagine how you look to Babe. She has been thinking that you were a hero, with the heart of a hero and now, now——"

Pete didn't hear the last. He was out of the house, running to the garage. Violet grabbed her coat as she raced out of the house, too. She was just in time to beat him to the drive. She stood in the middle of it and held up her arms.

"Get out of the way," Pete ordered. "I'm going to get Babe."

"Not without me," Violet yelled.

The car was barely moving. Violet jumped on the running board.

"Get off, Violet, get off. I'm in a hurry."

"So am I. I'm going with you."

"One girl is enough in this."

But Violet was in the car. "Don't waste time. We are in a hurry."

Pete grumbled, but shot ahead. Violet said nothing. Pete continued to grumble. "You want me to get two girls killed. One's enough, it seems to me."

"Killed. You talk like an old-time melodrama."

"Yeah? You girls act like 'em."

"We've got as much guts as you have."

"Why did you have to butt in?"

"Mac's in danger."

"For Gawd's sake. I believe you're falling for him."

"Is it any of your business?"

They were racing over the gravel road.

"I hope you get him. I don't know what you want with him, but I hope you get him."

"So do I."

"And you only saw him once."

"You fell so hard for Babe the first time you laid eyes on her you couldn't rest."

Pete didn't answer that thrust.

"Where the world is she?" Pete asked after a few more minutes of driving. "We've had time to catch her."

"Go on. Babe travels fast when she is mad."

Babe had walked as fast as she could until out of sight of the home. Then she had slowed her pace, wondering what to do. Walking was much too slow. She was feverish with excitement, fear and anger. The quarrel with Pete had upset her and yet she felt that she was right. Pete had been knocked from his pedestal. He had showed yellow. She was glad now that Pete had not kissed her. But her anger put a new interpretation on that, too.

He was yellow in love, too. In her heart she knew it had been courage that had kept him from taking her in his arms and covering her with kisses. She knew that she would not have been able to deny him then. But now she insisted in putting another meaning on his will power.

Life was too complicated. She must forget everything but duty. That at least was clear. It was up to her to do what she could to get Mac out of the clutches of those gangsters. It was speed she wanted now. Speed. She would forget Pete. Forget everything but Mac.

A wheezy old automobile came chugging along. Babe signaled to the driver, a farm boy.

"Going to the village?" she called.

"Yep. Hop in."

Babe got in. The boy stepped on the gas. The car was not as wheezy as Babe had thought it. It moved along at a good clip, after all. Certainly it was better than walking.

An idea leaped into Babe's mind. "Want to make a little money?" she asked.

"Sure I do. Who don't?".

"How about driving around the country for me this afternoon?" she asked.

"How far?"

"Oh, I don't know. It'll probably take all afternoon. Maybe some of the evening."

"I'm supposed to be home by supper time."

"Well, you may be able to get home by that time or earlier. And then again it might take a little longer."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars."

The boy looked at the ripped coat. He looked at Babe. "Lemme see the money."

Babe was careful in extracting the notes from her bag not to let him see the pistol there. She pulled out two $5 bills and handed them to him.

"Here, I pay in advance. There may be more for you if you drive fast and do what I say."

The boy's eyes popped. He pocketed the bills.

"I'm with you. Whatever you say goes."

"Fine, Buddy, fine."

Babe wished that all problems could be solved as easily and quickly. Now another presented itself. She didn't dare to let this boy drive into danger himself. Where she was going a human life was not reckoned very highly. That she knew. The Boss would shoot a trespasser as quickly as he would a mad dog. "I'll have to hide the boy and his car a long way from the lodge," she thought. "Then I can hike the rest of the way and take my chances. They may be slim but I have to take them. Dad would not want me to be a coward in anything." Babe got comfort from that thought. Yes, she was certainly taking the courageous way and whatever the outcome she was facing duty without flinching.

She heard a horn and recognized it. Without looking behind she slumped down deep in the seat. The boy beside her took his time pulling out for the powerful car behind. When he found a convenient place he pulled over to the side and a long, low car shot past. Babe raised her head in time to see that Violet was sitting beside Pete. Her heart ached.

"I thought I loved him. For a minute I knew I loved him. I thought he was so unselfish, so brave." She shrugged her shoulders. She would throw off that feeling of frustration, beat down that ache that gnawed at her heart. At least she would try. She was determined to write finis to that chapter. In a crisis Pete had failed her because he was afraid, because he was jealous. So Babe believed. Even now he was running away and Violet was going with him, deserting her. "Oh, well, it's best. Neither of them is involved in this. Why should they risk their lives, their chances for happiness just because I'm seeking mine in the only way I know."

The car chugged along. Its youthful driver said nothing, leaving Babe to her dark thoughts. Thoughts that always brought her to that same struggle with herself.

"Who am I? Why am I? Why do I do what I do? Why do I suffer because I love two men?" Yes, she admitted it again.

"I do love Pete, but I love Mac, too. I can't fool myself, I love them both."

"Am I cursed by the parents I do not remember? Am I the victim of heredity?"

Try as she would to fight the fear of that course, to create true, noble parents for herself, that fear of a curse haunted her, dogged her and drove her on to risk anything that she might know the truth.

Babe was almost unconscious of motion despite the bouncing of the car. She might have let the driver go past the road she wanted to find but he suddenly slammed on the brakes.

"Here's the village. Now where?"

"Go a little farther and take the dirt road to the left," she said. They turned into the road and had gone only a short distance when Babe heard a powerful car racing past the turn. She swung in her seat in time to recognize Pete's car.

She wondered why he had turned around and was driving back toward his home. "Maybe he forgot something," she told herself. Had she given it more thought she might have realized that Pete was looking for her. But now they were approaching the narrow trail that led to the gangster's hangout. She had other things to think about. She must plan a way to keep the boy at a safe distance and yet have him close enough to help her get away, if she should ever leave that threatening place. She was pleased to note that she could approach it calmly and without the fear she had anticipated.

"What chance have I with four or five armed men?" she asked herself.

Reason told her that she had no chance, that she was probably a foolhardy, bungling, incompetent little female with a huge bump of strange ego to think that she could walk into their fortress and take a prisoner from it.

But she was going in just the same.

In the lodge, now less than a mile away, a violent drama was even then being enacted. The Boss was in a rage. A quart bottle of whisky was beside him. He had drunk almost a pint from it, taking the drinks in short gulps without a wash. The scar over his eye was flaming and stood out like a vicious brand against the pallor of his forehead. Between drinks he brandished an automatic pistol, pointing it frequently at a man in front of him.

Forseith was sitting near the same table, but was perfectly sober. He was unruffled as if he were in an office interviewing a friendly customer.

The Boss tossed off another shot of whisky, picked up his automatic and leveled it at the man, whose arms were tied behind his back. The man did not wince, but looked him straight in the eye.

"You yellow cur, you cheap killer. You haven't got the guts to shoot. You have to have some hired rat do your murder for you." Mac was sneering at the Boss. Daring him to shoot.

Babe was out of the car now. Running toward that revolting scene.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Those not fortunate enough to attend the Radio World's Fair opening tomorrow need not feel bad, for practically everything to be shown here in the way of new receivers may now be seen at your own dealers in Washington. And to better advantage, because at the radio show, strangely enough, radios may not be heard. Otherwise, with hundreds of exhibitors, pandemonium would reign.

First and foremost, prospective purchasers, in addition to acquainting themselves with the modern developments, want to hear how a set sounds, what its tonal qualities are, how it pulls in and separates distant stations. The entire inspection can be made to better advantage in the quiet studio of your local dealer than at a great radio show such as this in Madison Square Garden, where thousands of persons are pawing over each other trying to find out what it is all about.

NEVERTHELESS, once here, as at the automobile show, it is fun to look around. As revealed by the preview, there doesn't seem to be anything revolutionary this season. The sets are more selective—they tune sharper. They are more sensitive—they cover a wider range. Once upon a time radio cabinets were simply ugly old boxes covering a set of leaky batteries. They are now becoming so beautiful they fairly take your breath away with their elegance.

Here we see a new nine-tube superheterodyne, with four screen-grids, which gives it the greatest sensitivity, selectivity and volume yet known. A tone control knob enables listeners to regulate or shade the reproduction from bass to treble to please the ear. New All-electric midget sets are of mantle-clock design, complete with loud speaker.

Home recording attachments enable listeners to make records of favorite programs or voices. If you can not get home in the time to hear "Amos 'n' Andy," simply telephone your wife to make a record of it and listen to the program later on the phonograph attachment of the set.

TO demonstrate the amazing uses now being found for radio tubes a robot in a suit of armor will utter a loud vocal greeting to each person as visitors approach the New York Electrical Society exhibit. The robot's voice will be clear and distinct and in the experiments has never failed to respond to approaching persons.

Although perplexing at first thought, the principle of operation is really simple. The passing visitor will interrupt a beam of light which falls on a photo-electric cell. This will set the mechanical man in operation to utter a phonographic greeting from within its armor incasement.

Another robot will automatically count every one looking at the display. This robot, similar to its speaking brother, will also be set off by the interruption of a beam of a light falling on a sensitive photo-electric cell or electric "eye."

Along the same line Westinghouse engineers will exhibit the "Mystery S.," a toy-model automobile, which will be operated by the radio show by spoken commands and entirely without direct human control.

As the cherub-faced robot chauffeur, with large owl-like mechanical eyes, receives his orders, these eyes blink, one white, the other red, which action operates an electrical motor in the roadster.

Among the orders the car will obey promptly are: Advance, back up, stop and sound the horn. However, the robot must be spoken to politely, and in a certain tone of voice, otherwise he will balk and not do a thing.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

WATERING A GARDEN.

(Bureau of Plant Industry.)

Artificial watering, if properly applied, will prove a decided advantage to the garden during dry periods, but may prove an injury if not properly done. The bureau says frequent light sprinkling of the garden is injurious. The proper method is to soak the soil thoroughly about once each week, preferably during the evening, and then loosen the surface by cultivation as soon as the soil is dry enough to soak.

No more water should be applied until absolutely necessary, then another soaking should be given. On a small scale water may be applied with a sprinkling can, or a garden hose. Perhaps the best method is to open slight furrows alongside the rows of plants and allow the water to flow gently along the furrows. After the water has all soaked into the soil the wet earth in the furrows should be covered with dry soil to prevent baking.

Paris, Sept. 21.

EVER and anon comes a wail from a frail sister, asking that the sketches we make be not so "elaborate" or something like that.

We beg to tell you that you are all wrong! You see, it's up to the fashun-artist to dress up the plainest sketches, the simplest frocks, and make them attractive to you, even as it is up to the good cook to season and make tempting the ordinary foods.

The artist tries to present garments to you in an artistic drawing, without disturbing one whif their original practicability.

• • • •

'N' of course, there are the frocks that we "simply can't live without sketching," so delightful are they—even though we know quite well that neither we nor you could or would ever own or wear such frocks! But who doesn't like to see them? Even we do—note the breathless pause, the low murmur of awesome appreciation, the sigh of impotent envy—at collections of the Haute Couture when the most ravishing creations appear.

• • • •

Two practical and chic Bernard et Cie. models, just a coat and just a dress to be sure, but what nice ones, have I sketched for you today.

• • • •

Tea aprons have come back into their own! And no wonder, when they are so feminine and adorable, so whimsically useless looking the while they are really as sturdy as can be and launder easily and often. Even the most apronless person in the world would have to admit their charm once they saw some of the new ideas in aprons—hand hemstitched crepe de chine, for instance, or chiffon smocked and fagotted—well, I've just designed a round dozen of the cunningest aprons you ever saw for you, and you have to just sit down and make out that stamped, self-addressed envelope to send me, in order to convince yourself that the new tea aprons really have a place in life after all, and that you should have been indulging in them all these years!

• • • •

Do you remember the glittering lame ensembles of about four years ago, which came out and disguised themselves as "cocktail ensembles" or "bridge suits?" Well, something rather like them has returned to favor, but this time the tissues are so very much more subdued as to glitter, and consequently so very much more elegant in appearance that many more women will wear them, I am sure.

Very often this new lame makes the whole dress of an ensemble, the coat of which is lined with the lame but of itself a soft broadcloth or velvet. At other times the lame simply trims a dress, while it lines the coat.

Pegasus was a Grecian Horse
Who used to wing his way
Aloft with a refueling plane
To feed him oats and hay.

Endurance records he would break
As fast as he would make 'em,
And Grecian editors all prayed
This Horse would not forsake 'em.

For he was good for a column or two
In Athens when the news was slack;
I'll bet there are editors today
Who often wish this Horse was back!

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.

The above hand was played at the Work-Richards-Wyman Teachers Convention held at the Hotel Delmonico, New York, in June.

The game was Duplicate Contract. South opened the bidding with two Hearts, showing a probable six tricks with Hearts trump or at No Trump. West passed, and North holding normal support for Hearts together with the equivalent of two probable tricks jumped to three Hearts. East passed, and South with one more probable trick than his first bid announced, jumped to four which obtained the contract.

At Auction Bridge South would have secured the contract with a bid of two Hearts.

In the play (which would be the same at both games), West won the first three tricks with the King, Queen and Ace of Clubs; and Declarer then had to make all of the remaining tricks in order to go game.

West next led the Four of Diamonds which dummy won with the Ace. At some tables Declarer now led three rounds of trumps, winning the third round in dummy, and then the Five of Spades and finessed the Jack which was won by the King and the contract was defeated. I can see yet those Declarers sadly shaking their heads and saying, "No luck; I never could win a finesse."

THE CORRECT PLAY.

At many tables, however, Declarer had no cause for repining. When the Four of Diamonds was led and dummy's Ace won trick 4, these Declarers could see no reason for not trying to make up a good Diamond in dummy and discard the Jack of Spades on it; and accomplished it in the following manner:

Trick 5, a small Diamond from dummy and a high trump from South; trick 6, a low trump from South won by dummy; trick 7, another small Diamond and another high-trump ruff; trick 8, a small trump again won in dummy. Now there is only one more adverse Diamond out and only one ruffed with his last high trump and more adverse trump; so dummy led his next to last Diamond while South led a small trump which dummy won and cashed his thirteenth Diamond. South discarded the Jack of Spades on trick 11, and took the last two tricks with the Ace of Spades and the good Ten of Clubs.

SOIL FOR POTTED PLANTS.

MANY amateurs have the impression that almost any soil will do for house plants. Now, while I must admit that most plants will grow in any soil, it is also true that to get the best results you must adapt the soil to the plant.

For example, should your soil be rather heavy, with more clay than loam in it, you can easily change it by adding sand. Thus you will have converted an almost impossible soil for some kinds of plants into a light, friable one that will furnish the necessary elements for the development of all varieties with strong roots. Any kind of sand available will do, but sharp sand is the best.

By experimenting with the soil you will be able to determine the quantity needed. A good test is to mix some soil and sand together, then take it up in the hand and squeeze it firmly together. If, when pressure is relaxed, the soil crumbles and falls apart, or even shows a tendency to do so, it is safe to conclude that you have used enough sand.

This will make an ideal soil for most strong-rooted plants. Plants having finer roots, of the fibrous sort, will do better in a soil containing more loam than clay. Leafmold suits them even better than loam. It is impossible to give very definite instructions along this line, for some plants are a law unto themselves. Many kinds of plants, like the fuchia, gloxinia and some varieties of begonias, do best in a soil composed largely of leafmold. Leafmold has a large percentage of vegetable matter which is essential to many of our soft-wooded plants.

Should you live where leafmold is unobtainable, let me tell you of a substitute that will prove almost, if not quite as valuable. This substitute is to be found on the under side of old sod. Cut the sod with a sharp spade (or a knife if you are only potting a plant or two) and turn it over. You will find that immediately below the grass is a soil full of very fine hairlike roots. Shave this off and use it in place of leafmold.

Real leafmold comes from the woods. You can find it where old leaves have drifted into hollows or about the roots of trees, where they have lain until thoroughly decomposed. This sort is fine and mellow, almost black in color, and very rich in fertilizing elements.

Always use sand when using any of the above-mentioned soils. This must be added to keep the loam porous. Not so much sand, however, as when clay or garden loam is the basis of your soil. Leafmold is very springy and will not pack and become hard, as does clay when it is watered.

Finely ground bonemeal is a welcome addition to most soils used for potting plants and is a safe form of nourishment.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

News for the Girls.

TWO men today tell a few truths for the girls who wonder how they should act in order to "hold" a man. Some girls already know these truths. Some are learning by the usual route of bitter experience, and some are still completely in the dark. Therefore, the letters will be of interest and help to all. We will overlook the cynicism in the letter from "Bach." He will feel better presently, now that he has relieved his mind.

Dear Miss McDonald: Don't you ever get disgusted with the questions females ask you in your column? Why don't they look around them and see the answers to their fool questions, "how-much-must-I-kiss-him-to-keep-him?" Where are their brains? What do they think a man is, anyway? Why, a man cares nothing for their kisses. The woman a man wants is the one that he does not bargain with and would not dare to try bargaining with. The rest are all alike to him, and he would not have the lot for a gift.

A man has certain standards and ideals where marriage is concerned—more so than the women nowadays. A woman is ready to meet almost any terms to "get her man." No standards at all. A man still considers a woman an outcast if she does certain things. He ceases to regard her as a possibility when she steps over the line. Not so the woman. A man can do about anything, and a girl will overlook it if he will have her. Imagine that girl "Kay" who wrote to you that the fellow "kept arguing with her" about her principles, insisting she meet his requirements of conduct. If she has any brains, why doesn't she know that he has no use for her?

Instead, she has probably listened to him by now. The girls today are like putty. Not one girl in ten that I have taken out had any definite principle at all. Gee, but they are insipid. I met a little trick at a party once, and before I got a chance to try anything she said: "To avoid misunderstanding, let's put the cards on the table. I am as intelligent as you are. Now we can go on." If more of them were as intelligent as men they would not be ready to do anything a man asked just to have a man around.

I am so fed up with their low idea of what a man is that I intend to remain what I am right now—a

BACH.

And now read another:

Dear Miss McDonald: I am just an everyday fellow, and this letter is written as a means of expressing my opinion of one of the mistakes of the girls in this modern world of smart sophistication.

For the past ten years I have gone wherever I could find employment. This, combined with a wandering spirit, has brought me into intimate contact and discussion with men of all types and with quite a few women from whom I have learned something of human nature.

It has been my experience, as the author of "All Quiet on the Western Front" said: "In himself man is essentially a beast, only he butters it over, like a slice of bread, with a little decorum. As long as man's thoughts are not converted from their natural channel this nature will be concealed." So many girls, when with a man or boy, speak of sex as if it were a topic for every-day discussion. When a girl opens, or allows a man to open this topic of conversation, she can easily imagine what his thoughts will be, and with most men to think is to act. Often with dire results, or at least bad memories.

I heartily agree with you when you say, "When women develop in mentality and character, men will stop making improper proposals." The average man will follow a girl's lead, or at least try to find what kind of girl he is with. When a girl allows a man to follow his own inclinations she is paving the way for trouble, for which she alone is to blame.

If "Kay" will stop the boy friend short the next time he starts arguing on free love and tell him she will not stand for it I am sure she will have a much firmer hold on him. If not, she is well rid of an undesirable boy friend, as there are many nice young men always looking for a girl of character to take to dances, theaters, &c., where she can find real pleasure, as it should be.

As I once heard a very popular girl reply when aked why she was so popular and yet remained so good, "I guess it is because I follow the route of least resistance, and it is so much easier to be good than bad."

700 Students Enroll At Harrisonburg

Virginia to Run Special Train From Tidewater for Pupils.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 21.—The Harrisonburg State Teachers College will open for its twenty-second year Monday with prospects of an enrollment as large as any in its history. More than 400 new students have enrolled to bring the advance registration above the 700 mark. To accommodate the large number of students from eastern and Tidewater Virginia, a special train will be run from Staunton to Harrisonburg.

There are few changes in the college faculty as announced by President S. P. Duke. Miss Florence Boehmer succeeds Mrs W. B. Varner as dean of women, with Miss Lulu Cole as her assistant.

Dr. C. E. Norman takes the chair in the science department vacated by Dr. Fred Mabee, who has gone to Bates College. Miss Virginia Buchanan returns after a year's leave of absence at Columbia University to become assistant director of the training school.

NATS MAKE TRIPLE PLAY BUT TIGERS WIN IN 10TH, 4-3; VOIGT SHOOTS DAZZLING 68, JONES 69 IN LAST PRACTICE

Westbrook Pegler Says

QUITE a while ago I chanced the observation that professional golf instructors were a class who dealt with a grievous kind of human misery and therefore ought to be examined for their qualifications, licensed and regulated by the State on some plan similar to that governing the fitness and practice of the doctors. It can scarcely be denied that golf is an ailment rather than a sport and incurable in most patients, as shown by the persistently high numerals on their cards which are the fever charts of this disease.

This being so, the only humane way of doing is to ease the suffering of the victims, and the only way to relieve them, of course, is by kind and competent instruction which has the temporary effect of reducing their scores slightly, with a corresponding rise of spirits.

This idea has elicited just the sort of response that was to be expected. One man, probably a quack instructor comparable to the tailboard medicine salesman who prowled the provinces in the eighties, wrote a letter from Buffalo denouncing me with great vigor and defending his kind without reservation as a high principled body of public benefactors. Just so, I believe, the herb doctors and bleeders opposed reform and progress and defended malpractice in the days when the regulation of medical practice first began.

Cure Slice Not Permanent.

Golf, he said, was a boon to man because the victims, once infected, were driven to the suburbs where they inhaled quantities of fresh air, as though to praise anemia because the doctors give sherry for it or lung troubles because people so afflicted often retire to the mountains.

And then he told of miraculous cures of patients who were made well of the hook and the slice, but, like all quacks, provided no proof that the cures were permanent. Any one familiar with the plague of golf will know, of course, that such apparent cures are only momentary and are almost invariably followed by the compensating relapse which throws a patient into a morbid depression often attended by homicidal or suicidal impulses.

Myself a sufferer, I had remarked that the professional golf instructor did not live who could cure me of the slice or relieve my mashie trouble permanently, but the letter evaded this challenge, and, although I have gone to many specialists and tried out many simple home remedies suggested by loving friends, I still slice and can not raise them with any mashie.

Expensive Clubs Are Momentary Aid

These sinister men, the golf instructors, not content with their fees for imaginary cures, prey harder on the unfortunate who come to them for relief by selling them expensive clubs to replace their old ones, and such is the power of suggestion that very often the patient does find himself enjoying a momentary benefit from the change.

He pays $15 for a driver and by coincidence his first shot with the same goes straight from the tee with a remarkable carry of 175 yards followed by a 50-yard roll, probably downhill on a baked fairway. Elation lights his features for a moment; he kisses the club head and exclaims: "That's what I needed; a new driver. I'm a well man again." But he hasn't passed the third tee when his ball goes away on a sweeping bend to the right, landing among the cattails and the snakes, far out of bounds, and he is worse off than ever before and out his $15.

There are letters from other dissenters, even including some patients apparently in the last stages of the plague where reason departs and the unfortunate wretches can only blether and scold. One, writing from Monterey Peninsula Country Club, at Del Monte, Calif., becomes abusive and babbles about Jack Dempsey, the Federal Council of Churches, the Antisaloon League, his mother and his sister and his pro. It is a very pathetic case, indeed, and I am sending his letter to the prosecuting attorney of his county, suggesting that he look into the case.

Perhaps the man is being detained at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club by some mercenary instructor and bled of his resources for lessons and clubs when a writ of habeas corpus might free him and an administrator might conserve his estate.

There is a great question whether the victims of golf should be treated by regular physicians or allowed to continue their golf lessons under the care of a qualified and licensed instructor answerable to the board of health. It is my opinion that under State regulation, the profession of golf instruction could be elevated to a fine plane of ethics and conscience, in which case the licensees might be relied upon to administer relief judiciously and avoid violent methods.

5,000 WATCH STARS IN FINAL PRACTICE FOR AMATEUR TODAY

Johnston to Defend Title on Course at Merion.

Atlantan Seeking 4th Major Golf Title of the Year.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Merion Pa., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—As a final display of scoring fireworks preliminary to the United States amateur golf championship, starting here tomorrow, Bobby Jones and one of his foremost rivals, George Voigt, gave a Sabbath gallery of nearly 5,000 spectators a dazzling exhibition of par-cracking play this afternoon.

Voigt, the slim, dark-haired former Washingtonian, now of New York, who came close to beating Jones in the British amateur tournament a few months ago, came off with the main honors when he sank a 25-foot putt on the eighteenth green for a under par, for the hazardous championship layout.

Jones narrowly missed a putt of the same length and finished with a 69. It was Bobby's best performance in practice and satisfied the gallery, as well as the assembled experts, that the superstar, who already has bagged three national crowns this year, is in fine condition for his attempt to make a clean sweep and blast all records off the books.

Voigt, Outdriven, Plays Steadily.

The 6,530-yard Merion layout has thirteen opportunities for going out of bounds, with consequent penalty of stroke and distance, as well as six holes where a winding brook furnishes water hazards, but Jones and Voigt made it all look very easy to the gallery following them. Jones was out in 36, even par, and had a good chance to click off the last nine in 32 until his tee shot missed the 215-yard green and cost him a 4. Voight, although outdriven by 75 yards at times by the triple champion, played very steadily and was once under par on each nine.

The cards, compared with par:

Par, out..	4	5	3	5	4	4	4	4	3	—36
Jones, out.	4	5	3	5	5	4	4	3	3	—36
Voigt, out.	4	5	3	5	4	4	4	4	2	—35
Par, in....	4	4	4	3	4	4	4	4	3	4—34	—70
Jones, in..	3	4	4	2	4	4	4	4	4	4—33	—69
Voigt, in..	4	4	3	3	5	4	4	3	3	3—33	—68

Can Not Meet Until Semifinals.

As the first and third "seeded" players on the list, Jones and Voigt can not meet before the semifinals. If they can weather the intervening play, including the extremely hazardous opening two rounds of match competition Wednesday at eighteen holes, they will face each other next Friday. Bobby's third round opponent, on form, should be either Don Moe or Dr. Oscar F. Willing, the two stalwarts from Portland, Oreg., who rank well up toward the top of the list of contenders.

Jones is, of course, the topheavy favorite to win this affair and set a winning record that may stand for generations, if not for all time, but no one knows better than the Georgian that there are plenty of pitfalls in the coming week.

The field of 168 golfers scheduled to start the two days' qualifying competition at 7 a. m., (Eastern standard time) tomorrow, includes the foremost amateurs of the United States as well as strong contingents from Canada and Great Britain, plus representatives from as far away as Hawaii and Cuba.

The real battle will start Wednesday, when the 32 survivors of qualifying play meet in morning and afternoon rounds of 18-hole match play, reducing the field to eight quarter-finalists.

If the "seeded" eight all come through, Thursday's competitors will include, besides Jones, the defending champion, Harrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul; George Voigt, of New York; George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, who has announced this is his last mateur tournament; Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., the 1929 runner-up; Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, the youthful star who beat Jones in the first round at Pebble Beach, last year; Donald K. Moe, of Portland, Ore., and Cyril H. Tolley, the former British champion.

All matches are at 36 holes for the last three rounds of the tournament and once he reaches the longer route that he favors, Jones will be a prohibitive choice. He has lost only one

Sothern's Fine Catch Helps Defeat Robins

Brooklyn, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Robins lost title to second place today and dropped virtually all hope of winning the pennant when they suffered their fifth straight defeat and their second at the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Ervin Brame was given great support throughout nine innings and staved off Brooklyn's late rallies to win a 7-to-6 decision.

Brooklyn nicked Brame for a three-run lead in the second inning, but almost immediately Clark weakened to yield all seven Pittsburgh runs in the third and fourth frames. Luque and Phelps pitched well in relief roles for the remainder of the game, but the Robins just fell short of making up the deficit. In the eighth, Herman tripled with two on and after Brooklyn had moved up to within one run of a tie with two out in the ninth, the same slugger belted a tremendous fly to deep center which Sothern caught after a sensational run.

Giants and Reds Split In Final Double Bill

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Giants divided their final double-header with the Cincinnati Reds today, winning the first game, 6 to 4, and losing the second, 7 to 6, when darkness halted it after eight innings.

Carl Hubbell was hit hard in the opener, but managed to last the full distance as Bill Terry drove in three runs for the Giants and Frank Hogan sent home two. Wally Roettger's homer accounted for the other tally. Bob Meusel sent three of the Cincinnati runs over the plate and Pat Crawford hit a homer for the fourth.

Si Johnson pitched six good innings for the Reds in the second game, but blew up in the seventh and gave New York five runs. Red Lucas stopped them a run short of a tie. The Reds piled up six runs off Bill Walker in the second for a safe lead.

Cubs Win, Cut Cards' Lead to 2 1-2 Games; Hornsby Seen Pilot With McCarthy Out

Chicago Newspaper Reports Manager Is Through.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Herald and Examiner, in a copyrighted story today, said, win, lose or draw, Joe McCarthy is "out" as manager of the Chicago Cubs next season.

The paper said it had learned McCarthy, whose contract expires at the end of this season; Owner William Wrigley, jr., and President William L. Veeck, of the club, have "agreed to disagree."

Hornsby Mentioned as Successor.

Rogers Hornsby, who came to the Cubs two years ago from the Boston Braves at a price of $120,000 and five ball players, is favored by both Wrigley and Veeck to manage the team, according to the paper, which does not disclose the source of its purported information.

Wrigley, reached at his Lake Geneva, Wis., home, would not make a definite statement as to whether McCarthy would or would not be signed, but said the story was "based on imagination."

"We will not discuss anything of that nature until the season is over," Wrigley said. "McCarthy and I are not enemies. We never have talked to him about handling the team in 1931 because he has never had time to talk about it. He may not win the pennant but he is busy trying to win it."

The Herald and Examiner said to date no mention has been made by the Cubs of any renewal of McCarthy's contract and that Wrigley and Veeck have meticulously sidestepped questions regarding it.

"As matters stand at present and have for more than two months, both Wrigley and Veeck are ready to declare for Hornsby as the 1931 manager of the Cubs," the article said.

The paper said it was significant that during the critical stage of this Hartnett's Home Run in Ninth Defeats Braves, 4-2.

BOSTON, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Chicago retained a mathematical chance to win the National League pennant by defeating the Braves, 4 to 2, before a Sunday crowd of 18,000 here today, and took undisputed possession of second place by a full game as the Robins lost to the Pirates, 7 to 6. The Cubs are still two and a half games behind the Cards, who idled.

Gabby Hartnett's thirty-fourth home run of the season with Heathcote on base in the first half of the ninth inning broke a 2 to 2 tie and gave the Cubs the game. Previously Chicago had overcome Boston's two-run lead with another two-run rally in the sixth inning. Blair hit a three-bagger off the center field bleacher wall in that frame and scored on English's single. Cuyler's double over first base sent English home.

Ben Cantwell scattered the Cubs' eight hits well except for those two innings. He allowed one less safe blow than Malone, who had no weak innings, however, and won his nineteenth game of the year.

In the field, Maguire, of the Braves, and Kelly, of the Cubs, who made sixteen putouts, stood out.

Johnson Scores From Second With Wining Marker.

Whitehill Wins Over Hadley; Nats Tie With Rally.

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Sept. 21.—Washington departed from Detroit tonight with a 4-to-3 defeat at the hands of the Tigers in ten innings, the result of a poor throw by Catcher Spencer on a double steal.

The Nats had tied the score with two runs in the third, and with one out in the tenth, Johnson doubled to center off Hadley. Gehringer walked and the double steal was attempted. Spencer tried to catch Johnson going into third and threw wild, Johnson making the plate with the run that decided the ball game.

Triple Play Helps Hadley Out of Hole.

Included in the Nats' vain efforts was a triple play in the third inning which removed Hadley from a deep center hole after the Tigers had already scored twice in the inning. Alexander was on second as a result of Cronin's error and Doljack's single. Akers laid down a bunt to Hadley, who retired him at first and Alexander, who was rooted to second base, finally woke up and was thrown out trying to make third. Doljack was then run down between first and second when he tried to advance.

Hadley opposed Earl Whitehill over the entire route and each allowed seven hits, each allowed a double, each walked six and each fanned six.

Detroit was first to score, putting over a run in the second inning. Doljack, the recruit from Wheeling, W. Va., started his team right off by dropping a single into right field just short of Rice. Hadley wild-pitched him down to second and Akers sacrificed to Judge, unassisted. Hughes grounded to Judge and was an easy out. Hayworth walked on four pitched balls. Whitehill then rode the ball to left for a single, Doljack scoring. Johnson saw the third strike sail by.

Matters were evened by Washington in the third inning and it was Hadley who tried to right the game in his own favor. He singled sharply to center. Myer fanned and Rice

Goslin Hits 2 Homers; Macks, Browns Divide

St. Louis, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The pennant-winning Athletics and the St. Louis Browns divided a double-header here today, the Philadelphians dropping the first encounter, 4 to 8, and winning the nightcap, 10 to 4.

Goslin, of the Browns, hit a homer in each game, bringing his total for the season to 35. Boley hit for the circuit in the opener, and Foxx put one out of the park in the second game.

The Athletics, with the American League pennant already won for the second year in a row, continued to use numerous rookies and reserves, while the Browns continued to use several players who may be regulars next year.

Meet Draws TopRanking Stables

Stars of Saddle Also to Be in Action at 11-Day Meeting.

3 $20,000 Stakes to Be Run; 25 Races at 6 Furlongs.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 22. Everything is hustle and bustle here today for at 2 p. m., standard time, on Tuesday the Harford Agricultural and Breeders Association will usher in an eleven-day meeting, which promises to make turf history for this State.

Edward Burke and his associates of the host organization are offering a trio of $20,000 stakes during the next eleven days. As a result, the owners of almost every good thoroughbred now in training have shipped here for a try at the lucrative purses.

There are five races at five and one-half furlongs, 25 at six furlongs, 17 at a mile and 70 yards, 18 at a mile and one-sixteenth, 9 at one and one-eighth miles and 3 over the mile and one-quarter route.

Such prominent sportsmen and sportswomen as Harry Payne Whitney, George D. Widener, Walter J. Salmon, A. C. Schwartz, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Samuel D. Riddle, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, Mrs. Margaret Amory, Mrs. Walter J. Salmon, Mrs. John D. Hertz, Joseph D. Widener and William Woodward will show their silks during the session here, thus assuring the meeting of being a success from the outset.

Stars of Riding Colony on Scene.

With Laverne Fator, Earl Sande, Frankie Coltiletti, Sonny Workman, Jimmy Burke, Albert Robertson, Bill Kelsay, Linus McAtee, Pete Walls and the promising apprentice, Albert John Adams, 17-year-old youth of Baltimore, who holds the world's consecutive victory record of nine, among the riding colony, the thoroughbreds should be amply cared for.

General Manager Burke reports a big clubhouse reservation, while practically every private box in the grandstand sector has been taken.

New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington will send daily race specials here via the Pennsylvania Railroad. In addition, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will operate daily race specials from Baltimore and Washington. However, the majority of race goers will journey here via automobiles, as bus companies of the cities mentioned above will operate a fleet of buses daily.

Race fans who care to motor here will find space for 7,000 automobiles on track property. Excellent roads lead to and from the parking lots, which are within sight of the track, so that no motorist should hesitate in driving here.

Waite Stall Gates To Be in Use.

All fields at this meeting will be dispatched from the C. M. Waite stall starting gates. These are the same gates which proved so successful last spring and which were used to start the $50,000 Kentucky Derby at Louisville, Ky. Since then Laurel has adopted the Waite gate, while the Cumberland and Hagerstown half-mile tracks in this State, and Charles M. Schwab's private course at Ebensburg, Pa., have adopted a smaller model of the Waite machine.

It is possible to start as many as sixteen horses from the Waite gate that will see service here. This should make for truer starts in all races, especially in the series of $20,000 stakes which are expected to draw capacity fields.

Every train pulling into the siding today unloads horses from every section of the country. In addition, the motor vans are bringing many more and by nightfall it is expected that every one of the 1,300 available stalls here will have an occupant.

Federal Bowlers Open League Battles Tonight

The Federal Bowling League will open its 1930-1931 season tonight with action starting at 8 o'clock on the Arcadia Alleys. The league is composed of twelve teams this season. The opening night's schedule follows: Treasury, last year's champions, vs. G. P. O.; Post Office vs. Navy; City Post O⅛ce vs. Internal Revenue; Veterans Bureau vs. Agriculture; G. A. O. vs. Public Buildings and Public Parks; Supervising Achitects vs. Merchants' Fleet.

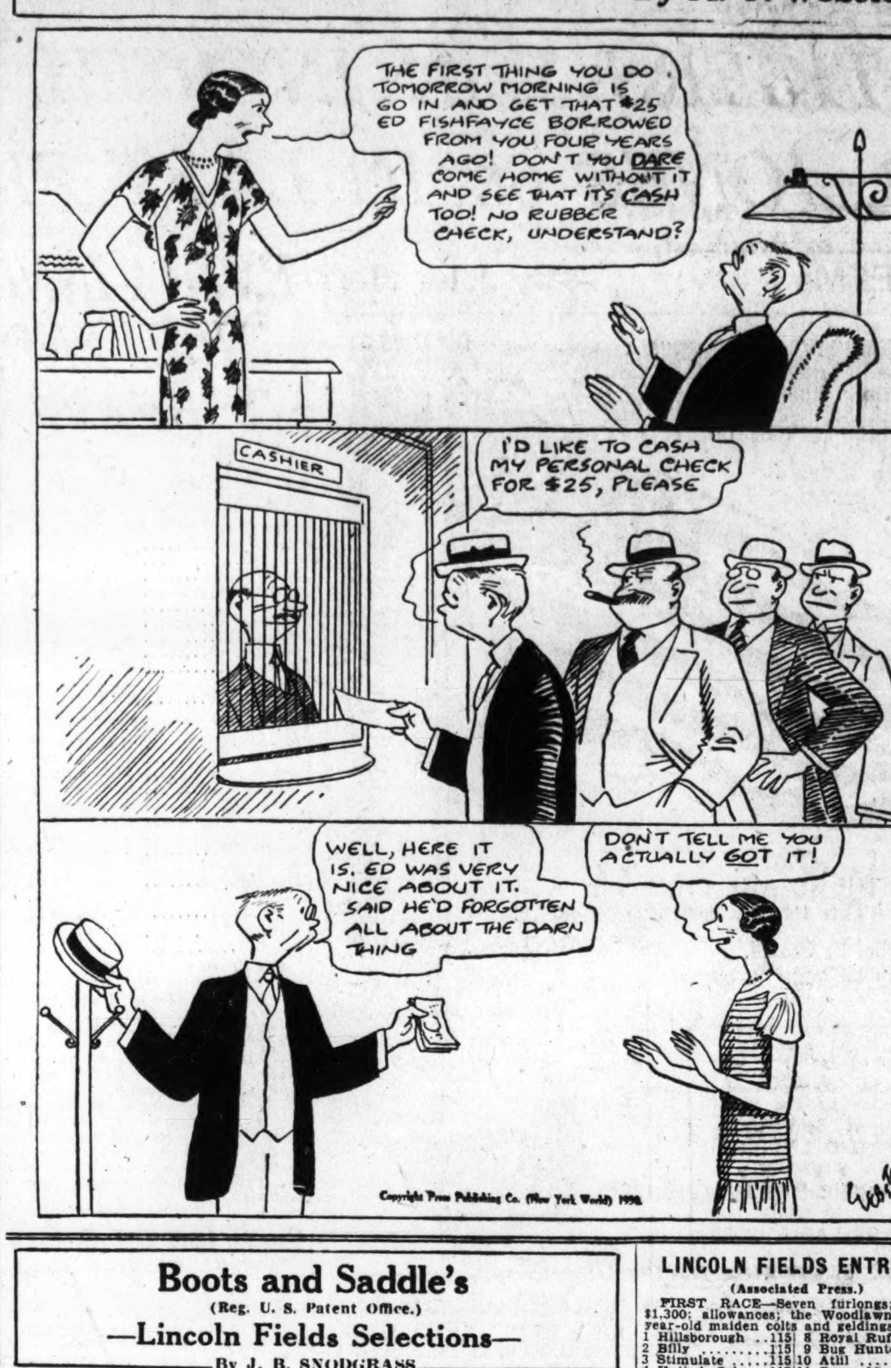

UMPIRE PLAYS FOOTBALL.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE Thomas Hotel Purse, with a value of $1,400 will hold the center of attraction on a mediocre program of seven races to be contested at the Lincoln Fields oval. With perfect weather conditions and the track in fast shape, the patrons should witness some closely contested events during the closing week of the 30-day meeting at the popular Crete course.

The feature event has brought together five smart 3-year-olds and up, who will sprint over the 7-furlong distance. Hal Price Headley's clever PIGEON HOLE, a 5-year-old gelding, holds the edge over this field, and with an impost of 110 pounds, should romp to an easy victory. ESKIMO, an easy winner in his previous start at this track, appears to be in condition and should hold the others safe. HONEY LOCUST, the Camden color bearer and spry 3-year-old filly is expected to take down the minor award.

FIRST RACE—In the curtain raiser, fourteen maiden 2-year-olds, colts and geldings, have been named to start in the seven-furlong sprint. HILLSBOROUGH, from Caldwell barn, who finished a close third in the Dearborn Handicap on Saturday, if he goes here should experience little difficulty in defeating this field. ROYAL ROGUE has been nosed out in two brilliant efforts and should take the place money. ROYAL RUFFIN closed considerable ground in his first outing and may take the show.

SECOND RACE—A limit field of eighteen 3-year-olds will battle it out in the second race over the sprint distance of six furlongs. ULTIMATE VOTE has been freshened up and, judging from recent trials, appears the class of this field. BUSTLING has been racing in route races, but has shown speed from the barrier and may account for the place. JAMES M, from the Gallager & Coombs Stable, would appreciate the six furlongs distance.

THIRD RACE—Another limit field has been entered in the six-furlong dash of the third race, when eighteen 2-year-olds will contest the purse. FONDE has been training sharply and appears best against this sort. ALFAYE B disappointed in her last start, but the track was muddy and on a fast strip she may prove the contender. TWILL has shown speed in recent races and should hold the others safe.

FOURTH RACE — Mrs. Pollard's consistent 3-year-old gelding LADRONE, has been nosed out in his two previous starts. With five pounds off, he should lead this field to the wire. STOCK MARKET has been racing over the 6-furlong distance and may falter at the added furlong. MISS MARNIE, a consistent filly in the Gosse Stable, has only to race back to her previous start to take the show prize.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth race, the first distance race on the card, has brought together eighteen of the older horses in training. HARAMZADA, the Howard colorbearer, appears the class of the field and with an energetic ride should take down the major portion of the purse. PASSALONG is on the improve and should hold the place. GOV. SETH was nosed out in his last start and may furnish the opposition.

SEVENTH RACE — COL. BOARD is selected to take the major share of the purse of the seventh race when eighteen 3-year-olds and up meet over the mile and an eighth route. QUIBBLER may furnish the trouble for the top one and should hold the place safe. GOTHAM, a fast breaker, should hold the others safe to gain the minor award.

TOM ARMOUR ST. LOUIS WINNER

276 Total, 12 Under Par, Beats Hagen in Pro by 2 Strokes.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

SUNSET HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, St. Louis, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Tommy Armour, the Black Scot from Detroit, cracked par by an even dozen strokes to triumph over a great brigade of sharpshooters in the 72-hole tussle for the $10,000 St. Louis open golf championship today.

Carrying on from his triumph in the Professional Golfers' Championship just a week ago, Armour dazzled the field with a sensational total of 276 strokes to clinch his victory.

Two strokes to his rear was Walter Hagen, another Detroiter, while Horton Smith, of New York; Joe Kirkwood and Abe Espinosa, of Chicago, finished in a deadlock for third money with par-breaking 281 totals.

On only one round of his 18-hole jaunts over the championship course did the black Scot fail to break par. That came on his final round, when, with shots to spare, he loofed around with a par 72. His other rounds were all in the sixties, 67, 68, 69. Armour trailed only at the end of the first round when Ralph Guldahl, 18-year-old Dallas professional, startled the big field with a 66. But he swept into the lead at the end of 36 holes with a 135 total and held his margin to the finish.

All told, Armour, who won prize money of $2,500, was twelve strokes under 4s. He collected eighteen birdies and one eagle and slipped one stroke over par on but 8 of the 72 holes. His finish was somewhat dramatic. Coming up to the final tee, he was informed he needed a par 4 to win. He slapped his tee shot 250 yards, sailed his second to within 10 feet of the pin and calmly sank it for a birdie 3. It was a typical Armour finish.

Hagen came close to catching Armour today. The "Haig," fighting to win at least one title during this barren year, had rounds of 69, 68, 70 and 71. He trailed two strokes at the half-way mark, lost another at 54 holes and then gained it back to finish two shots behind the high-flying Armour. His rounds were far more erratic than Armour's, however.

The ten low scores and their prize winnings were:

Tommy Armour, Detroit, 67—68—69—72—276—$2,500.
Walter Hagen, Detroit, 69—68—70—71—278—$2,000.
Horton Smith, New York, 70—73—70—68—281—$1,083.33.
Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 71—69—71—70—281—$1,083.33.
Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, 74—69—71—67—281—$1,083.33.
Gene Sarazen, New York, 73—72—68—70—283—$475.
Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, 70—73—71—69—283—$475.
Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, 66—73—74—71—284—$200.
Clarence Clark, Tulsa, Okla., 73—73—70—69—285—$150.
Clark Morse, St. Louis, 74—69—72—70—285—$150.

League Net Doubles To Deck and Seidell

Pat Deck and Bill Seidell, two of the better known local netmen, won the doubles title in the Capital City Tennis League tournament by defeating George Robins and Albert Yeatman, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4, on the Potomac Park courts yesterday. Earlier in the week the singles championship was won by Eddie Yeomans, University of North Carolina star.

Richards and Kinsey Win Pro Doubles Title

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 21 (A.P.). Vincent Richards, of New York, and Howard C. Kinsey, of San Francisco, won the American professional lawn tennis doubles championship today, defeating Karel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, and Roman Najuch, of Germany, 6—2, 15—13, 7—5 in the final round.

As was the case in the singles finals yesterday, it was Richards' magnificent volleying that turned the tide of victory toward the American pair. Richards, who beat Kozeluh in four sets for the singles title, played brilliantly today and had able assistance from Kinsey. The long-drawn-out second set, which Richards and Kinsey finally pulled out, produced some of the finest tennis of the tournament.

The doubles last year was won by Richards and Kozeluh, but the championship team was split up this time.

AMATEUR TOURNEY OPENS AT MERION

Von Elm to Quit Tourney Play Following Title Event

Ardmore, Okla., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—George Von Elm, national amateur golf champion in 1926 and for years one of the country's outstanding performers, announced today his intention to retire from amateur competition following upon the title tournament starting at the Merion Cricket Club tomorrow.

Von Elm announced his decision in a formal statement. He refused to say whether he would retire from all tournament play, but made it clear he did not intend to turn professional or to make golf his business.

The blonde star from the Rancho Club, of Los Angeles, has for years been a prominent contender in national tournament play, besides making several trips abroad with the American Walker Cup forces. He lost to Jones in the final round of the national amateur tourney here in 1924 and turned the tables on the Georgian in 1926 at Baltusrol. Since then he has failed to survive the first day's match play.

5-SET MATCH ANNEXED BY CONSIDINE

Rallies to Win From Mitchell in Finals at Wardman.

THE renewal of the Bob Considine-Dooley Mitchell tennis feud attracted some 500 spectators to the final singles match in the Wardman tournament yesterday, and the lanky Considine took the match and the Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson trophy to gain a 3-1 edge in their 1930 series. The scores were 4—6, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

In three earlier clashes, Considine emerged victor in the City of Washington and District of Columbia tournaments, while the curly-haired Mitchell, one of Georgetown's net stalwarts, triumphed in a semifinal of the national public parks tournament.

Considine-Mangan Win Doubles Final.

Considine also won the doubles final in company with Tom Mangan, defeating Mitchell and Bill Buchanan in handy fashion, 6—2, 6—4. This victory gave the winners a record of six straight in doubles competition on local courts in the last two years.

The women's doubles title was won by Frances Walker and Josephine Dunham, who defeated Mrs. Ellice and Maycita DeSouza, 6—2, 7—5.

Considine was on the way to defeat yesterday until the rest period came after the third set. Bob gained his second wind and a lot of steadiness in the intermission and returned to take the last two sets by outdriving his rival and committing fewer errors.

The gallery was treated to a rousing driving duel in these chapters as the finalists kept the ball in play for unusually long and exciting periods, but Mitchell was unable to match Considine's steadiness and sometimes fell victim to placements as he tried to advance to the net.

Mitchell broke loose with a torrent of well-placed drives to win the first set after being down, 2-4 in games. Considine speeded up in the second set and captured the decision after breaking through Mitchell's service in the seventh game.

Mitchell at Top of Game In Third Set.

The third set saw Mitchell at the top of his game with the eventual winner chasing breathlessly after hard-hit balls in the corners. Considine found the rest period most welcome.

Freshened by the rest, Bob took the lead in the fourth set by breaking through in the second game. Momentarily he slumped and Dooly not only caught him, but passed into the lead at 3—2 with a service break in the fifth game. Then Considine hit full speed again, smashing Mitchell's delivery in the sixth to tie him and holding his own over the remainder of the route for a 6—4 win.

Games followed service in the fifth session until the seventh game when Considine upset Mitchell's service in a terrific battle of deep driving. They fought doggedly and electrified the fans with sensational returns, but once more Considine proved the steadier. He ran out for set, match and championship on his own service.

The men's doubles final was decided strictly on steadiness. Mangan and Considine were the more accurate pair and were not particularly pressed. The Misses Walker and Dunham had to extend themselves to gain the women's doubles title.

Veterans' Bureau Net Title Is Won by Erana

Showing general superiority, Mariano A. Erana, attorney-reviewer in the Adjudication Service, won the singles title in the annual Veterans' Bureau tennis tournament yesterday, defeating M. Weiss, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3 on the Potomac Park courts.

A loving cup and a racquet donated by the Employes Welfare Association will be awarded the winner and runner-up respectively. In the semifinals Erana easily conquered Kelsey while Weiss turned in an upset victory over Johnson.

MOUNT RAINIERS WIN.

The Mount Rainier Midgets won over the Hyattsville Midgets in thirteen innings yesterday, 9-6. Slugging by Duvall, Stevens and Babell broke up the game. Smith was the winner hurler.

NEXT SUNDAY'S GAME.

Takoma Tigers vs. Anacostia Eagles, Silver Spring Field, 3 o'clock.

THE Takoma Tigers, Montgomery County champions, took the lead in the Capital City League's intersectional play-off yesterday by defeating the Bauserman Motor Co. Nine, winner of the Virginia section title, 9-5, before some 600 fans on the Silver Spring field yesterday. It was the second victory for the Tigers and the second defeat for the Virginians, who, as a result, are automatically eliminated.

In the other game, the Dixie Pigs, Prince Georges County champions, pulled up on even terms with the Anacostia Eagles by taking a 5-1 decision over the District section winners on the Mount Rainier diamond. Each of these teams has won and lost a game. The series is being played on the "double knockout" play, two defeats eliminating a team.

Hughes Stops Attack Of Virginians.

Ray Davidson pitched the first seven innings for the Takoma Tigers but was forced to give way to Dick Hughes, who blanked the Virginians in the two frames he worked. Bernie McCarty, who started for the Bausermans, turned over the mound job to Bennie Wormersley in the eighth.

Home runs by Eddie Fitzgerald and Paul James were the high lights of the Tigers' attack.

Schaffner made the feature drive for Bausermans, a homer in the fifth inning with two men on base.

Babe Clapper was the hero for the Dixie Pigs. He set the Anacostia nine down with four hits and blanked them after they took a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

Jimmy Goodwyn went the route for the Eagles and turned in a good job. He failed to match the brilliant work of Clapper, however. Hack Stahl, Harry Wolfe and Eddie Dove did the bulk of the stick work for the Dixie Pigs. Each connected with two safeties.

The Eagles' first run was the result of a walk to Connick, followed by singles by Clarke and Sweeney, before a man was out. Clapper, however, tightened and retired the side in order.

Dixie Pigs Tie Score In Fourth.

The Pigs evened the count in the fourth. Stahl singled, went to second on a wild throw and counted on Wolfe's single to center.

In the fifth, the Prince Georges County champions gathered what proved to be the winning margin. The rally accounted for three runs. With two out and none on base, Watts walked and Dove doubled to left, sending Watts to third. Joseph then singled, scoring both and took second on the throw in. Stahl again came through, singling Joseph home. The final run of the game came in the seventh. Clapper's double was followed by Dove's single.

Morris Clarke played a brilliant all-around game for the Eagles. Dove made the feature play of the game in the seventh when he came in for a slow roller down the third base line and while off balance made a perfect throw to first.

Danforth Fans 20 of 27 In Buffalo Night Game

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—In an International League game against Rochester last night, Dave Danforth, Buffalo pitcher, broke all known records for strikeouts by fanning 20 of the 27 men who faced him. The nearest approach to Danforth's total, according to the record books, was jotted down by Charles Sweeney, pitching for Providence in 1884, when he forced nineteen opponents to fan.

The modern big league record of sixteen strikeout victims was held by four immortals of the game—Mathewson, Rucker, Hahn and Wadell. Danforth surpassed the record held by Leroy Hermann, of Reading, and Lefty Grove, famed curver of the Philadelphia Athletics. Hermann set his record of seventeen only a few weeks ago in a night game, while Grove's mark was notched under daylight conditions as a member of the seven-time champion Baltimore Orioles.

GRID DEBUTS IN SOUTH CALM

No Upsets Recorded in Early Season Engagements.

ATLANTA, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Seven Southern Conference football teams figured in early season games Saturday against nonconference members with no upsets.

The race in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association got away to a fresh start with Citadel defeating Stetson at Charleston, 13 to 7, and Wofford smothering Newberry under a storm of touchdowns, 43 to 0, at Spartanburg.

Louisiana State took on South Dakota Wesleyan in an intersectional game to open the Tiger schedule and swamped the invaders, 76 to 0. The game was no test for the Louisiana Tiger, but gave other conference teams an idea of the offensive power of the squad.

North Carolina State put on a night exhibition at Raleigh against the light squad from High Point College, winning hands down, 37 to 0. It was State's first game under the Notre Dame system and a new coach.

South Carolina Wins Easily.

South Carolina's Gamecocks at Greenville gave Erskine a trouncing, 19 to 0. It was Billy Laval's opportunity to test the team he sends against Georgia Tech next week in the Gamecocks' opening struggle against conference opposition. The score indicates a great deal of scrimmaging for the Gamecocks for the Tech contest.

Virginia, another conference team, opened up against Roanoke, a State opponent, sufficiently to win, 39 to 0.

Washington and Lee had no trouble defeating Randolph-Macon, 32 to 0. Clemson, a conference team always to be reckoned with, took another South Carolina eleven, Presbyterian College, behind the goal posts often enough to score 28 points. Presbyterian, however, tallied a touchdown against Clemson and made the extra point. The score was, Clemson, 28; Presbyterian, 7.

Sewanee Winner By 37 to 0 Score.

Sewanee, once a feared conference outfit, defeated Jacksonville (Ala.) Teachers, 37 to 0, demonstrating that the Tigers from Tennessee have offensive power this season.

Chattanooga, S. I. A. A. champions, opened against a non-S. I. A. A. opponent, Murphreesboro Normal, winning, 25 to 0.

At Emory, Va., another night game was played, Emory and Henry defeating Guilford, 27 to 0.

Howard College, an S. I. A. A. contender, got a day's jump on the other members by playing a Friday game at Birmingham, defeating Marion Institute Cadets, 51 to 0, in a touchdown frenzy.

Sam Wests Win Two From Richmond Nine

The Sam Wests, Capital City League midget champions, completed their season yeterday with a twin victory over the Springer Post Team, of Richmond, Va. The scores of the games played on the Ellipse were 4 to 2 and 8 to 4. Cockrell set the invaders down with three hits in the first game, while Garner finished strong in the second contest. Miller and Hill hit homers.

NATS OPPOSE MONTREAL TODAY

Brown Has Figured in 3 of Season's Fastest Contests.

Special to The Washington Post.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21.—As the Nats listen to the clickety-click of the wheels of a Canadian train carrying them to Montreal tonight for their exhibition game there tomorrow, one of the topics of conversation will be the lightning hurling of Lloyd Brown.

This pitcher, who started as a relief man this season, holds the unique distinction of working in three of the fastest games recorded in the American League this season. Though he is a portsider, and hurlers from this side of the deck are renowned for their slowness, nevertheless the palm must be handed him for the way he pushes a game along.

Brown and Lyons In Fast Game.

At Washington on August 12, against the Chicago White Sox, he and Lyons combined to finish the game in an hour and 22 minutes. August 23 St. Louis visited Washington, and Brown took but an hour and 24 minutes. Saturday an American League record for the season was set when Brown and Hoyt called it a game in an hour and twenty minutes flat.

Following an exhibition game in Montreal the Nats will hop over to Hartford, Conn., for a game against an all-star combination of Eastern Leaguers, it being a benefit for disabled war veterans. They then go to Boston for a series, and wind up the season at Washington against the Athletics next Sunday.

In this game Connie Mack will give his three leading hurlers a workout, three innings apiece, they being Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw, these being slated to appear in the order named.

NATS BEATEN, 4-3, ON SPENCER'S ERROR

grounded to Alexander. Big Alex fired the ball to Akers, who tagged Hadley for a twin killing and then dropped the ball to get an error instead. Manush walked, after which Cronin singled to center, scoring Hadley. Judge ended things by grounding to Akers.

Tigers Get Two Before Triple Play.

Before the triple play in the third, Gehringer hit the first pitched ball for a single to right. McManus walked, Alexander was safe on Cronin's error and Doljack singled to center, scoring Gehringer and McManus. Alex halted at second base.

The Nats evened the count in the seventh inning with little trouble. Hadley worked Whitehill for a walk and Myer socked out the first extra base smash of the game, a double to the scoreboard. Rice lifted a sacrifice fly to Johnson in right. Myer chased over to third after the catch and was ferried home by Manush, who singled. Cronin forced Heinie at second and Judge popped to Gehringer. Later came the decisive tenth.

HORNSBY TO LEAD CUBS, IS REPORT

year's race officials of the St. Louis Cardinals and of the New York Giants publicly announced that Gabby Street and John McGraw would manage their respective teams again next year. No such tender of confidence was accorded McCarthy by officials of the Chicago Club, the paper said.

McCarthy has been with the Cubs for five years. The contract which comes to a close this season was one of three years' duration. His first contract, signed when he left Louisville in the winter of 1925-1926, was for two years.

Under his first year of management the team was elevated from last place in which it had finished in 1915 to fourth position. The team was fourth again in 1927, finished third in 1928 and won the pennant in 1929. This year, after leading the league, the club weakened in the last stages and is now generally believed to be out of the running.

The death of Hal Carlson and injuries to Hornsby, Charley Grimm, Lester Bell, Riggs Stephenson and Charley Root were conceded to have played the major part in the team's downfall.

White Sox Slam Ball To Rout Yankees, 15-7

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The White Sox made their final home appearance of the season today with a rousing 15-to-7 victory over the New York Yankees, and giving them a two to one edge in their final series.

Donie Bush's youngsters slammed Gibson, Wells, McEvoy and Herb Pennock for eighteen hits, while Pat Caraway held the Yanks to three in six innings. Red Faber finished and was hit hard by the Yankees, but it was too late for them to overcome the early Sox lead. New York committed five fielding errors.

This is the eighth of a series of articles analyzing the strength of the possible world series rivals.

By AL MUNRO ELIAS.
(Famous Statistician).

The right field contingent of the probable world's series contenders presents an array of some of the greatest hitters of the year. Four of the five probable series right fielders are batting over .350 for the season, while the remaining one, Bing Miller, is hitting .312, considerably below his usual standard.

Of the lot, it would seem that Hazen Kiki Cuyler, of the Cubs, has been of greater value to his team than any of his rivals. Cuyler, who along with Hack Wilson and Riggs Stephenson, rounds out one of the hardest hitting outfields the game has ever known, is hitting .362. Herman, of the Robins, and Fisher and Watkins, both of the Cards, all eclipse Cuyler's batting average, but none of this trio has made hits count for as much as the Cubs star. Cuyler has banked out 211 hits for 326 total bases. His blows include 44 doubles, 16 triples and 13 circuit smashes. He has pilfered 35 bases to lead both leagues in the lost art.

Herman Tops Cuyler As Slugger.

Babe Herman, of the Robins, is hitting .394 and tops Cuyler in doubles, home runs and total bases, but his 211 hits have not accounted for as many runs as Cuyler's 211. Herman is likewise something of a base stealer, having purloined seventeen during the season. The Babe has developed rapidly defensively. Last year he was one of the most awkward fielders in the game, but this season he is a finished ball hawk.

The two Georges, Fisher and Watkins, of the Cards, who have been alternating in right field for Gabby Street, are both heavy clubbers, but neither is a steady fielder.

Miller's batting average of .312 represents a decrease of 36 points from a corresponding date last season. However, Bing remains a distance clouter, and has always been one of the most dangerous hitters in the game in a pinch.

McIntyre Pitches Celtics to Victory in Double-Header

Hurls 15 Runless Frames, Averaging Strikeout Per Inning, as Skinker Eagles, Columbia Heights Teams Bow, 12-6 and 1-0.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 21.—Lefty McIntire pitched the Celtics to their fourteenth and fifteenth consecutive victories in Baggett's Stadium today, defeating the Skinker Brother Eagles, of Washington, in the opener, 12-6, and the Columbia Heights Nine, 1-0, in the nightcap.

The Columbia Heights game was the best played in the local ball park this season and was completed in one hour and 20 minutes. Art Ludlow's terrific triple to left-center and "Coppy" Goodwin's double in the fourth gave the Celtics the lone tally of the game.

Only One Heights Runner Reaches Third.

McIntire was opposed by Taylor, ace of the Auth Nine, who also pitches for the Columbia Heights Club. Taylor was invincible in the pinches and held the Celtics to eighth scattered hits. The Celtics' ace was touched for four bingles.

Only one man reached third base off McIntire and this was Jake Lewis, Columbia Heights' catcher, who singled and went to third on a wild throw by Kidwell in the sixth.

The Skinker Bros. Eagles were easy for the Celtics after the third inning of the opener. The Eagles pummeled Pete Ball's shoots for six runs in the first three frames. He was relieved by McIntire, who held them scoreless in five frames and struck out six men.

McIntyre Averages Strikeout Per Inning.

McIntire in the two games pitched fifteen innings of scoreless ball and averaged one strike-out an inning, as he fanned fifteen batters. Art Ludlow, Celtics' third baseman, collected six hits, four in the first and two in the second game. The crowd was the second largest of the season.

Fort Washington Feature Ring Bout Promises Action

Clash Between Jack Portney and Augie Pisano Tonight Seen as a "Natural" De Angelo-Tramberia Rematch in Semifinal.

TONIGHT'S CARD.

Main bout, eight rounds—Jack Portney (Baltimore) vs. Augie Pisano (New York), lightweights.

Semifinal, eight rounds—Frankie DeAngelo (Washington) vs. Jimmy Tramberia (Baltimore), bantamweights.

Six rounds—Battling Lavine (Kane, N. H.) vs. Harry "Kid" Groves (Baltimore), bantamweights.

Six rounds—Jack Turner (Washington) vs. Rusty Murray (Norfolk), middleweights.

Four rounds—Soldier Johnny Clark (Fort Washington) vs. opponent yet to be named, featherweights.

LOCAL fight fans should witness some torrid glove tossing tonight in the outdoor ring at Fort Washington, Md., where Jack Portney, Baltimore's rising young lightweight, meets Augie Pisano, New York veteran, in the eight-round feature of the weekly card offered by the Front Line Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The program will open at 8:30 with a four-round preliminary.

Portney, encouraged greatly by a decision victory over Louis "Kid" Kaplan some weeks ago, is ambitious and wants to beat Pisano to further his chances of climbing the lightweight ladder. Pisano, a veteran of eight years' experience, does not, on the other hand, care to lose to a lad practically unknown in big-time boxing such as Portney.

Scene Set for Slashing Battle.

So the scene is set for a slashing fight. Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn was mindful of this prospect when he first tried to arrange the bout. Indeed, Ahearn states earnestly that this clash could well grace the feature spot on a New York card.

In the semifinal of eight rounds, Frankie DeAngelo, Patsy Donovan's clever bantamweight, will fight it out again with Jimmy Tramberia, of Baltimore. This pair finished all even in a previous appearance at the Fort and each is desirous of gaining the edge.

"Battling" Lavine, the Kane (N. H.) bantamweight, who won the admiration of the fans last Monday by his courageous showing against Eddie Buell, is booked to return in a six-round bout with Harry "Kid" Groves, of Baltimore, as his opponent. This scrap, too, should develop lots of action, since both boys are speedy and strong.

In another six-rounder, the patrons will see Jack Turner, middleweight, who is trying a comeback in local ring circles after a lay-off of two or three years. He will engage Rusty Murray, of Norfolk.

Clark to Fight In Four-Rounder.

Soldier Johnny Clark, of Fort Washington, will meet an unnamed opponent in a four-round preliminary.

The management has announced that fans desiring to make the journey by water may board the steamer Charles MacAllister at the Seventh Street Wharf at 7 o'clock. A round trip fare of 50 cents will be charged. The main road through Congress Heights is the automobile route.

Jerry Carroll Coach Of Apaches' Eleven

Jerry Carroll, former Georgetown University captain, was named coach of the Apache Athletic Club Eleven, holders of the District sandlot championship, yesterday. Carroll was in charge of the Indians at drill yesterday. He will give out plays at a blackboard practice to be held tomorrow night at the Sport Mart at 7:30 o'clock.

HYATTSVILLE WINS OVER GIANTS

Jake Powell Chased by Umpire in 9th; Score, 6-5.

THE Hyattsville Club made it two straight victories in its series with the Silver Spring Giants winning 6—5, on the Riverdale field. The Hyattsville team came from behind three times in the battle.

Frank Chase, who has been pitching for Cumberland in the Blue Ridge League, was on the mound for Hyattsville and allowed nine hits and fanned seven batters. He also hit a triple and single to figure in the making of two runs for the home club.

Silver Spring made a bid for the game in the ninth inning, filling the bases with one out. Chase came through however, fanning one batter and tossing another out at first.

Jake Powell, Nats' rookie, played third base for the Giants. After driving in two runs with a triple, Powell was ordered out of the game for protesting too vigorously on an umpires' decision in the ninth.

Henry Hiser turned in a sparkling diving catch for Hyattsville.

Star Gridmen Signed By St. Mary's Celtics

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., ept. 21.—The St. Mary's Celtics Eleven, Alexandria's champs, are going in for football on the major scale this season and many former college and independent football stars have been signed to play with the team. The Celtics' roster will include such stars as John Connelly, Notre Dame guard in 1925 and 1926, and Joe Neubold, quarter back of Rockne's club in 1927. Three varsity players with the Fort Riley Team of Kansas, who are seeking berths, are Chuck Heaton, half back; Persyn, guard, and Art McNutt, lineman. Nick Colosanto, varsity guard at Holy Cross College for three years, is bidding for a line position.

Rube Hayman, former University of Virginia tackle, is coach of the Celtics. Hayman directed the drill yesterday. Players from last year's varsity team who have returned are Billy Padgett, center; Bud Budnick, who played four years at Washington and Lee College, guard; Ralph O'Neill, center; Pat Ballenger, Shields, Bill Dove, Tony Wood and Bill Dickey, all linemen, and Dick Allen and Les McMenamin, back field men.

The Alexandria team will practice on Tuesday and Thursday evenings under arc lights at Baggett's Stadium at 8 o'clock, while the usual drill will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

CENTRAL COUNCIL WINS.

The Central Council of the Junior Order, from Capitol Heights, defeated the Ross Council Nine yesterday, 9 to 7, at Griffith Stadium in the deciding game of a three-game series. The battle went ten innings. The winning runs resulted from walks to Hill and Suit, E. Higgins' single and Curry's sacrifice. Hutchinson performed well on the mound.

COLLEGE GRID TEAMS PREP OPENERS

Maryland, American U., G. U. in Home Games Saturday.

THE final week of preseason training for four Capital college elevens begins today. These teams—Georgetown, Maryland, Catholic and American—will inaugurate their campaigns on Saturday, all except Catholic performing on local gridirons.

Georgetown and George Washington, which does not open its season until October 4, are due in the city this afternoon from their training camps at Point Lookout and Camp Letts, Md., respectively. Georgetown was slated to practice this morning before starting for home, while George Washington will go out in the afternoon after arriving.

Catholic U. in Need of Practice.

Catholic U., which will make its debut in Boston, meeting Boston College, is so much in need of practice that it will not depart from the Hub until Friday night, the last minute. Numerous injuries among a small squad have necessitated comparatively light drills to date and the Cardinals' first-game prospects are gloomy indeed.

Contrary to custom, Catholic this season will place its signal-calling duties on one of the half backs or the full back instead of the quarter back. Under the system of Dutch Bergman, new coach, the quarter back will carry so heavy a burden of blocking that it has been deemed best to relieve him of the work of field general.

Present plans call for Lou Bertoni to fill the new quarterback role and for either Johnny Oliver, left half back, or Buster Sheary, full back, to direct the team. Oliver is suffering a weak ankle and may not recover in time to play, in which case Frank Donaher will be the left half and Sheary will call signals at full back.

Maryland and American U. Elevens Ready.

Maryland and American, which meet Washington College and Shenandoah College, respectively, in their openers, are just about ready for action. Thus far they have escaped the injury jinx that has hung on the necks of Georgetown and Catholic.

Georgetown, whose training camp period was one long succession of injuries, will be forced to limit itself to one scrimmage before engaging Mount St. Mary's at Griffith Stadium Saturday. Tom Wallace, half back, and Mike Kamora, guard, were additions to the ailing crew yesterday.

Reports of the strongest Maryland eleven in years are emanating from College Park, where the Old Liners have been drilling since September 1. A brilliant forward passing game with no less than four star passers and five expert receivers available is the distinguishing mark of Maryland's potential greatness.

X-ray Awaited on Alenty, Injured G. U. Gridman

X-ray pictures will be taken this morning to determine the extent of the injury to Joe Alenty, promising Georgetown sophomore haf back, who was brought to Georgetown Hospital yesteerday morning from Point Lookout, Md., the Hilltoppers' training camp, where on Saturday he suffered a heavy fall on his back.

Dr. Ed Kelly, one of the team physicians, stated he thought the ligaments of Alenty's back were injured and not the spine, as was first feared. The player was resting comfortably last night.

During the morning practice Saturday, Alenty attempted to block Leroy Bordeau on a play and missed his rival, taking a nasty fall on the hard ground. He did not complain until the afternoon when he suffered extreme pains as he tried to participate in a scrimmage.

Howard U. Gridders Start Drills Today

The first workout of the Bison gridders of Howard University will be held this afternoon under tutelage of Coach Tom Verdell. The Bisons will have their first encounter with Johnson C. Smith University on October 11. Glascoe Mack, of Baltimore, will captain the team, and is expected to be the chief scorer of an aggregation whose principal weakness last year was its inability to score.

Verdell has practically all of his 1929 squad, which started green last season, but closed with a scoreless tie with Lincoln on Thanksgiving Day, after failing to score a single victory. West Virginia will be played on October 18.

Etancelis Is Winner In French Grand Prix

Pau, France, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Philippe Etancelis, driving a Bugatti, won the Grand Prix of the Automobile Club of France here today, covering the 247 miles in 2 hours 43 minutes 18 2-5 seconds. His average was a little better than 90 miles an hour. The Englishman, Birkin, driving a Bentley, was second.

W. & L. SQUAD POINTS FOR TIGERS

Coach Oberst to Give Out New Plays This Week.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 21.—The first game of the season with Randolph Macon out of the way, the Washington and Lee Generals will tomorrow afternoon begin pointing for the clash with Hampden-Sidney at the Lynchburg Stadium, September 27.

Washington and Lee and Hampden-Sidney will play this game in Lynchburg in view of the fact that V. P. I. and the Generals have signed a home-and-home agreement for their annual affair. Last year the Generals and Gobblers met in the stadium at Lynchburg before a capacity crowd.

Coach Eugene Oberst is well familiar with the record that the Tigers have for spoiling early season records. The Hampden-Sidney squad, though small, always manages to place a potent combination on the field. The majority of the larger schools in the South Atlantic area are cognizant of the threat that the Death Valley team carries.

Generals Work on New Plays.

Several more plays will be added to the Washington and Lee repertoire, and the coaches will spend most of the week intervening to drill the W. and L Team in the new plays.

The Blue and White forward fall is expected to be strengthened by the return to the ranks of "Big" Frank Bailey, monogram tackle, who was kept out of the Yellow Jacket game because of a bad shoulder.

The program for the week will not be unduly exacting for the Washington and Lee squad. Coach Oberst and his assistants will not assign as much scrimmage as the Generals had in preparation for the Randolph-Macon game, but instead confine the harder drill to individual players, ironing out mistakes that have cropped up.

No Let-Up in Drills For Generals.

Other than the fact that there will not be as heavy a scrimmage during the coming week as were held preceding yesterday's game, there will be no let up in the Generals' camp. Coach Oberst is sincere in his effort to have his charges work toward every game as a separate contest.

The Hampden-Sidney team will furnish a stronger test of the Washington power, both offensive and defensive. Coach Brenier, of the Death Valley squad, will probably uncork more than an average number of subterfuges, calculated to catch the Generals napping.

Since the Hampden-Sidney team will open its season Saturday, the Generals will have to rely upon fast information to size up the Brenier eleven's strength.

Cumberland League Makes 1931 Plans

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 21.—Representatives of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League met at Central Y. M. C. A. here late yesterday in executive session, with all teams but Charles Town represented. It was assured, however, Charles Town would place a team in the field.

HOW IT BEGAN... By Russ Murphy

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11 a. m., from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 11 p. m to midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date seem to act as a wedge between you and success. You will be exasperated by delays, and many of your plans will require modification. Something of national or more local interest will "strike home." Guard the health.

The children born on this September 22 will have a fine mentality, be avariciously ambitious and full of energy. They will be true sportsmen, quick-witted and full of sociability. They will be cunningly diplomatic, and will know how to "work" their way through life.

Life will give you much, but you will repay it all hundredfold. You have a high degree of intelligence, are very human, and have both grace and charm. Out of all of these, you have woven an adorable and vivid personality. You are naively simple, and entirely without self-consciousness. You are genuinely unselfish, and you do not try to avoid any onerous duty or inconvenient kindness which you are called upon to perform.

Together with your other higher qualities, you have a wealth of humor and understanding. The joke that is against yourself is the one that you see the most readily; the point of view which differs the most from your own is the one you are most eager to discuss. You are always trying to present a smiling face and a merry heart, although sometimes your laughter has an ache in it, and there is anguish behind your jests. If it were possible to be so, you are almost too honest, in the face of modern methods and competition. The squarest policy, and not the most paying policy, is the principle upon which you live. Virtue still is, to you, its own and sufficient reward.

Your work will be more mental than bimanual. You are a very constructive thinker and a far-distant planner. You have so much faith, so much confidence in your own judgment, that you often have the courage to commit all your fortunes to some plan or dream of the future

Successful people born September 22:

James Bowdoin, philanthropist, founder of Bowdoin College.

Marshall P. Wilder, merchant and pomologist (of Boston).

Samuel Wells Williams, sinologue.

Peter Turney, Governor and chief justice of Tennessee.

Theodore Winthrop, author and soldier.

Joseph Seligman, banker.

GIRL WITH SCHALL IN AUTO CRASH HAS FRACTURE OF SKULL

Senator's Son and Miss Kreps Reported Unchanged at Sibley Hospital.

FIVE INJURED AS CARS HIT ON TENTH STREET

Motor Skids Over Curb, Inflicting Hurts Upon Two Small Boys.

The condition of Thomas D. Schall, jr., 20-year-old son of the blind senator from Minnesota, and Miss Alice Kreps, of Baltimore, remains unchanged at Sibley Hospital, where they were taken Saturday after an accident in Riverdale, Md. An X-ray picture taken yesterday showed that the girl has a fractured skull as well as lacerations of the head.

Schall is reported to be "resting comfortably" in spite of a broken leg and arm, and internal injuries. X-ray pictures of his injuries were also taken yesterday. The youth is a junior classman at the United States Naval Academy. He was spending his leave at the Schall home at Wyncrest, Md.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Schall and containing the woman, was in collision with a heavy oil truck in the Maryland town. James Sampson, driver of the truck, was not held. Schall's car was wrecked.

Five Hurt in Crash.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, in an auto collision at Tenth and S streets northwest yesterday. Clara Powers, 66 years old, of 3465 Fourteenth street northwest, was seriously hurt and is in Garfield Hospital with a possible crushed chest.

James Leo Powers, 25 years old, also of the Fourteenth street address, driver of one of the cars, was also treated at Garfield for lacerations of the head. He was allowed to go home.

The other car was driven by Alphonza Lee, colored, of Rockville, Md., who was treated for lacerations of the left leg and knee at Freedmen's Hospital. Two passengers in the machine were Luella Lee, colored, 45 years old, and Adele Lee, colored, 16 years old, also of Rockville. They were treated for cuts and bruises.

Car Injures Children.

Two small boys were injured yesterday when a student driver lost control of an automobile and mounted a curb in front of 2605 Thirtieth street northeast. David Wood, 8 years old, of 2605 Thirtieth street northeast, and Ralph Calli, 6 years old, of 2619 Bladensburg road northeast, who were playing in front of the Wood home, were knocked down by the machine, which was driven by Sonia A. Davidson, 2003 O street northwest. Her instructor was John D. Reagan, of 3039 Douglas street northeast.

The two children were taken to Sibley Hospital, David with a fracture of the left leg and lacerations of the scalp, and Ralph with a fracture of the right arm.

Woman Knocked Down.

Mrs. Eva Rodier, of 1409 Thirty-seventh street northwest, received lacerations of the left arm yesterday when she was knocked down at Washington Circle by an automobile driven by Mrs. Sue Thomas, 3114 O street northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital and removed to her home.

Four persons were taken to the Alexandria Hospital yesterday morning to be treated for injuries received in an automobile accident on the Fairfax road west of the city. They were Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Odell, their two children, 3 years old and 3 months old.

Mrs. Odell received a severe blow on the head and a deep cut in one knee and is still a patient in the hospital, while her husband and babies were slightly cut and bruised and were able to go to their home, in Thirtieth street northwest near Benton street.

A taxicab took off the shirt of George Perri, 20 years old, of 625 I street northwest, last night, but left him almost unharmed. He stepped from the curb at Wisconsin avenue and M street northwest into the side of the cab, which was driven by William G. Faulkner, 24 years old, of 1203 Thirty-first street northwest. The side of the cab caught his clothes and his skin was riped off. His only injury was the breaking of an upper tooth.

Seven Washington Men Enter U. of P.

Names of Freshmen From This City Given Out by Admission Bureau.

Seven students from Washington will be among those who will enter the University of Pennsylvania this week as members of the freshmen class, it has been announced by the office of admission of the University. They are among approximately 1,000 graduates of preparatory and high schools who will be admitted this year.

The Washington students are Darrell H. Smith, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell H. Smith of 3745 Oliver street northwest; Charles M. Stouffer, son of Mrs. Medora G. Stouffer, 1207 Kenyon street northwest; William G. Hanger, son of G. Wallace W. Hanger, of the Earle Building; Frank J. Luchs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton J. Luchs, 2844 Connecticut avenue; Samuel F. Mears, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Herman, of 2737 Devonshire place, and Harry L. Watson, jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Watson of the Albemarle Apartments.

The official opening of the university will be on next Friday.

Parish Societies to Lay Plans for Card Party

Parish societies of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest, are to meet tomorrow evening to arrange for their annual card party, which will be held October 2 in the school hall. The Rev. Stanislaus Czyz, assistant to the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church, heads the committee on arrangements.

The 7:45 o'clock mass service to be celebrated tomorrow will be offered for the repose of the soul of Miss Mary Hayes, housekeeper of St. Patrick's Church, who died August 23. Harry Wheaton Howard, organist of the Immaculate Conception Church, will be in charge of music for the service.

Advent of Fall Fails To Bring Needed Rain

Warm Weather Due to Remain for Several Days, Tempered by Gentle Southerly Winds, According to Bureau Forecasts.

Today is the first day of school, tomorrow is the first day of fall, and still there is no rain. Nor any in sight, according to the Weather Bureau, which says calmly, "Generally fair Monday and Tuesday."

The warm weather is due to say for a day or so, too, tempered with "gentle southerly winds," the bureau says. The average temperature, throughout the year has been 3.10 degrees above normal, while the average for September has been even higher than this figure. On the whole, according to figures furnished by the Government agency, temperature of 22 days this month has been 6.54 degrees higher than the average of 33 years.

Theoretically, with the equinox scheduled for 1:30 a. m. Tuesday, there should be a touch of rain. Whether the period this year runs true to form remains to be seen. It would be wise not to be too hopeful about it.

The total number of degrees of heat which the city has had, over the usual, is 844 degrees. This means that if the daily temperatures this year were added together, the total would be 844 degrees more than the total of the 33-year average. This, in spite of the frequent cold spells last winter.

There doesn't seem to be any great unanimity of opinion as to the number of Leviathans which could float in the amount of rain that Washington hasn't had this year.

Last Monday a Post reporter, with nothing else to do, figured the number at a trifle over 47,000. A few days later came a letter, with another set of figures, showing that only about 1,100 ships would float in the city's deficient precipitation.

Now G. H. McCarthy, of 3834 Garrison street northwest, writes in with his computations, which show that a fleet of only 117 could be borne upon the surface of the hypothetical lake. That is, the number is 117, if the water is salt, but only 114 if it were fresh, as rain water would be.

Let's just forget the number of Leviathans, and agree that the rain we didn't get would amount to a lot.

CLOTHING IS STOLEN FROM WRECKED CAR

Jewelry and Money Taken in Long Series of Thefts During Week-End.

WINDOW SCREEN RIPPED

Clothing valued at $34 was stolen from the auto of Frank F. Wood, of Silver Spring, Md., after an accident yesterday. Wood told Washington police that the clothing, a raincoat, a suit coat and five ties, were taken from his car on Blair road, near Lamond station, while he was absent from the spot following a crash.

Jewelry and money were among the loot of a long series of thefts reported to police yesterday. Charles Maggenti, of 303 Thirteenth street northwest, said that $64 was taken from his trousers pocket while he was asleep at that address. The marauders entered after tearing the screen from a rear window.

A white gold wrist watch with a silver band was taken from the second floor of the house at 511 M street northwest, Elizabeth Webster, of that address, reported. It was valued at $39.50. Joseph A. Pear, manager of a gasoline station at Seventh street and Maryland avenue, said that the station was broken into and a small amount of change taken from the cash register.

Entering the store at the Harvard street entrance to the zoo, thieves took a variety of brands of cigarettes, several boxes of cigars, cooked ham and chewing gum. Charles W. Wood, of 3121 Warder street northwest, proprietor of the store, reported the theft to police. The looters took only a few packages of each of five different brands of cigarettes.

Twenty-six dollars was reported stolen from a pair of trousers hanging in the engine room of the tug T. G. Herbert, moored at the foot of Thirtieth street northwest. James H. McNamara, of 1209 I street southeast, reported the theft to police.

Kicking out a panel in the rear door of the store at 5017 Connecticut avenue northwest, burglars took an alarm clock, six cheap watches, a box of candy, five packages of razor blades and cigars and cigarettes. The value of the stolen articles was about $75, according to the proprietor. Samuel F. Higger, of 2500 Woodley road northwest.

Berlin Welcomes Gronau and Crew

Conqueror of Atlantic Is Received by Republic and Princes.

Potsdam, Germany, Sept. 21 (A.P.). Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau made a triumphant return tonight from his fine flight across the north Atlantic from Germany to the United States.

With his three companions on the flight, he flew in his Dornierwal flyingboat from Hamburg to Berlin and came down on Templin Lake, near Potsdam, amid the deafening cheers of thousands and the blowing of sirens and horns.

Capt. von Gronau and his party then boarded a government steamer for an official welcome from the government.

Later the four airmen were entertained by the former crown prince and princess and Prince August Wilhelm at an exclusive club. The wife of Capt. Koehl, who flew the Atlantic in the Bremen, presented Von Gronau with a huge bottle of rhinewine.

DISTRICT SCHOOLS OPEN DOORS TODAY

Enrollment Is Expected to Pass Last Year's Figure of 65,000.

BUCHANAN HAS NEW UNIT

This morning brings with it the peal of school bells and the finding of caps and the sharpeningof pencils and other proof of the beginning of another school year.

Just how many pupils will say "Good morning, teacher," is uncertain, and nobody wants to prognosticate. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, refused to do so. But last year there were around 65,000 enrolled the first day in local schools, both graded and high. This year, if all goes as it has before, there will be even more. Each year the enrollment is larger than the year befor, and usually largr than was anticipatd.

Th only school buildings dropped from the number available are the portables at the Park View School, where th enew addition is ready for occupancy. There is a four-room-and-gymnasium unit at the Buchanan School, which will go into use for the first time, and there is a new colored school in the Southwest section which will open for its first year today.

This year marks the tryout of the buying of books for high school pupils by the District. Books for the graded school students have been furnished by the School Board for sometime, but it took many speeches in Congress to get the same privilege for the pupils in the higher schools.

Sale of Advertising Space On Postage Stamps Urged

Representative Celler, of New York, Makes Suggestion as Possible Means of Eliminating Deficit Without Raising Rates for Letters.

(Associated Press.)

The sale of space on postage stamps to private interests for advertising purposes was suggested yesterday by Representative Celler, Democrat, New York, as a possible means of eliminating the postal deficit without raising the postage rates on first-class mail.

Expressing opposition to Postmaster General Brown's proposal for a rate increase of a half cent an ounce on sealed letters, the New Yorker in a letter to the Postmaster General said the increase "will not meet with any healthy response in Congress."

He also took issue with Mr. Brown's statement that there was no justification for asking the Government to transport mail for less than cost, asserting that the mail service "can not be weighed in dollars and cents any more than you can similarly weigh the service which the Government renders in its Bureau of Mines, in its Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, or the Bureau of Standards."

In suggesting the sale of advertising space on stamps, the New Yorker said he did not necessarily advocate it, but added he had been informed that France, Germany and New Zealand sell the marginal space on stamp sheets to private concerns, and that Bavaria and Italy had doubled the size of their stamps and sold the additional space for advertising purposes.

"Other countries have used the back of stamps for the printing of advertising," he wrote, adding that the United States had often used cancellation stencils for slogans, and had issued stamps directing attention to various expositions.

DEFENSE EXPECTS TO EXAMINE GUN IN MARY BAKER CASE

Counsel for Campbell Will Test Pistol Allegedly Used in Killing.

PROSECUTION'S OTHER EVIDENCE IS RETAINED

Prisoner, Under $30,000 Bond, Will Be Arraigned October 7.

Defense ballistics experts will be permitted to examine the .32 caliber revolver which the Government alleges was used by Herbert M. Campbell in the murder of Mary E. Baker on April 11.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who will prosecute the accused, last night said that District Attorney Leo. A. Rover today will make arrangements for the gun tests by Albert H. Hamilton, of Auburn, N. Y., and his son, who is associated with him in criminal identification work.

Mr. Collins will allow the defense experts to test the pistol, but he indicated that he will not permit them to examine the other material evidence which has been gathered by the Government. This consists of articles of clothing, jewelry, and documents found in a trap sewer near the culvert where the girl's body was discovered on April 12. It also includes a pair of men's gloves, which were once identified by Campbell as his.

Mr. Smith, in a written request to Mr. Rover, asked that all Government evidence be submitted to the ballistics experts and chemists for examination. It was Mr. Smith's second petition, the first having been denied because Campbell was a fugitive from the District.

Campbell, who is under bond of $30,000, was reported to be resting. He could not be reached yesterday. He will be arraigned on October 7 in the District Supreme Court.

Mr. and Mrs. Gamble Free on Bond as Doctors Fight to Save Mrs. Davis.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Gamble and her husband, who was sitting with Mrs. Davis in a parked automobile near the Gamble home when the shot was fired, are both at liberty on bond. Sheriff R. L. Cooksey, of Charles County, announced that he is prepared to hold Mrs. Gamble without bond should Mrs. Davis die.

Gamble is facing a wife-beating charge preferred by Mrs. Gamble a few days prior to the shooting. The shot tore away a part of Mrs. Davis' skull, entering her forehead and emerging from the side of her head.

'Deep Concern' Topic Of Dr. W. A. Lambeth

Pastor to Go to Another Field at Approaching Conference.

DR. W. A. LAMBETH.

Dr. William A. Lambeth, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South, who has announced that he will go to another pastorate at the approaching conference, yesterday morning took for his subject, "The Deep Concern." His text was Acts 26:31: "Teaching These Things Which Concern Thy Lord Jesus Christ." His sermon follows:

"Robert Browning wrote a poem which he called: 'The Last Ride Together.' There is always a touch of sacredness and sadness about doing anything for the last time.

"During my pastorate here, I have endeavored to emphasize some of the ideas which, I think, concern our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Giving emphasis to these ideas has been my deep concern.

"At this closing service today, I want to bring back to your memories a few of the ideas and some of my personal experiences which I have mentioned from time to time. As they are the deep concern of my heart, may they become also, if they are not already, the deep concern of your hearts.

"The most important thing I know of for every human being is to experience frequently a sense of the presence of God.

"Hear Paul saying: 'Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?' He meant to ask by that whether or not they had experienced a sense of God's presence about them and within them.

"A sense of God's presence came to Moses while he was gazing in wonder at the burning bush—that incandescent bush! Jacob wrestled with an angel until he experienced a sense of God's presence. Isaiah was at church, in God's great temple, when a subduing and inspiring experience came to him—the inner experience of the presence of God. The Master went into the wilderness, where He was tempted, but He found there, even there, God's abiding presence. A sense of the presence of the divine burst in on Paul, while he was on a cruel mission, and he fell to the earth subdued and mastered.

Closer is He than breathing,
Nearer than hands and feet.

Nearer, my God, to thee,
Nearer to thee!
E'en though it be a cross
That raiseth me
Still all my song shall be
Nearer, my God, to thee,
Nearer to thee!

"Where shall we find Him? In the great silences, where the stillnesses are! Wherever there is a spiritual retreat! Wherever there is a blessed sanctuary! It was Ralph Waldo Emerson who said: 'I love the silence of the great cathedral better than any preaching.' Why? Because, whenever his outside world and his inside world were still, he could hear the sound of God's whisper. The prophet Habakkuk said: 'The Lord is in His holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before Him.' Sitting in the silence, we can listen for and often hear the eternal voice. 'Be still and know that I am God.'

"O for a mystic knowledge of the heart of God! Mystic knowledge requires immediate experience. Such knowledge does not come from a book; it comes from blessed experience. Emerson said in his great Divinity School address: 'Cast behind you all conformity, and acquaint men at first hand with Diety.'

"If a man can gain, in this way or that, a sense of God's presence, his heart will be subdued and comforted and empowered and filled with faith.

"When John the Baptist came to have an intimate knowledge of our Lord, he said: 'He must increase; I must decrease.' Self was subdued; Christ was exalted. Self was growing less; Christ was growing larger.

"What needs subduing in universal mankind? That superiority complex; that self-will and disobedience; that spirit of reluctance and withholding. When a sense of his presence bursts in upon us, then we find ourselves saying:

'Have Thine own way, Lord!
Have Thine own way!
Thou art the Potter;
I am the clay.

'Mould me and make me
After Thy will,
While I am waiting,
Yielded and still.'

While we are yielded, then and then only can we sing with meaning: 'O come, let us adore Him!'

'All hail the power of Jesus' name!
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown him Lord of all.'

"A sense of His presence brings comfort to the human heart.

"When Harry Lauder's son was killed in the World War, the great Scotch entertainer became subdued and his life was filled with a new seriousness. He needed comfort and he found it in the right place. Hear him saying: 'When a great sorrow overtakes any man, there are three things he may do. He may sour on life, or he may try to drown his sorrow in drink, or he may turn to God. I have chosen the third path.'

"O the blessed comfort, in the hour of grief, which a sense of his presence brings to the human heart! The Master said that he would send us what he called 'Another Comforter.'

"A sense of his presence empowers the human heart. It empowers one to serve his fellowman. It empowered Phillips Brooks. When they were burying Phillips Brooks' body in Cambridge, Mass., after that busy life for God and others had ended, one of his blood-brothers said: 'He wouldn't spare himself.' A friend who heard this remark answered: 'That's why we are here, and that's why the world loves him.'

"The Master said: 'I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.' He was talking about the quality of life, I think, rather than its duration. It is not so much how long a man lives; it is rather how well. The Master himself lived 33 years. We know so little about the first 30. How much He put into those three years of public service, however! The quality was there, even if they wouldn't let Him live any longer.

"One of the worst hells of human experience is this: The consciousness of meaning little or nothing to anybody else! The sweetest heaven on earth is this: The blessed realization that you do mean something and much to somebody else! A finer heaven on earth still: The consciousness of meaning much to many!

"After all, lasting friendships are the greatest enrichers of human hearts. Unless effort is put forth, or unless service is rendered, friends can drift apart so easily. Neglected friendships come to grief. Kept-up friendships bless human souls.

"Bishop Rondthaler, aged and saintly, after living 50 years or more in one city and there beloved by all, made an address recently to a Kiwanis Club in Durham. He spoke on the art of cultivating and keeping friends. As a young man, he says that he went to school in Germany. There he had no friends at first. He decided to show a friendly spirit to all. He developed the life habit. He believes this, in order to have a friend, you must be one. He has a host of friends in this world and in the world beyond, because he has been so friendly all his long and blessed life. He means se much to many.

"One day a flower was laid on this pulpit with the following words tied to it:

"Roses give
While they live;
Roses, roses give."

"Give and live; withhold and die! O Sea of Galilee, you give and live! O Dead Sea, you have withheld and you have died!

"God needs you, and you need Him. You need Him for additional inner strength; he needs you for human service. He wants you to cooperate with Him.

"Empowered to keep on keeping on!

"A sense of His presence is like hidden manna; it makes one able to keep on keeping on.

"When a man's soul is beaten down by financial difficulties, when a man's heart is crushed with human grief, when a man's spirit is crestfallen because of embarrassment, how can he be lifted up again? Only by a realization of the presence of God. When that comes to him, he can say: 'I am bigger than anything that can happen to me.' He can then say, with Paul: 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.' There is none other power given among men whereby they may be saved from fear and despair.

"Empowered to suffer!

"Perhaps it is well to be interested in the blue blood of lineage, but it is far better to be interested in the red blood of sacrifice. Without divine grace, it is so hard to be willing and glad to suffer with others and to suffer for others. With divine grace in the human heart, it is so hard for one to let another suffer alone. Such a person wants to become a comforter, a strengthener, a messenger from the Master's heart. The best comforters are those who have passed victoriously through a similar sorrow. Alfred Tennyson said of the great poets: 'They learn in suffering what they teach in song.' Unless we suffer personally and vicariously, we shall become no bigger and better in our souls than we have been. Paul aspired to experience the fellowship of our Lord's sufferings. This is the royal pathway which leads from humanity to divinity.

"A sense of the presence of God empowers one to serve, and to keep on keeping on, and to suffer vicariously and victoriously.

"A sense of the presence of God fills the human heart with faith. Faith that the heart of the universe is love! This can not be proved by logic. Nor can it be disproved. It can be believed, however. This is the great victory of human faith. The heart of the universe does care about us. It is not unfriendly. It is concerned. This is our religious trust.

"Faith in the future of mankind! The Master's dream of human brotherhood must prevail. Separating chasms must and will be bridged. Mankind must and will come to be brothers.

"'The kingdom is coming. O tell ye the story,
God's banner exalted shall be!
The earth shall be full of his knowledge and glory
As waters that cover the sea!'

"Faith that life is endless!

"Death is not a blind alley—it is a door! It is the door to endless development of personality and continued service.

"I once saw 5,000 homing pigeons in many coops and cages in the express office at Salisbury, N. C. By request of the owners in Brooklyn and elsewhere, the express man was to open the cages and liberate the pigeons soon after daylight one fall morning. I saw those birds rise from their coops into the air above—5,000 of them. They circled around in some apparent bewilderment at first. After a few moments more of circling, they seemed to get their bearings. Then they took off—off for a nonstop flight to Brooklyn. With the eye of memory I see those pigeons growing smaller and smaller in the distance. Going on! Yes. Going on a great adventure. A telegram came that night saying that the most of the pigeons arrived during the later afternoon.

"They seemed to know where they were going. The homing instinct was in them. They found their way home.

"Likewise, God's children feel within, though they can not prove it with logic, that there is somewhere to go when life here ends.

"Here sits he shaping wings to fly:
His heart forebodes a mystery;
He names the name Eternity."
"This is our faith."

HIGH U.S. OFFICERS SPEAK AT BANQUET FOR WAR MOTHERS

Fear of Capitalism Will Be Gone in Next Conflict, Hurley Promises.

NEW METHOD DEVISED IN ENLISTING RECRUITS

Women See Capital Sights and Are Received by President.

Gen. John J. Pershing, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War Frederick H. Payne, Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired, and other officials of the Government and United States Army were speakers at a dinner given the Gold tSar Mothers of Missouri last night by the Gold Star Mothers and the Washington Hotel. More than 600 persons attended the dinner, which was held in the rose room on the roof of the hotel. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde sent flowers to use in decorating the room, expressing his regret that he was unable to attend.

"The greatest joy that has come to me in recent years," Gen. Pershing declared, "was to welcome several groups of the Gold tSar Mothers to France and to go with them through several of the battlefields. We owe something to them which can only be paid by a deeper love for our country and a renewal of our consecrated service and devotion."

All other speakers, which included Admiral Coontz, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Maj. Gen. John L. DeWitt and ecretary Payne, stressed the idea that the country had not forgotten the mothers who sacrificed everything to "carry on," and realized just how much the Nation owed them.

Industrial Coordination Seen.

"Mothers have fortified the places and the country won by their sons," Secretary Hurley declared in his address, "and I hope that our fighting forces and our Nation will always be worthy of your sacrifices."

The War Department head also told the mothers that in the event of another war, industrial mobilization will have been perfected, and mothers no longer will need to think that their sons are fighting to make money for capitalists at home.

"We hold that it is unfair for a man to die in battle for the financial betterment of others who are not actively in the struggle," he declared. That will now be a thing of the past. New methods have been devised for enlisting recruits for the Army in time of war, a method which will insure impartiality and make for fairer distribution."

Missouri President Speaks.

Mrs. H. H. McCluer, past national president of the Gold Star Mothers and president of the Missouri organization, told last night of her part in the reception which was given the returning soldiers in New York when the transports were bringing them by by the thousand each day. She was one of the five Missouri mothers officially delegated to meet the boys from that State when they arrived.

Mrs. McCluer, voicing the feeling of the entire organization, declared that the Gold Star Mothers did not regret that they had given sons in battle, but that they did feel the Nation owed it to them to see that the country their sons fought for was amply protected.

"We want to hold, and we want you to help us hold, the country that our boys saved," she declared. "Further, we are not willing to disarm our country while international peace is still only an achievement that is talked about. The United States Army should always be in a position to protect this land, and to let other mations see that we will not be trampled on under any condition."

17,006 Eligible for Trip.

At the dinner Maj. Gen. DeWitt, Quartermaster General of the Army, told the mothers gathered there that 30,925 Gold Star Mothers are alive in this country today, and that 17,006 of them are eligible to take the trip across the seas to see the resting place of their boys. This summer, the first time the project has been actually undertaken, 3,663 mothers went across, and 2,607 more have declared their intention of going next year.

The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Canon of Washington, welcomed the mothers at the 11 o'clock service yesterday morning in the absence of Bishop James A. Freeman. The service was held in the chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea.

Following the service in the chapel the delegates were shown the tombs of Admiral Dewey and Woodrow Wilson. They paid brief tribute to the memory of each.

Before going to Arlington Cemetery the mothers were taken for a sight-seeing trip over the city.

Pershing Puts Wreath on Tomb.

At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Gen. Pershing placed a large wreath on the beautiful white marble slab. Immediately afterwards the delegation of St. Louis mothers, who made the trip to the battlefields of France and Belgium placed a wreath in the name of the Missouri city.

Tomorrow afternoon the Mothers will be taken for a trip to Mount Vernon, where they will place a wreath on the grave of George Washington. They will return to Washington to be received by the President at the White House at 12:30 o'clock, a ceremony which will conclude the Mothers' Washington visit. Immediately afterward they will leave for their special train at Union Station and be taken direct to St. Louis, where the party will disband and return to their homes.

GAYETY

Jimmy Lake executed his genius at showmanship when he selected the twenty peaches which comprise his stationary chorus at the Gayety. Heralded as the classiest chorus in any of the Mutual houses in the East, it includes Virginia Wright, the Misses Levene, pride of the Trocodore, back again after a recent illness; L. Lacey, Elsie O'Dea, H. Smith, Clair, Jackie Bettinger and Elsie Moss. Costumed gorgeously, they back up "Step On It," this week's attraction, in a classy manner. Fields, a putty nose comic, is aided by Callahan, and gives the fans some of the best comic work they have witnessed this season. A newcomer, strutting a shapely figure, whose voice sounds well, answers to the name of Joy Lloyd. Miss Lloyd and Betty Abbott garner the female honors.

Alleged Suicide Attempt Laid to Desire to See Mate

Because she was unable to visit her husband twice daily at the Walter Reed Hospital, Mrs. Laura Perenanzini, 19 years old, attempted suicide yesterday, according to police. Now Mrs. Perenanzini is in the same hospital a few doors away from her husband.

She is employed as a nursemaid by a tenant of an apartment at Butternut and Eighth streets northwest. Her husband asked her to visit him twice daily. He duties prohibited it. Mrs. William E. Nese, manager of the apartment, found her yesterday after she is believed to have taken the poison.

Her home is in Oddington, Md. Hospital authorities said her condition is not serious.
